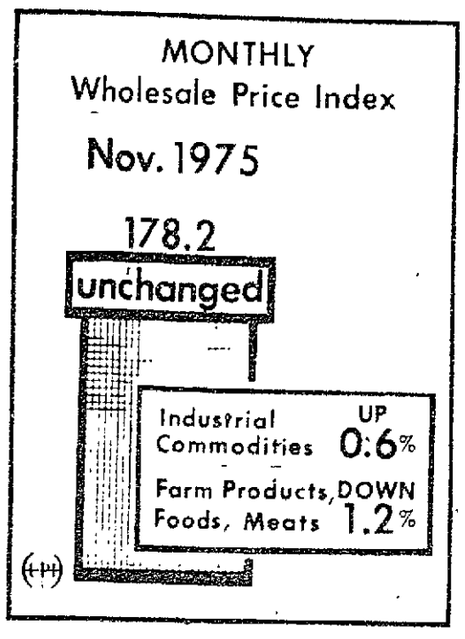
November Wholesale Prices Level Off



(c) Washington Star

Washington — Wholesale prices leveled off last month, offering hope that the recent acceleration of inflation was only temporary, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

After rising sharply for four straight months, including a 1.8% surge in October, wholesale prices on average did not change in November, the department said.

Agricultural prices dropped 1.2% last month following a 1.7% rise in October, and prices of industrial goods rose only 0.6%, half the increase in October.

Looking at longer-term trends, the department said wholesale prices have risen at an annual rate of 10.1% in the latest three months, up from a 7.7% rate of increase in the preceding three months. This faster advance reflected sharp rises in the months before November.

The wholesale price index last month was only 3.7% higher than in November 1974, the smallest increase for any 12-month period since 1972. Wholesale prices soared 20.9% last year.

Inflation moderated early this year, reflecting in large part the effects of the recession. However, price increases picked up speed again during the summer and early fall, arousing concern that the inflation spiral might break out anew.

Wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of 13.5% in the three months through October, and consumer prices also showed signs of acceleration.

While expressing concern, most analysts said the surge probably reflected mostly temporary factors, including erratic movements in agricultural prices. The latest report, although not conclusive, indicated that this optimistic viewpoint may be correct.

The consensus of economists has been that the inflation rate as measured by consumer prices will settle down to about 5 to 7% through mid-1976.

This would be a high rate of inflation by historic standards, but a big improvement over 1974, when consumer prices rose 12.2%.

Forecasts beyond mid-1976 are much more uncertain. Many analysts fear that inflation will worsen again as the economy's recovery from the recession proceeds — especially if the government continues to run big budget deficits.

In absolute terms, wholesale prices actually declined 0.4% from October to November. This was about the normal decline for that time of year, so on a seasonally adjusted basis wholesale prices neither rose nor fell.

The price index was 178.2, meaning that it cost $178.20 to buy an assortment of goods at wholesale that could have been purchased for $100 in the 1967 base year.

In general, the price developments were the best since last June.

Within the total index, prices of farm products declined 2.6% in November, seasonally adjusted, following a rise of 2.2% in October. These prices were 2.1% above November 1974.

Prices of processed foods and feeds decreased 0.6% last month after a rise of 0.8% in October.

Combining these two figures, the over-all index of agricultural prices declined 1.2% in November after rising 1.7% in October.

Agricultural prices fluctuate erratically, and prices of industrial goods are considered a better barometer of basic trends. Industrial prices rose 0.6% in November after spurting 1.2% in October. The big October rise reflected mainly sharp increases for automobiles, steel and lumber, which leveled off in November. Textile and machinery price increases led the advance for November.

Especially significant for future trends was the 1.4% decline in prices of crude materials in November, following a 0.7% decline in October. Price movements for crude materials usually signal broader price patterns several months in advance.

The categories of wholesale prices that relate most directly to retail prices for consumers performed well in November.

Wholesale prices of consumer foods — basically the prices paid by supermarkets — declined 0.4% after rising 1.7% in October. Wholesale prices of other consumer goods rose 0.5%, a much smaller increase than the 1.2% advance in October.

Lost Colin Bond Found But Ordered Destroyed

By NANCY HICKS

The mysterious disappearance of a bond which played havoc with County Commissioner Robert Colin's political life in late January has been partially solved.

The original bond, unsigned, turned up in the Lancaster County clerk's office several days after Colin had been reinstated as commissioner. County Attorney Ron Lahners told county clerk's office personnel to destroy the bond and forget the episode.

"It was unsigned. It had no legal effect and no legal bearing," said Lahners during a Thursday press conference where he belatedly explained the discovery of the missing bond and his decision to have it destroyed.

"It didn't strike me as being important. The fight to get him reappointed had been won. At that point the fact that the bond was found did not matter," said Lahners. Colin was never informed about the bond's discovery.

The $5,000 performance bond was never filed with the County Court, a state requirement. Colin's seat was declared vacated in late January. A week later a three-man board reappointed Colin and he filed a duplicate bond.

But the week in between was a tense one for Colin. Two of the three men on the appointment committee — County Clerk Carl Hartman and County Treasurer Frank Golden — are both political antagonists of Colin, and his reappointment was uncertain.

Colin had proved in court that he had purchased the bond, that it was delivered to his insurance agent and then mailed to him at the County-City Building.

What happened to that first class letter containing the bond has remained a mystery. A postal inspector spent several weeks trying to trace the letter, without success.

And Colin himself has always wondered what happened to the bond.

Wednesday afternoon Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, who had learned of the reappearance and then destruction of the first bond, told Colin.

And Colin asked Lahners to make the entire thing public, Lahners said.

"I just want people to know that I didn't shirk my duties. That I did follow instructions and purchased a bond," said Colin Thursday after Lahner's announcement.

The bond itself was discovered by a county clerk employe in a pile of claims just two days after Colin was sworn into office again, said LeRoy Ihrie, chief deputy clerk.

"I was flabbergasted," he said. "I don't know how long it was there or how it got there."

County Clerk Carl Hartman was hospitalized at the time. So Ihrie took the bond to Lahners for advice. "It had been such a hassle . . . The decision was just to let sleeping dogs lie," said Ihrie.

Livestock Dealer License Law Hit

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A National Farmers Organization official Thursday called a state law requiring the group to register as a livestock dealer improper legislation aimed at crippling the NFO.

Bill Sellhorst of Dodge, a past state president and now director of NFO's slaughter cattle division, said, "We're not a livestock dealer. We never have been. We never will be.

"I resent anybody inferring that we are," he said.

Sellhorst's comments came at a hearing ordered by State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher directing NFO to explain why it has not applied for a livestock dealers license as required by a new state law.

Marketing Service

The NFO operates a marketing service for its members.

Kreuscher said he may wait 30 days before issuing a decision as to whether the NFO should get a license.

Traditionally, Sellhorst said, livestock dealers have taken advantage of farmers' inaccessibility to distant markets, depressed prices and skimmed the profits.

That's the reason the NFO set up its livestock marketing plan, he added.

"The reason the NFO has been able to exercise its muscle in the market place is because it's not categorized as a dealer and because it has the mobility to go to California or Pennsylvania to find buyers," he said. "This is what the packing industry fears."

Without it, the producer is limited to a comparatively small area to market his livestock, Sellhorst said.

State law also requires the NFO to get a similar license from the Nebraska Public Service Commission for its grain marketing program. NFO has applied for the license and is expected to post bond shortly.

"In my opinion that was wrong too," Sellhorst said.

Asked by Kreuscher why NFO applied to the Public Service Commission for a grain dealers license if it does not consider itself a dealer, Sellhorst replied the group "got snookered into it."

Not Settled Yet

"We were licensed under protest. This thing isn't settled yet," he said.

Sellhorst said he was particularly disenchanted with state senators who passed the law.

"They don't understand the monopolistic practices in agriculture," he said.

Other farm groups aren't protesting the law because some "can't see farther than their noses," Sellhorst said.

Sellhorst said the laws amounted to special legislation aimed at one group, which is unconstitutional.

He noted that the NFO's system kept its members from selling to American Beef Packers and consequently saved them money when the firm went bankrupt.

House Approves Tax Revision Bill

Washington (UPI) — The House Thursday passed a major tax revision bill, but once again refused to attach President Ford's spending ceiling. Ford again threatened to veto it.

Hanging in the balance is about $13 billion in individual tax cuts, plus some tax cuts for business, which will expire on Jan. 1 unless some legislation is enacted soon.

The bill went to the Senate following the 257-168 final vote where it is destined to be split into two parts with a simple extension of the tax cut going to Ford before Congress adjourns for the year. The Senate Finance Committee begins hearings on the bill Tuesday.

House Republican leader John Rhodes said Ford called him from Peking Thursday morning before voting began on the bill to renew his threat to veto any tax bill that did not include a spending ceiling.

Rhodes said Ford outlined GOP strategy to recommit the bill to the Ways and Means Committee with instructions to report it back with a spending ceiling. However, that motion lost 220 to 202.

Passage came after liberals succeeded on three of the five amendments they sought to toughen the reform portion of the bill. The successful amendments would further strengthen the minimum tax, eliminate a three-year capital loss carryback which could have resulted in a $15 million tax refund for Texas millionaire H. Ross Perot, and continue the withholding tax on the U.S. investments of foreigners.

However, the liberals lost on amendments to further tighten curbs on real estate tax shelters and begin restricting special tax breaks for exporters — the so-called domestic international sales corporations — after three years instead of five.

On final passage, Democrats voted 225-57 for the bill, but Republicans voted 111-32 against it.

The tax cuts would have some effect on revenues, but for the most part they would simply extend 1975's cuts at about the same level into 1976. If no bill was passed at all, the Treasury would pick up $15.5 billion in unexpected revenue as all individual tax cuts and some business tax cuts expired.

The current higher limits on the standard deduction — a maximum $2,300 for singles and $2,600 for couples, and a minimum $1,600 for singles and $1,900 for couples — would be made permanent. A new one-year tax credit would be enacted which could reduce tax bills up to $240 — 2% of all income up to $12,000.

In addition, the bill curbs or eliminates a number of tax shelters for the wealthy, strengthens the minimum tax, and liberalizes child care tax credits and tax credits for the elderly among hundreds of revisions in the tax law.

A number of new tax breaks are created, but one of the most controversial — a three-year tax carryback of capital losses retroactive to 1974 — was dropped on a vote of 379 to 27. The Wall Street Journal reported that amendment would mean $15 million to Perot, who had large losses in the stock market in 1974.

But on a vote of 226 to 192, the House refused to go along with one of the most important of the liberal amendments — elimination of tax shelters in the real estate industry. The bill already severely curbed use of real estate tax shelters, however.

A doubling of the maximum tax deduction for living expenses of congressmen in Washington was not eligible for a House floor vote and was approved with the bill.

Robbers Hit Gas Station, Motel

Two armed robberies, the arrest of a suspect in connection with other armed robberies, and a false alarm run to Duncan Aviation where suspects were thought to be trying to escape in a private plane, all made for a busy night for Lincoln Police Thursday night.

All the activity, much of it in a span of 30 minutes, was cause for the Associated Press to call The Star with a report that they had been told "half the police cars in Lincoln are driving around with their sirens on."

It all began at Andy's 66 Service at 2701 West O shortly before 8 p.m. when two men held up the attendant on duty and escaped with a money bag full of cash. The pair, were described as being white, in their early 20's, both 5'11", 140 pounds. One was wearing a blue jacket, the other a blue coat. Both had ski masks pulled over their faces and were armed, police said.

Shortly after 11 p.m., one person, possibly two, held up the desk clerk at the Days Inn Motel, 2410 N.W. 12th, and escaped with a money bag full of cash. The suspect was described as a white male in his early 20's with a red afro hairstyle and a red beard which was possibly fake.

He was wearing a blue jacket and was armed, police said. No description was available on the other suspect, they added.

A dispatcher at Duncan Aviation called police and said that three men, believed to be robbery suspects, were trying to leave in a light aircraft. Police rushed to the scene but the people in the plane turned out not to be suspects, officials said.

At about the same time, police arrested a suspect in connection with a series of armed robberies that have occurred over a period of about two weeks.

Today's Chuckle

The government's attempt to halt inflation hasn't been too effective. If they really want to bring prices down why don't they ask the stock market how it's done?

Parole Board Procedures Criticized

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Board of Parole procedures and standards were subjected to heavy criticism Thursday at a legislative hearing.

And members of the board were rebuked by a number of senators for not protesting a 5% budget cut which was exacted by the special session of the Legislature last month.

Had the board told senators that the budget reduction would impair its performance — as some members told them Thursday — it would have been spared from the dollar cuts, members of the Judiciary Committee said.

"But I thought the state was broke, Senator," board member Eugene Neal responded.

'Cut To The Bone'

"We were cut to the bone," Chairman John Greenholtz declared.

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union and the assistant director of the Nebraska Indian Commission criticized board procedures in granting or denying parole.

The NCLU, acting on the findings of its prisoner's rights committee, recommended that the board establish precise written standards for parole.

Every prisoner should be given "a specific idea of what is expected of them to gain parole," NCLU Executive Director Barbara Gaither said.

'Written Explanation'

And every inmate should be given "a written explanation for each decision" regarding their requested parole, she said.

The recommendations, she said, were based on the results of a survey of prison inmates.

In order to monitor Board of Parole decisions for itself, NCLU plans to send an observer to all future meetings of the board.

Meanwhile, she said, the Judiciary Committee ought to hold a hearing at the Penitentiary "so inmates can talk directly to you" about their parole concerns.

Celeste Wiseblood, assistant director of the Nebraska Indian Commission, said Parole Board experience indicates that Indian and Chicano inmates have more difficulty obtaining parole than either whites or blacks.

Intelligence Tests

One problem, she said, is that the board, in considering intelligence as a factor in parole decisions, uses intelligence tests which may have a cultural bias against Indians and Chicanos.

Although not critical of the board, Gary Hill of Lincoln said its function should be confined to parole decisions while decisions on work release and educational release should be left to the Department of Correctional Services.

Any "movement (of prisoners) under confinement" should be a department decision, he said.

"The department should run the prisons."

Community Programs

Greenholtz told the senators he believes "no less than 30% to 35%" of the Penal Complex inmates could be placed in community-based programs if there is sufficient resources and supervision to do so.

"We could easily double our work release" if resources and jobs are available, board member Marshall Tate said.

There are now 394 prisoners on either work release or educational release programs.

'Cut To The Bone'

"We were cut to the bone," Chairman John Greenholtz declared.

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union and the assistant director of the Nebraska Indian Commission criticized board procedures in granting or denying parole.

The NCLU, acting on the findings of its prisoner's rights committee, recommended that the board establish precise written standards for parole.

Every prisoner should be given "a specific idea of what is expected of them to gain parole," NCLU Executive Director Barbara Gaither said.

'Written Explanation'

And every inmate should be given "a written explanation for each decision" regarding their requested parole, she said.

The recommendations, she said, were based on the results of a survey of prison inmates.

In order to monitor Board of Parole decisions for itself, NCLU plans to send an observer to all future meetings of the board.

Meanwhile, she said, the Judiciary Committee ought to hold a hearing at the Penitentiary "so inmates can talk directly to you" about their parole concerns.

Celeste Wiseblood, assistant director of the Nebraska Indian Commission, said Parole Board experience indicates that Indian and Chicano inmates have more difficulty obtaining parole than either whites or blacks.

Intelligence Tests

One problem, she said, is that the board, in considering intelligence as a factor in parole decisions, uses intelligence tests which may have a cultural bias against Indians and Chicanos.

Although not critical of the board, Gary Hill of Lincoln said its function should be confined to parole decisions while decisions on work release and educational release should be left to the Department of Correctional Services.

Any "movement (of prisoners) under confinement" should be a department decision, he said.

"The department should run the prisons."

Community Programs

Greenholtz told the senators he believes "no less than 30% to 35%" of the Penal Complex inmates could be placed in community-based programs if there is sufficient resources and supervision to do so.

"We could easily double our work release" if resources and jobs are available, board member Marshall Tate said.

There are now 394 prisoners on either work release or educational release programs.

Today's Chuckle

The government's attempt to halt inflation hasn't been too effective. If they really want to bring prices down why don't they ask the stock market how it's done?

3 Named In Hoffa Kidnaping, Death

Detroit (UPI) — Federal authorities said Thursday a witness saw former Teamsters Union boss James R. Hoffa kidnaped and a second man has named three New Jersey Teamsters as participants in his abduction and murder.

"The first witness will identify them (the three men) as active participants in the abduction and murder of James R. Hoffa," Robert E. Ozer, head of the U.S. Organized Crime Strike Task Force in Detroit, told a federal judge.

The other witness, Ozer said, saw the abduction.

"It came as a surprise to me," said Hoffa's lawyer son, James P. Hoffa. "I am gratified that work is being done, and I think this is only the first of several revelations to come."

Federal Judge James P. Churchill ordered the three New Jersey men to appear for an identification lineup so the second government witness can determine if they are the same men the first witness identified.

Ozer did not identify the witnesses or elaborate on their testimony.

—Salvatore Briguglio of Paramus, N.J., business agent for Teamsters Local 560 and a longtime associate of Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, for many years president of 560 and one of three men Hoffa said he planned to meet July 30, the day of his disappearance.

— Gabriel Briguglio, brother of Salvatore and a reputed member of Local 560.

— Thomas A. Andretta, 38, of Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., a reputed union enforcer linked by police sources with Joseph "Bayonne Joe" Zicarelli, the alleged crime boss of northern New Jersey.

The three men, plus Andretta's brother Stephen, who lives in Little Ferry, N.J., appeared briefly Thursday before a federal grand jury investigating the Hoffa case. Their lawyer said they all pleaded the Fifth Amendment.

The Briguglio brothers and Thomas Andretta were ordered by Churchill to appear for an identification lineup in Oakland County, where Hoffa lived and where he vanished.

Ozer said the second witness would appear at the lineup.

The four New Jersey men, and a fifth witness from Detroit, filed into and out of the grand jury room.

Within 90 minutes, Ozer appeared before Churchill seeking an order to carry out the lineup. He said the three men refused to take part voluntarily.

Ozer did not mention the government's two witnesses until he appeared in the courtroom, where he also disclosed why the government linked the New Jersey men with Hoffa.

The New Jersey men were subpoenaed to appear before the Detroit grand jury following investigation in that state by the FBI and after three checks with search warrants — at a large landfill area in Jersey City, a safety deposit box in Union City and a file cabinet in Teamsters Local 560 in Union City, where Provenzano was local president for many years.

What, if anything, the agents found was not disclosed.

Raid Causes Debate

Jerusalem — An unusual public debate has erupted here over the timing, wisdom, and effectiveness of the Israeli air strikes against Lebanon on Tuesday. Two leading Hebrew newspapers published editorials Thursday challenging the advisability of the raids, in which the Lebanese press reported 75 persons killed and 120 wounded. The raids prompted an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council and raised a chorus of international criticism against Israel.

U.N. Invites PLO

United Nations, N.Y. — The Security Council invited the Palestine Liberation Organization Thursday to participate in a debate on the Israeli air raids on Lebanese territory earlier this week. The council, in a departure from its standing rules, accorded the guerrilla organization a role similar to that of a United Nations member state. The vote was 9 to 3 with three abstentions.

Soviets Build Radar Station

Washington — American intelligence sources have told the Ford administration that the Soviet Union has recently constructed a large-scale radar station on the Kamchatka Peninsula that raises new questions about possible Soviet violations of the 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation Agreements.

Political Talks Held

Lisbon — Premier Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo met Thursday with the leaders of the three main parties to resolve the present political impasse. The liberal Popular Democrats, the country's second largest party, have demanded the exclusion of the Communists from the government for their alleged role in last week's aborted military rebellion. But the Communists want the Popular Democrats eliminated from the government on the grounds that they are "reactionaries" and opposed to the regime's move towards socialism.

Congress Votes To Retain Bill's Antibusing Language

Washington (UPI) — The House voted Thursday to retain the strong antibusing language added by the Senate to a big money bill financing the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

On a 260-140 vote, the House concurred with a senate amendment that prohibits HEW — but not the courts — from ordering school districts to bus children beyond their neighborhood schools for purposes of racial equality.

The amendment, sponsored by assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd, restricts HEW's authority to order busing. but it does not affect court-ordered busing or busing initiated under threat of court order which constitute the vast majority of busing cases.

The House approved, 321 to 91, the compromise that includes $45 billion to fund the two agencies for a period ending Sept. 30, 1976, and sent the measure to the Senate. Lawmakers hope to complete action on the Labor-HEW appropriations bill quickly to avoid a pocket veto by President Ford when Congress ends its current session later this month.

The President was expected to veto the Labor-HEW appropriations bill since it exceeds his budget request by nearly $1 billion.

The money items in the legislation were never in dispute, but House-Senate conferees were tied up for two months over the busing language.

Earlier this week, conferees agreed to strike two other antibusing provisions added by the Senate which critics feared would jeopardize HEW's ability to end discrimination with tools other than busing. The ultimate decision on what, if any, antibusing language would remain in the bill was left to the House.

Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., failed, 259 to 133, in an attempt to weaken the Byrd amendment by including the "next nearest" school in the antibusing provision.

"No matter how we feel about school busing, we should not change the existing law by tacking an amendment on an annual appropriations bill," he said.

Scott Retires; Curtis To Study Senate Position

Reacting to the announcement Thursday by that Senate Minority leader Hugh Scott, R-Penn., that he will retire after next year, Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., says he probably will wait till the end of next year to announce whether he will seek the GOP Senate leadership post.

Curtis said Thursday, "I have given it no attention, made no decision, and I have no announcement to make. ... I'll have to wait and see what develops in the air."

Curtis said he is presently "very happy" in his post as Chairman of the Senate Republican Conference.

Curtis, who has served in Congress continuously since 1939 as first as a congressman then a Senator.

Regulations Hold Milk Price Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers are paying $500 million more each year for dairy products under federal marketing restrictions than they would under a free economy, a special consultant to the President's Wage and Price Stability Council said Thursday.

Tanya Roberts of the Public Interest Economics Center said the federal milk marketing orders, coupled with the monopoly power of some milk cooperatives, results in milk prices at least 22 per cent higher than they would be without government controls.

Prices for butter, cheese, ice cream and other price-supported manufactured dairy products are about 8% lower than they would be if released from government restraints, she said.

"The net effect of these price changes costs consumers $500 million every year, although the estimate is on the low side since it understates the impact of cheap reconstituted milk," she said.

The economist added that "dairy farmers undoubtedly receive some of the income lost by consumers. Approximately 75% of the total . . . is thought to find its way to them. How much of this is retained by dairy farmers is unclear."

One effect of the federal marketing order system, which grew out of the depression, is that the "bargaining power of dairy farmers vis-a-vis processors and distributors seems clearly to have been strengthened" as intended, she said.

But the estimated cost of the inefficiencies, administrative expenses, lobbying, political contributions and high-priced managerial talent for co-ops works out to about $200 million a year.

Island Extremists Wage Twin Terror Actions In Holland

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan extremists waged twin terror actions in Holland on Thursday in their struggle for an East Indies homeland.

They seized the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam with 21 children and at least 15 other hostages. Ninety miles to the north, comrades holding a hijacked train since Tuesday led one of their 38 hostages to the door and shot him.

The extremists are from among 40,000 natives of the South Molucca Islands of Indonesia who fled or were expelled to the Netherlands since an abortive uprising against Jakarta rule in 1950, the year after the Dutch granted independence to Indonesia.

In a typed message from the Beilen gunmen relayed by a mediator, the Moluccans said, "We are doing this because the people in the train and the Dutch people did not approach the Dutch government 25 years ago when great injustice was done to our people." The statement was signed: "Free South Moluccan Youth."

But The Netherlands cannot grant them a homeland now and there was no realistic expectation that Indonesia would.

Dutch Premier Joop den Uyl said the consulate occupation in Amsterdam and the train hijacking in Beilen 90 miles to the north were connected. He called it a "horrible situation" and the propects "very somber."

Officials said a large group of South Moluccans were observed moving toward Beilen from Assen, a town 10 miles to the north where many South Moluccans live. Authorities said the purpose of the move was not known.

Authorities gave these accounts of the two sieges:

In Amsterdam, six South Moluccans armed with a carbine, pistol and knives stormed the Indonesian consulate building at midday.

The building also houses an Indonesian school and a travel agency, and the gunmen herded 21 children and the patrons of the agency to an upper floor.

In all, the gunmen were believed to hold between 50 and 60 hostages in the consulate building.

Four consulate staffers escaped by climbing down a rope. All were hospitalized; one was wounded by rebel gunfire and the three others were injured in the escape. Three other staffers inside the consulate were believed wounded in the initial burst of gunfire.

The rebels hoisted the red, white and green flag of their "Republic of the Moluccas" over the consulate as police and armed vehicles quickly cordoned the building off.

Police delivered food, including two large crates of milk to the occupied consulate in early evening. Officers said that the gunman asked for the Rev. S. Metiary to serve as mediator. The South Moluccan clergyman had mediated in Beilen the previous day.

In Beilen, the five gunmen holding more than three dozen hostages in a stranded train shot another one of their captives during a lull in negotiations. They threatened to shoot the rest of the hostages one by one if their demands were not met.

The man's body fell beside the tracks and it was unknown whether he was dead or alive. He lay beside the bodies of the engineer and another man who were killed when the rebels first seized the train.

There were about 65 people aboard the train when the hijackers seized it. Twenty-five were released or escaped Tuesday and Wednesday. Officials said the train's heating remained on and the hostages were protected from the strong, cold wind outside.

In the typed letter released by Dutch authorities, the gunmen said:

"People of Holland, we are not murderers but we are prepared to fight for our countrty and to kill again for the future of our country and independence and also be killed."

Dutch authorities have repeatedly said they cannot meet the hijackers' demands since they have killed two men.

After the latest shooting, the gunmen called the mediator on a field telephone and repeated their demands for a bus to Schiphol airport outside Amsterdam and a plane to fly them to an undisclosed destination. They also asked for medical supplies, lanterns and batteries as well as more food and drink.

Most South Moluccans living in the Netherlands have remained largely outside Dutch life and have nurtured the dream of a national homeland. Their hopes have received no outside support, and in recent years frustrated young militants have turned increasingly to terrorism.

Extremists stormed the Indonesian Embassy residence in the Hague during a 1970 visit by President Suharto, where they took eight hostages and killed a policeman.

Last year South Moluccan militants were accused of setting fire to an Indonesian airline offices, of blocking rail traffic and stealing arms from the army.

In December 1974, extremists fought a pitched battle with police in the Hague and stormed the Peace Palace housing the International Court of Justice. Last spring, a group of South Moluccans were jailed after an abortive plot to kidnap Holland's Queen Juliana.

TRADING QUIPS . . . Sonny and Cher announce reunion.

Sonny And Cher Back Together

Hollywood (UPI) — Sonny and Cher, who failed to attain success in separate show business careers following their estrangement and divorce, said Thursday they are getting back together next year in a new television variety show.

"We have been thinking about getting back together on television for a long time;" Cher, 29, told a champagne news conference in the Champagne Room of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

Bono, 38, and Cher, who were divorced earlier this year, traded quips with the news media while announcing they will return to television in the "The Sonny and Cher Show" at 8 p.m. Sundays on CBS, beginning Feb. 1.

"I enjoyed the first year of doing my show alone," Cher said.

"Maybe YOU did!" Sonny said.

"I know, I saw your show," Cher snapped back.

They stressed that the reunion was solely for business purposes and that remarriage was not in their future. They said they also hope to settle various law suits filed against each other following their breakup and divorce.

"One of the reasons we have gone back together is to work out our mutual law suits," Bono said. "We both are confident they will be settled."

Sonny and Cher said the new show will have an entirely different format from the "Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour" which left the air during the 1973-74 season.

Their 6-year-old daughter, Chastity, will appear in the new series as she did in the other show, they said.

The Bonos were married Oct. 27, 1964, and were divorced last June 27. Three days later, she married rock singer Gregg Allman but filed for divorce nine days later. She and Allman later reunited but Allman filed for divorce in Macon, Ga., last month.

Student Deaths Thought Rightist Revenge

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — Nine foreign students were shot and killed in mounting political violence in Argentina Thursday. They apparently executed by rightwing death squads in retaliation for the leftist murder of a former federal police chief and his wife.

The bodies of the nine young men, found along two dirt roads south of Cordoba, were identified as Bolivian and Peruvian students who had been seized at a boarding house in the city, 440 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, the news agency Noticias Argentinas reported.

They were abducted only a few hours after leftist terrorists ambushed and killed retired army Gen. Jorge Caceres Monie and his wife Beatriz near Parana, 310 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

There was no indication why the Bolivian and Peruvian students were chosen for the retaliation, but their killing followed the pattern of right-wing executions of suspected leftists.

Police sources said the nine victims had their hands tied and were blindfolded, according to Noticias Argentinas. One had four bullet wounds in the chest, while each of the others had been shot once at the base of the neck, the report said.

Twenty-seven persons have died in Argentina's bloody internal struggle between leftists and rightists in the last four days and 647 during the year.

President Isabel Peron, hampered by illness, division within her political party and investigations of alleged government corruption, has been unable to halt the killing.

Mrs. Peron called a meeting of the National Defense Council including the army, navy and air force commanders Thursday night, after expressing sympathy through the defense minister for the death of Caceres Monie.

Caceres Monie, 58, served as federal police chief from 1970 to 1972. He had also been commander of the 2nd Army Corps and chief of the border patrol.

He and his wife were in their pickup truck crossing a small river on aferry near Parana when leftist gunmen opened fire on them.

Island Extremists Wage Twin Terror Actions In Holland

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — South Moluccan extremists waged twin terror actions in Holland on Thursday in their struggle for an East Indies homeland.

They seized the Indonesian consulate in Amsterdam with 21 children and at least 15 other hostages. Ninety miles to the north, comrades holding a hijacked train since Tuesday led one of their 38 hostages to the door and shot him.

The extremists are from among 40,000 natives of the South Molucca Islands of Indonesia who fled or were expelled to the Netherlands since an abortive uprising against Jakarta rule in 1950, the year after the Dutch granted independence to Indonesia.

In a typed message from the Beilen gunmen relayed by a mediator, the Moluccans said, "We are doing this because the people in the train and the Dutch people did not approach the Dutch government 25 years ago when great injustice was done to our people." The statement was signed: "Free South Moluccan Youth."

But The Netherlands cannot grant them a homeland now and there was no realistic expectation that Indonesia would.

Dutch Premier Joop den Uyl said the consulate occupation in Amsterdam and the train hijacking in Beilen 90 miles to the north were connected. He called it a "horrible situation" and the propects "very somber."

Officials said a large group of South Moluccans was observed moving toward Beilen from Assen, a town 10 miles to the north where many South Moluccans live. Authorities said the purpose of the move was not known.

Authorities gave these accounts of the two sieges:

In Amsterdam, six South Moluccans armed with a carbine, pistol and knives stormed the Indonesian consulate building at midday.

The building also houses an Indonesian school and a travel agency, and the gunmen herded 21 children and the patrons of the agency to an upper floor.

In all, the gunmen were believed to hold between 50 and 60 hostages in the consulate building.

Four consulate staffers escaped by climbing down a rope. All were hospitalized; one was wounded by rebel gunfire and the three others were injured in the escape. Three other staffers inside the consulate were believed wounded in the initial burst of gunfire.

The rebels hoisted the red, white and green flag of their "Republic of the Moluccas" over the consulate as police and armed vehicles quickly cordoned the building off.

Police delivered food, including two large crates of milk to the occupied consulate in early evening. Officers said that the gunman asked for the Rev. S. Metiary to serve as mediator. The South Moluccan clergyman had mediated in Beilen the previous day.

In Beilen, the five gunmen holding more than three dozen hostages in a stranded train shot another one of their captives during a lull in negotiations. They threatened to shoot the rest of the hostages one by one if their demands were not met.

The man's body fell beside the tracks and it was unknown whether he was dead or alive. He lay beside the bodies of the engineer and another man who were killed when the rebels first seized the train.

There were about 65 people aboard the train when the hijackers seized it. Twenty-five were released or escaped Tuesday and Wednesday. Officials said the train's heating remained on and the hostages were protected from the strong, cold wind outside.

In the typed letter released by Dutch authorities, the gunmen said:

"People of Holland, we are not murderers but we are prepared to fight for our countrty and to kill again for the future of our country and independence and also be killed."

Dutch authorities have repeatedly said they cannot meet the hijackers' demands since they have killed two men.

After the latest shooting, the gunmen called the mediator on a field telephone and repeated their demands for a bus to Schiphol airport outside Amsterdam and a plane to fly them to an undisclosed destination. They also asked for medical supplies, lanterns and batteries as well as more food and drink.

Most South Moluccans living in the Netherlands have remained largely outside Dutch life and have nurtured the dream of a national homeland. Their hopes have received no outside support, and in recent years frustrated young militants have turned increasingly to terrorism.

Extremists stormed the Indonesian Embassy residence in the Hague during a 1970 visit by President Suharto, where they took eight hostages and killed a policeman.

Last year South Moluccan militants were accused of setting fire to an Indonesian airline offices, of blocking rail traffic and stealing arms from the army.

In December 1974, extremists fought a pitched battle with police in the Hague and stormed the Peace Palace housing the International Court of Justice. Last spring, a group of South Moluccans were jailed after an abortive plot to kidnap Holland's Queen Juliana.

Student Deaths Thought Rightist Revenge

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — Nine foreign students were shot and killed in mounting political violence in Argentina Thursday. They apparently executed by rightwing death squads in retaliation for the leftist murder of a former federal police chief and his wife.

The bodies of the nine young men, found along two dirt roads south of Cordoba, were identified as Bolivian and Peruvian students who had been seized at a boarding house in the city, 440 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, the news agency Noticias Argentinas reported.

They were abducted only a few hours after leftist terrorists ambushed and killed retired army Gen. Jorge Caceres Monie and his wife Beatriz near Parana, 310 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

There was no indication why the Bolivian and Peruvian students were chosen for the retaliation, but their killing followed the pattern of right-wing executions of suspected leftists.

Police sources said the nine victims had their hands tied and were blindfolded, according to Noticias Argentinas. One had four bullet wounds in the chest, while each of the others had been shot once at the base of the neck, the report said.

Twenty-seven persons have died in Argentina's bloody internal struggle between leftists and rightists in the last four days and 647 during the year.

President Isabel Peron, hampered by illness, division within her political party and investigations of alleged government corruption, has been unable to halt the killing.

Mrs. Peron called a meeting of the National Defense Council including the army, navy and air force commanders Thursday night, after expressing sympathy through the defense minister for the death of Caceres Monie.

Caceres Monie, 58, served as federal police chief from 1970 to 1972. He had also been commander of the 2nd Army Corps and chief of the border patrol.

He and his wife were in their pickup truck crossing a small river on aferry near Parana when leftist gunmen opened fire on them.

TRADING QUIPS . . . Sonny and Cher announce reunion.

Sonny And Cher Back Together

Hollywood (UPI) — Sonny and Cher, who failed to attain success in separate show business careers following their estrangement and divorce, said Thursday they are getting back together next year in a new television variety show.

"We have been thinking about getting back together on television for a long time;" Cher, 29, told a champagne news conference in the Champagne Room of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

Bono, 38, and Cher, who were divorced earlier this year, traded quips with the news media while announcing they will return to television in the "The Sonny and Cher Show" at 8 p.m. Sundays on CBS, beginning Feb. 1.

"I enjoyed the first year of doing my show alone," Cher said.

"Maybe YOU did!" Sonny said.

"I know, I saw your show," Cher snapped back.

They stressed that the reunion was solely for business purposes and that remarriage was not in their future. They said they also hope to settle various law suits filed against each other following their breakup and divorce.

"One of the reasons we have gone back together is to work out our mutual law suits," Bono said. "We both are confident they will be settled."

Sonny and Cher said the new show will have an entirely different format from the "Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour" which left the air during the 1973-74 season.

Their 6-year-old daughter, Chastity, will appear in the new series as she did in the other show, they said.

The Bonos were married Oct. 27, 1964, and were divorced last June 27. Three days later, she married rock singer Gregg Allman but filed for divorce nine days later. She and Allman later reunited but Allman filed for divorce in Macon, Ga., last month.

U.S. And U.N.

By RALPH DE TOLEDANO

WASHINGTON — For the first time in its history, the United Nations is being held in almost universal disrepute on Capitol Hill. Even the radicals in the House, who share the left-wing distaste for Israel, murmured in dismay or remained silent at the recent effort by the United Nations to make anti-Semitism a part of the international code.

But did the speeches and the resolutions mean anything more, in practical terms, than the denunciatory statement by Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan on the U.N. resolution equating Zionism with racism that an "abomination" had been given the "appearance of international sanction."

Moynihan could say of the "great evil" that has been "loosed on the world" that the United States "does not acknowledge, will not abide by, will never acquiesce in this infamous act." But this is little more than rhetoric. The United States already acquiesced by its participation in the vote and by its continued presence in the General Assembly.

President Ford, instead of letting the United Nations simmer for awhile over threats of American withdrawal, rushed to reassure all and sundry that we would do no such thing.

It is perhaps tragic that the current outrage over the U.N. should have been precipitated by an outburst against the Jews, though it has its ironies.

The Soviet Union, which gave encouragement, has long carried out racist policies against its Jewish, Christian and Moslem populations. And it is still an Arab tenet that the Moslem who kills a Christian wins automatic admission to Paradise.

But long before the "day of infamy" of which Moynihan spoke had descended on the U.N. a long catalogue of its depredations and depravities could have been drawn up. Long before the vote, it was abundantly clear that the U.N. was no international forum but the propagandistic tool of the Communist-Arab-African bloc. As such, it has increased the tensions which can lead to war, deliberately making of the U.N. Charter a scrap of toilet tissue.

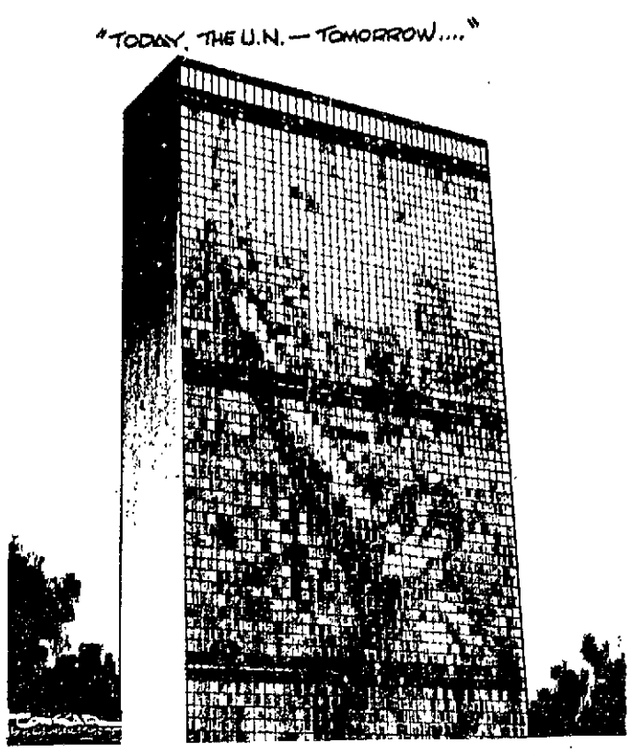
But when the tom-toms are being beaten, the United States is always the last to get the message.

At the very least, Congress should refuse to appropriate the half-billion a year which goes to the U.N. and its various agencies. This country can no longer afford such irresponsible and foolish luxuries.



But beyond this, the question should be raised in Congress, since neither President Ford nor Secretary of State Henry Kissinger have the courage to do so, of the legality of American membership in an organization which is avowedly racist. This runs counter to the Constitution. A case can easily be made that taxpayer dollars are being used to propagate religious bigotry and to encourage genocide. It would be interesting to see how the Supreme Court would handle such a suit.

It might have been interesting, too, if Mayor Abraham Beame had announced that New York City would no longer spend the millions of dollars that come out of its pocket to protect the skins of U.N. delegates. Or that the diplomatic cars which flagrantly and repeatedly violate New York's traffic laws would be impounded and sold.

The President and Kissinger are, of course, counseling us to turn the other cheek. This piece of piety might have some validity had the United States not been repeatedly buffeted right and left by the United Nations and its agencies.

"Get the U.S. out of the U.N. and the U.N. out of the U.S." was once considered an extremist slogan. But it sounds better and better to more and more Americans. A move in that direction, coupled to a declaration that there would be no foreign aid for the U.N.'s bigots would have the so-called Third World tumbling all over itself to backtrack.

Little Whoopers Are Good News

It may not make the Top Ten News Stories of the Year list, but it is good news, nevertheless.

The whooping crane, which has perched on the edge of extinction for decades, is slowly gaining in numbers. In fact, the flock's population has reached its highest level since people started counting whoopers officially.

Thus 12 and maybe 13 young whooping cranes have been counted in the wild (there is a captive flock in Maryland). This is the highest number of juveniles to fly south since population counts on the birds were begun in 1937. At that time the total population of whoopers was placed at 14 birds. Last year, 48 adults and one juvenile were counted at Aransas.

Last spring, the whoopers, migrating to their summer home in Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada, experienced a potentially nasty brush with avian cholera when small groups of them stopped for rest near infected lagoons at the Sacramento refuge near Wilcox, here in Nebraska. That epidemic killed thousands of duck, geese and crow.

Wildlife officials used uncommon techniques to scare the whoopers away from the infected area and apparently efforts were successful. Although game biologists from two nations stood ready over the summer to treat sick whooping cranes if they should be spotted in the remote Canadian wilderness, the flock apparently escaped ravaging by the disease.

In the meantime, wildlife specialists seeking to reinvigorate the species established a new flock by placing whooper eggs in the nests of sandhill cranes summering in Idaho. Apparently that experiment has worked. The four and maybe five whooper juveniles now in New Mexico with their foster parents are the proof.

Is all this worth it? Again, we think it is.

Once gone, they never return. When a creature like the whooping crane — or any number of other endangered species — becomes extinct, the chain looses a connecting link; the ecological balance is tilted just a little bit more and one day the consequences of indifference to the balance could come crashing down on man.

Swing Toward Acceptance

The legislative hearings on whether or not the state should accept the Interstate 80 sculpture pieces so far seem to be much more calm than had been anticipated.

Granted, the "geysers of controversy" of which the sponsors spoke spewed forth for a long time after the ten artists were chosen. And some of those who oppose the designs of the modern sculptures and the plan to string them out along Interstate reststops as part of the Bicentennial observance are not about to roll over and play dead. They will be heard from again.

But we are among those who sense a rational spirit pervading the state. Many people are coming to grips with something different and are beginning to see the values in it. Those who have supported the unique Bicentennial project from the outset can be somewhat relieved and gratified.

The Kearney Daily Hub expressed our sentiments in a recent editorial when the writer said "we believe Nebraskans will accept these sculptures because of the uniqueness of the idea. We Nebraskans after all accepted some mighty unique innovations when we built our state capitol building in a design which has won worldwide fame, and in adopting a Unicameral system of government which others have not found courage to copy. Those who dare to be different from the common mold are those who open the door to greatness."

Parenthetically, the issue would be much less emotional if some people would quit trying to draw artificial distinctions between Nebraskans, such as "common people don't relate to the designs while educated people do."

We're all common people. Some have different perceptions than others; some are more tolerant or open and visionary and able to take the long view.

The common people of Nebraska have accepted a lot of uniqueness, as the Kearney editor said. It just takes a little time for some to get used to the idea.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Food And World Population

WASHINGTON — Out in Iowa they are harvesting a record corn crop. I talked with those who are working the old home place and they spoke of as much as 200 bushels to the acre. That is phenomenally high and probably exaggerated, but it reflects the mood of boom-time rewards.

It is part of the bounty of the American earth. That bounty is helping to feed in one degree or another three-fourths of the world's peoples. With at least 100 nations, many of them newly developing nations in food deficit, the United States and Canada are almost the sole sources to hold off hunger and, with growing hunger, a tide of disease and political unrest.

Soberly and yet with the drama evident enough, the story of the North American bread basket is told by Lester R. Brown, an authority on the economics of food and scarcity, through his Worldwatch Institute.

The scarcity is directly related to the soaring rates of population increase and it will grow steadily more acute, Brown says in his 43-page pamphlet, unless the rate of increase is brought down.

Mexico is a striking example. As late as 1971, Mexico exported a small surplus. Today Mexico is importing one-fifth of its grain needs. A population increase that may be as high as 3.5%, perhaps the highest in the world, is the reason.

In the Philippines, the Green Revolution, with the miracle seeds, made it possible to end a half century of dependence on imported rice and become a net exporter during the late '60s. Today the Philippines is again importing rice on a large scale as the population soars.

Besides being dependent for at least nine-tenths of its oil from foreign sources, Japan is the world's largest grain importer, buying more than any other two countries combined.

This year Japan will import nearly 20 million tons, making it more dependent on imports than its own production. The government is upgrading diets for a population equal to nearly half that of North America squeezed into an area smaller than California.

The Soviet Union has become one of the largest importers of grain. Brown suggests that this is likely to continue and even to increase as the Russians have had so little success with their own agricultural efforts and as they respond to consumer demand for more and better food.

On top of all this, the oil-producing countries of the Middle East, with their great new wealth, have expanded their imports. As Brown points out, not only is there a sharp increase in purchasing power, but the 13 OPEC countries have a population of 268 million nearly half of which is in Indonesia.

He proposes that Canada and the United States come together to fix ground rules for access to North American food supplies. This, he says, would alert governments around the world, forcing them to confront the deterioration in the world food supply during the '70s. Canada through its Wheat Board exercises far more control over grain exports than does the United States.

The alternative could be famine and the lifeboat ethic set forth by Prof. Garrett Hardin. Under this concept, the grain-exporting nations, Canada and the United States, with small amounts from Australia and New Zealand, would have to make a ruthless choice about who is to stay in the lifeboat and who is to be sacrificed.

The agricultural boom is having some remarkable results. A recent visitor to my home state of Iowa reported an extraordinary transaction. A 2,000-acre farm in Kossuth County was sold for $3 million. The purchaser was a wealthy German. Other Europeans are said to be scouting midwestern land as a hedge against inflation and a source of grain in a hungry world. Even marginal land is said to be bringing up to $1,000 an acre.

The pressure on food prices here at home is obvious, as taxes on such whopping values go up. Brown and other specialists see little or no possibility that food prices will drop. The trend for the foreseeable future is in the other direction. So when we get to the checkout counter we will know the cost of helping to feed half the world.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Otis Pike, Newly Created Blowsoft

WASHINGTON — A blowsoft is a low-key blowhard. He does not get all red in the face, or expostulate angrily, or wave his arms; he simply takes a wrongheaded position and stands there in dignity as the ground erodes under him.

Otis Pike, a representative from New York with a reputation for good sense, has allowed his desire to become a U.S. senator to transform him into a blowsoft.

As chairman of the House committee investigating intelligence abuses, Pike had a unique opportunity to shine in comparison to Senate competition — the Church committee — which Wednesday, under much prodding, and, with Senator Church discreetly absent, produced Lyndon Johnson's FBI fingerman, Cartha DeLoach, and former attorneys general Nicholas Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark. (Even under cream-puff questioning, Katzenbach displayed a forgettery rivaling Sally Harmony's — he just did not remember putting his initials on all those terrible documents.)

If he wished, Congressman Pike could have exposed the first — and worst — White House abuse of the Internal Revenue Service by publicly examining Kennedy hatchetman Carmine Bellino, who appeared at the IRS only six days after President Kennedy's inauguration with a list of enemies to investigate.

Or the intrepid House committee chairman could have called to the stand Bill Moyers and Walter Jenkins, the LBJ aides who passed the orders and received the reports on the FBI's illegal political wiretapping and bugging of the Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1964. (Moyers' moral denunciations of Nixon in his Newsweek column now have a special poignance.)

Pike might have summoned Marvin Watson, top LBJ political operative now hitting the nail on the head for Dr. Armand Hammer, to look into his "Plumbers" operation, which the Church committee seems to be glossing over.

Or he might ask aides to Robert Kennedy about the precedent-setting wiretapping of Hanson Baldwin of The New York Times and Lloyd Norman of Newsweek in 1961.

Or Pike might even go so far as to call John Stewart, until recently the director of communications of the Democratic National Committee, about attempts reportedly made by Democratic lawyers to impede an FBI investigation in the prior knowledge Stewart might have had about the Watergate break-in. (Fat chance of Pike's calling him: Stewart now works for Ted Kennedy's energy subcommittee.)

But Pike is pursuing none of the above. Instead, he seeks the approbation of Democrats by leading the charge to cite Henry Kissinger for contempt of Congress.

Secretary Kissinger does not frequently find a defender in this space, and he contributed to the administration's predicament by foolishly withholding information on SALT violations to which the Congress was clearly entitled. But the attempt to use the contempt power of Congress to force any individual in the administration to disobey a presidential order is a basic violation of the principle of the separation of powers.

Because that principle may have been used to conceal evidence of lawbreaking in the Kennedy-Johnson-Nixon years does not mean the principle does not exist. President Ford has decided that certain recommendations on covert intelligence actions should remain within the executive branch. This decision should be subject to normal, not abnormal, congressional coercion.

The Congress has constitutional, traditional pressures it can apply on the presidency, ranging from withholding appropriations to threatening impeachment. The legislative branch does not need, and ought not to have, the intercession of the judicial branch to settle routing disputes with the executive branch.

If the Congress votes a contempt action against Kissinger — or Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton, in a similar situation — obviously the local U.S. attorney could not carry the case to court, in conflict with the rest of the Justice Department. A congressional doorkeeper could be sent to make the arrest, or a court could be asked to send an agent of its own — but is that the kind of institutional clash the Congress wants?

Of course not: For one branch to ask another to hold the third branch in contempt is to use a hydrogen bomb in a situation where rifles and mortars would do.

To make such a threat idly is to show disrespect for the system; to actually take a contempt charge to court would substantially weaken congressional power (if the case were lost) or destroy executive power (if, as is most unlikely, Congress' case were won.)

Gray areas are painted gray for a good reason: Certain matters of power between branches are best left undecided, to be worked out on the basis of mutual respect, shrewd trading, human jockeying, and countervailing pressures. May the Constitution preserve us from tidy men, determined to paint everything black and white; a system of checks and balances loses when one branch "wins."

The decline of Kissinger, which will accelerate if Richard Helms becomes a grand jury target, is not sped by Pike's overkill. His contempt threat is idle, the threat of a blowsoft; by using it to aggrandize himself in headlines, Pike joins that little group of wilful men who only make our government helpless and contemptible.

The Case Against Indiscriminate Street-Widening

Broad Minds, Not Wide Streets

Lincoln, Neb.

According to a Dec. 2 report on planners, by Lynn Zerschling, "Local planners have concluded that the automobile is here to stay."

I remember when planners thought the horse and buggy were here to stay. The assumption that the automobile is here to stay, far too often, is used as an excuse to widen streets to the detriment of health and home. There are many plans on the drawing board which will make the automobile obsolete for city travel. Shortage of oil may hasten the day when these plans will be implemented.

I think any widening of streets should be done with moderation so as not to damage adjacent homes or the health of the people. There can be little excuse for four-lane streets in residential neighborhoods. Two-lane arterials 26 to 38 feet wide will not destroy the neighborhoods and will do the job.

The present policy of permitting land developers to offset their streets, make narrow streets, and put a lot of curves in the streets so as to prevent through traffic and to block off through streets carefully is not planning for the future if we are to accept the premise that the automobile is here to stay.

The wide-street advocates usually live on off-set curving streets, circles, drives and other protective additions. The result is that they can see nothing but wider streets for other people. They feel safe and protected from heavy traffic. The wide-street boys have had their day. Now it is time for new blood and broad minds in the planning department.

Value Of Advertising

Columbus, Neb.

It is popular for legislators and self-appointed "consumer advocates" to criticize utility advertising. Some states have gone so far as to prohibit certain types of utility advertising, such as the "promotional" variety used to promote the use and sale of electricity. Today the type of advertising being permitted, and even encouraged in some states, is the "institutional" type. Most lawmakers have termed this as "advertising designed to inform the consumer of rates, conditions of service, of benefits and savings available to the consumer, of proper safety precautions, emergency procedures, and the like."

From time to time utilities are being harshly questioned on the value of advertising or worse, forced to yield to local pressures to halt advertising.

I feel that utilities have an obligation to communicate openly and regularly with their customers. And when the utility is publicly owned, like all electric utilities in Nebraska, I think the "obligation" becomes a "responsibility."

Contrary to popular opinion, the word "advertising" is not synonymous with the word "sell." Advertising is simply the purchase of space (or time, in the case of broadcast media) to present a message. Any message. True, most businesses using advertising are attempting to sell more products, but advertising is actually just a communications tool, one that is becoming more and more important to electric utilities.

The news release is also a useful communications tool, but it is at the mercy of a news editor or announcer. They may cut your story. They may add opposing opinions and comments. They may choose to hold your story and not run it when you need it. Or they may choose not to use your news story, at all.

But an advertisement will run just as you want it, when you want it. Too, advertisements can usually be more effective in gaining the attention of the reader, through the use of pictures, drawings, large headlines, or the use of liberal "white space" around the copy in your ad.

"But advertising costs so much." Not really. Think of what it would cost to send a letter every time you had information you wanted your 97,828 customers to have. Even at the bulk mailing rate of seven cents each, the cost would be prohibitive. For printing, addressing and mailing, an average letter would cost $11,555 to reach each retail customer.

An average-size ad to cover the same subject would cost an average of $37.20 each to run in 68 retail town newspapers.

The national average per residential customer for utility advertising traditionally has been about $2.25. Nebraska Public Power this year will spend about .76 cents per residential customer as a means of communications to keep our customers informed about their publicly owned electric utility.

Tough Lesson, Tough Menu

Lincoln, Neb.

It appears that Nebraska's football team and coaching staff can do no wrong. They've been criticizing Bear Bryant and his team the past several weeks, when maybe they and the Cornhusker fans should take a look at their own actions and what kind of character is being accepted and developed at Nebraska.

I believe Nebraska character ranks right along with Alabama's, as proven by their actions of the past few weeks.

Why did Nebraska refuse the first invitation to the Fiesta Bowl if they lost to Oklahoma? According to Tom Osborne's phony double-talk, they didn't want anything distracting their thoughts from beating Oklahoma and going to the Orange Bowl. If that is the case, why did they spend all week crying about the Sugar Bowl's not offering them an invitation?

It appears that they wanted the Sugar Bowl as an alternate if they lost, but when it came to the Fiesta Bowl, they were too big and proud for it.

Oklahoma was willing to accept the Fiesta Bowl invitation, and still had the confidence to beat Nebraska and go to the Orange Bowl, as proven by the game. They didn't make any big thing out of it. Being defending national champs, they weren't too proud.

Nebraska, on the other hand, with no consideration or respect for the Fiesta Bowl, had to show how much confidence they had and what big shots they were, and refuse it. Then Tom Osborne accepted this and tried to cover it up.

Nebraska can be thankful Oklahoma handled this situation in a more considerate manner. If they had refused the Fiesta Bowl invitation as Nebraska did, the Fiesta Bowl would have had nothing to wait for. Nebraska might not have had another chance to go.

It appears that Nebraska football coaches, players and fans have a lot to learn about being No. One. They can learn a lot from Oklahoma and Barry Switzer. Oklahoma has had a lot more football success and has developed a lot of character with it.

U.S. And U.N.

By RALPH DE TOLEDANO

WASHINGTON — For the first time in its history, the United Nations is being held in almost universal disrepute on Capitol Hill. Even the radicals in the House, who share the left-wing distaste for Israel, murmured in dismay or remained silent at the recent effort by the United Nations to make anti-Semitism a part of the international code.

But did the speeches and the resolutions mean anything more, in practical terms, than the denunciatory statement by Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan on the U.N. resolution equating Zionism with racism that an "abomination" had been given the "appearance of international sanction."

Moynihan could say of the "great evil" that has been "loosed on the world" that the United States "does not acknowledge, will not abide by, will never acquiesce in this infamous act." But this is little more than rhetoric. The United States already acquiesced by its participation in the vote and by its continued presence in the General Assembly.

President Ford, instead of letting the United Nations simmer for awhile over threats of American withdrawal, rushed to reassure all and sundry that we would do no such thing.

It is perhaps tragic that the current outrage over the U.N. should have been precipitated by an outburst against the Jews, though it has its ironies.

The Soviet Union, which gave encouragement, has long carried out racist policies against its Jewish, Christian and Moslem populations. And it is still an Arab tenet that the Moslem who kills a Christian wins automatic admission to Paradise.

But long before the "day of infamy" of which Moynihan spoke had descended on the U.N. a long catalogue of its depredations and depravities could have been drawn up. Long before the vote, it was abundantly clear that the U.N. was no international forum but the propagandistic tool of the Communist-Arab-African bloc. As such, it has increased the tensions which can lead to war, deliberately making of the U.N. Charter a scrap of toilet tissue.

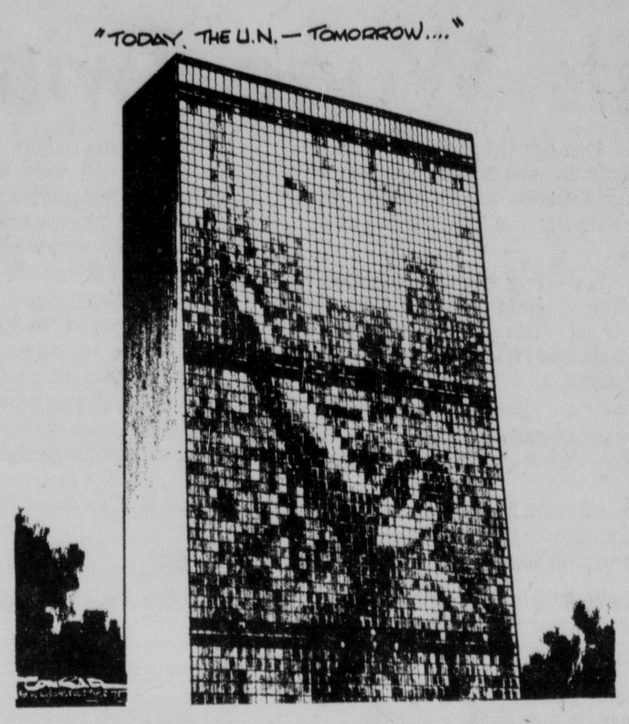
But when the tom-toms are being beaten, the United States is always the last to get the message.

At the very least, Congress should refuse to appropriate the half-billion a year which goes to the U.N. and its various agencies. This country can no longer afford such irresponsible and foolish luxuries.



But beyond this, the question should be raised in Congress, since neither President Ford nor Secretary of State Henry Kissinger have the courage to do so, of the legality of American membership in an organization which is avowedly racist. This runs counter to the Constitution. A case can easily be made that taxpayer dollars are being used to propagate religious bigotry and to encourage genocide. It would be interesting to see how the Supreme Court would handle such a suit.

It might have been interesting, too, if Mayor Abraham Beame had announced that New York City would no longer spend the millions of dollars that come out of its pocket to protect the skins of U.N. delegates. Or that the diplomatic cars which flagrantly and repeatedly violate New York's traffic laws would be impounded and sold.

The President and Kissinger are, of course, counseling us to turn the other cheek. This piece of piety might have some validity had the United States not been repeatedly buffeted right and left by the United Nations and its agencies.

"Get the U.S. out of the U.N. and the U.N. out of the U.S." was once considered an extremist slogan. But it sounds better and better to more and more Americans. A move in that direction, coupled to a declaration that there would be no foreign aid for the U.N.'s bigots would have the so-called Third World tumbling all over itself to backtrack.

Little Whoopers Are Good News

It may not make the Top Ten News Stories of the Year list, but it is good news, nevertheless.

The whooping crane, which has perched on the edge of extinction for decades, is slowly gaining in numbers. In fact, the flock's population has reached its highest level since people started counting whoopers officially.

Thus 12 and maybe 13 young whooping cranes have been counted in the wild (there is a captive flock in Maryland). This is the highest number of juveniles to fly south since population counts on the birds were begun in 1937. At that time the total population of whoopers was placed at 14 birds. Last year, 48 adults and one juvenile were counted at Aransas.

Last spring, the whoopers, migrating to their summer home in Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada, experienced a potentially nasty brush with avian cholera when small groups of them stopped for rest near infected lagoons at the Sacramento refuge near Wilcox, here in Nebraska. That epidemic killed thousands of duck, geese and crow.

Wildlife officials used uncommon techniques to scare the whoopers away from the infected area and apparently efforts were successful. Although game biologists from two nations stood ready over the summer to treat sick whooping cranes if they should be spotted in the remote Canadian wilderness, the flock apparently escaped ravaging by the disease.

In the meantime, wildlife specialists seeking to reinvigorate the species established a new flock by placing whooper eggs in the nests of sandhill cranes summering in Idaho. Apparently that experiment has worked. The four and maybe five whooper juveniles now in New Mexico with their foster parents are the proof.

Is all this worth it? Again, we think it is.

Once gone, they never return. When a creature like the whooping crane — or any number of other endangered species — becomes extinct, the chain looses a connecting link; the ecological balance is tilted just a little bit more and one day the consequences of indifference to the balance could come crashing down on man.

Swing Toward Acceptance

The legislative hearings on whether or not the state should accept the Interstate 80 sculpture pieces so far seem to be much more calm than had been anticipated.

Granted, the "geysers of controversy" of which the sponsors spoke spewed forth for a long time after the ten artists were chosen. And some of those who oppose the designs of the modern sculptures and the plan to string them out along Interstate reststops as part of the Bicentennial observance are not about to roll over and play dead. They will be heard from again.

But we are among those who sense a rational spirit pervading the state. Many people are coming to grips with something different and are beginning to see the values in it. Those who have supported the unique Bicentennial project from the outset can be somewhat relieved and gratified.

The Kearney Daily Hub expressed our sentiments in a recent editorial when the writer said "we believe Nebraskans will accept these sculptures because of the uniqueness of the idea. We Nebraskans after all accepted some mighty unique innovations when we built our state capitol building in a design which has won worldwide fame, and in adopting a Unicameral system of government which others have not found courage to copy. Those who dare to be different from the common mold are those who open the door to greatness."

Parenthetically, the issue would be much less emotional if some people would quit trying to draw artificial distinctions between Nebraskans, such as "common people don't relate to the designs while educated people do."

We're all common people. Some have different perceptions than others; some are more tolerant or open and visionary and able to take the long view.

The common people of Nebraska have accepted a lot of uniqueness, as the Kearney editor said. It just takes a little time for some to get used to the idea.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Food And World Population

WASHINGTON — Out in Iowa they are harvesting a record corn crop. I talked with those who are working the old home place and they spoke of as much as 200 bushels to the acre. That is phenomenally high and probably exaggerated, but it reflects the mood of boom-time rewards.

It is part of the bounty of the American earth. That bounty is helping to feed in one degree or another three-fourths of the world's peoples. With at least 100 nations, many of them newly developing nations in food deficit, the United States and Canada are almost the sole sources to hold off hunger and, with growing hunger, a tide of disease and political unrest.

Soberly and yet with the drama evident enough, the story of the North American bread basket is told by Lester R. Brown, an authority on the economics of food and scarcity, through his Worldwatch Institute.

The scarcity is directly related to the soaring rates of population increase and it will grow steadily more acute, Brown says in his 43-page pamphlet, unless the rate of increase is brought down.

Mexico is a striking example. As late as 1971, Mexico exported a small surplus. Today Mexico is importing one-fifth of its grain needs. A population increase that may be as high as 3.5%, perhaps the highest in the world, is the reason.

In the Philippines, the Green Revolution, with the miracle seeds, made it possible to end a half century of dependence on imported rice and become a net exporter during the late '60s. Today the Philippines is again importing rice on a large scale as the population soars.

Besides being dependent for at least nine-tenths of its oil from foreign sources, Japan is the world's largest grain importer, buying more than any other two countries combined.

This year Japan will import nearly 20 million tons, making it more dependent on imports than its own production. The government is upgrading diets for a population equal to nearly half that of North America squeezed into an area smaller than California.

The Soviet Union has become one of the largest importers of grain. Brown suggests that this is likely to continue and even to increase as the Russians have had so little success with their own agricultural efforts and as they respond to consumer demand for more and better food.

On top of all this, the oil-producing countries of the Middle East, with their great new wealth, have expanded their imports. As Brown points out, not only is there a sharp increase in purchasing power, but the 13 OPEC countries have a population of 268 million nearly half of which is in Indonesia.

He proposes that Canada and the United States come together to fix ground rules for access to North American food supplies. This, he says, would alert governments around the world, forcing them to confront the deterioration in the world food supply during the '70s. Canada through its Wheat Board exercises far more control over grain exports than does the United States.

The alternative could be famine and the lifeboat ethic set forth by Prof. Garrett Hardin. Under this concept, the grain-exporting nations, Canada and the United States, with small amounts from Australia and New Zealand, would have to make a ruthless choice about who is to stay in the lifeboat and who is to be sacrificed.

The agricultural boom is having some remarkable results. A recent visitor to my home state of Iowa reported an extraordinary transaction. A 2,000-acre farm in Kossuth County was sold for $3 million. The purchaser was a wealthy German. Other Europeans are said to be scouting midwestern land as a hedge against inflation and a source of grain in a hungry world. Even marginal land is said to be bringing up to $1,000 an acre.

The pressure on food prices here at home is obvious, as taxes on such whopping values go up. Brown and other specialists see little or no possibility that food prices will drop. The trend for the foreseeable future is in the other direction. So when we get to the checkout counter we will know the cost of helping to feed half the world.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Otis Pike, Newly Created Blowsoft

WASHINGTON — A blowsoft is a low-key blowhard. He does not get all red in the face, or expostulate angrily, or wave his arms; he simply takes a wrongheaded position and stands there in dignity as the ground erodes under him.

Otis Pike, a representative from New York with a reputation for good sense, has allowed his desire to become a U.S. senator to transform him into a blowsoft.

As chairman of the House committee investigating intelligence abuses, Pike had a unique opportunity to shine in comparison to Senate competition — the Church committee — which Wednesday, under much prodding, and with Senator Church discreetly absent, produced Lyndon Johnson's FBI fingerman, Cartha DeLoach, and former attorneys general Nicholas Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark. (Even under cream-puff questioning, Katzenbach displayed a forgettery rivaling Sally Harmony's — he just did not remember putting his initials on all those terrible documents.)

If he wished, Congressman Pike could have exposed the first — and worst — White House abuse of the Internal Revenue Service by publicly examining Kennedy hatchetman Carmine Bellino, who appeared at the IRS only six days after President Kennedy's inauguration with a list of enemies to investigate.

Or the intrepid House committee chairman could have called to the stand Bill Moyers and Walter Jenkins, the LBJ aides who passed the orders and received the reports on the FBI's illegal political wiretapping and bugging of the Republican and Democratic national conventions in 1964. (Moyers' moral denunciations of Nixon in his Newsweek column now have a special poignance.)

Pike might have summoned Marvin Watson, top LBJ political operative now hitting the nail on the head for Dr. Armand Hammer, to look into his "Plumbers" operation, which the Church committee seems to be glossing over.

Or he might ask aides to Robert Kennedy about the precedent-setting wiretapping of Hanson Baldwin of The New York Times and Lloyd Norman of Newsweek in 1961.

Or Pike might even go so far as to call John Stewart, until recently the director of communications of the Democratic National Committee, about attempts reportedly made by Democratic lawyers to impede an FBI investigation in the prior knowledge Stewart might have had about the Watergate break-in. (Fat chance of Pike's calling him: Stewart now works for Ted Kennedy's energy subcommittee.)

But Pike is pursuing none of the above. Instead, he seeks the approbation of Democrats by leading the charge to cite Henry Kissinger for contempt of Congress.

Secretary Kissinger does not frequently find a defender in this space, and he contributed to the administration's predicament by foolishly withholding information on SALT violations to which the Congress was clearly entitled. But the attempt to use the contempt power of Congress to force any individual in the administration to disobey a presidential order is a basic violation of the principle of the separation of powers.

Because that principle may have been used to conceal evidence of lawbreaking in the Kennedy-Johnson-Nixon years does not mean the principle does not exist. President Ford has decided that certain recommendations on covert intelligence actions should remain within the executive branch. This decision should be subject to normal, not abnormal, congressional coercion.

The Congress has constitutional, traditional pressures it can apply on the presidency, ranging from withholding appropriations to threatening impeachment. The legislative branch does not need, and ought not to have, the intercession of the judicial branch to settle routing disputes with the executive branch.

If the Congress votes a contempt action against Kissinger — or Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton, in a similar situation — obviously the local U.S. attorney could not carry the case to court, in conflict with the rest of the Justice Department. A congressional doorkeeper could be sent to make the arrest, or a court could be asked to send an agent of its own — but is that the kind of institutional clash the Congress wants?

Of course not: For one branch to ask another to hold the third branch in contempt is to use a hydrogen bomb in a situation where rifles and mortars would do.

To make such a threat idly is to show disrespect for the system; to actually take a contempt charge to court would substantially weaken congressional power (if the case were lost) or destroy executive power (if, as is most unlikely, Congress' case were won.)

Gray areas are painted gray for a good reason: Certain matters of power between branches are best left undecided, to be worked out on the basis of mutual respect, shrewd trading, human jockeying, and countervailing pressures. May the Constitution preserve us from tidy men, determined to paint everything black and white; a system of checks and balances loses when one branch "wins."

The decline of Kissinger, which will accelerate if Richard Helms becomes a grand jury target, is not sped by Pike's overkill. His contempt threat is idle, the threat of a blowsoft; by using it to aggrandize himself in headlines, Pike joins that little group of wilful men who only make our government helpless and contemptible.

The Case Against Indiscriminate Street-Widening

Broad Minds, Not Wide Streets

Lincoln, Neb.

According to a Dec. 2 report on planners, by Lynn Zerschling, "Local planners have concluded that the automobile is here to stay."

I remember when planners thought the horse and buggy were here to stay. The assumption that the automobile is here to stay, far too often, is used as an excuse to widen streets to the detriment of health and home. There are many plans on the drawing board which will make the automobile obsolete for city travel. Shortage of oil may hasten the day when these plans will be implemented.

I think any widening of streets should be done with moderation so as not to damage adjacent homes or the health of the people. There can be little excuse for four-lane streets in residential neighborhoods. Two-lane arterials 26 to 38 feet wide will not destroy the neighborhoods and will do the job.

The present policy of permitting land developers to offset their streets, make narrow streets, and put a lot of curves in the streets so as to prevent through traffic and to block off through streets carefully is not planning for the future if we are to accept the premise that the automobile is here to stay.

The wide-street advocates usually live on off-set curving streets, circles, drives and other protective additions. The result is that they can see nothing but wider streets for other people. They feel safe and protected from heavy traffic. The wide-street boys have had their day. Now it is time for new blood and broad minds in the planning department.

Value Of Advertising

Columbus, Neb.

It is popular for legislators and self-appointed "consumer advocates" to criticize utility advertising. Some states have gone so far as to prohibit certain types of utility advertising, such as the "promotional" variety used to promote the use and sale of electricity. Today the type of advertising being permitted, and even encouraged in some states, is the "institutional" type. Most lawmakers have termed this as "advertising designed to inform the consumer of rates, conditions of service, of benefits and savings available to the consumer, of proper safety precautions, emergency procedures, and the like."

From time to time utilities are being harshly questioned on the value of advertising or worse, forced to yield to local pressures to halt advertising.

I feel that utilities have an obligation to communicate openly and regularly with their customers. And when the utility is publicly owned, like all electric utilities in Nebraska, I think the "obligation" becomes a "responsibility."

Contrary to popular opinion, the word "advertising" is not synonymous with the word "sell." Advertising is simply the purchase of space (or time, in the case of broadcast media) to present a message. Any message. True, most businesses using advertising are attempting to sell more products, but advertising is actually just a communications tool, one that is becoming more and more important to electric utilities.

The news release is also a useful communications tool, but it is at the mercy of a news editor or announcer. They may cut your story. They may add opposing opinions and comments. They may choose to hold your story and not run it when you need it. Or they may choose not to use your news story, at all.

But an advertisement will run just as you want it, when you want it. Too, advertisements can usually be more effective in gaining the attention of the reader, through the use of pictures, drawings, large headlines, or the use of liberal "white space" around the copy in your ad.

"But advertising costs so much." Not really. Think of what it would cost to send a letter every time you had information you wanted your 97,828 customers to have. Even at the bulk mailing rate of seven cents each, the cost would be prohibitive. For printing, addressing and mailing, an average letter would cost $11,555 to reach each retail customer.

An average-size ad to cover the same subject would cost an average of $37.20 each to run in 68 retail town newspapers.

The national average per residential customer for utility advertising traditionally has been about $2.25. Nebraska Public Power this year will spend about .76 cents per residential customer as a means of communications to keep our customers informed about their publicly owned electric utility.

Tough Lesson, Tough Menu

Lincoln, Neb.

It appears that Nebraska's football team and coaching staff can do no wrong. They've been criticizing Bear Bryant and his team the past several weeks, when maybe they and the Cornhusker fans should take a look at their own actions and what kind of character is being accepted and developed at Nebraska.

Why did Nebraska refuse the first invitation to the Fiesta Bowl if they lost to Oklahoma? According to Tom Osborne's phony double-talk, they didn't want anything distracting their thoughts from beating Oklahoma and going to the Orange Bowl. $13 Million Spent On Covert Chile Actions

Washington (UPI) — The CIA, with the approval of three presidents and their top advisers, spent more than $13 million on a 10-year "extensive and continuous" undercover campaign to manipulate Chile's politics, a special Senate report said Thursday.

A staff member who briefed reporters on the report characterized Henry A. Kissinger in both roles as secretary of state and special White House adviser, as "the central figure . . . the architect . . . the principal in designing overall policy in Chile" for seven years of the decade of U.S. interference between 1963 and 1973.

"Did the threat to vital U.S. national security interests posed by the presidency of Salvador Allende justify the several major covert attempts to prevent his accession to power?" the report asked, and answered itself:

"Three American presidents and their senior advisers evidently thought so.,'

It said that starting with the administration of John F. Kennedy and running through Lyndon B. Johnson and Nixon, CIA money covertly "financed activities covering a broad spectrum, from simple propaganda manipulation of the press to large-scale support for Chilean political parties, from public opinion polls to direct attempts to foment a military coup."

Half way through the decade of clandestine actions, it said, "The CIA engaged in another special effort, this time at the express request of President Nixon and under the injunction not to inform the Department of State or Defense or the ambassador of the project," the report said.

"The CIA," it said, "attempted directly to foment a military coup in Chile" in 1970 to prevent the election of Allende as South America's first Marxist president. The project failed and Allende was installed as president only to be overthrown and killed in a non-CIA sponsored military coup Sept. 11, 1973.

Committee staff members told reporters, "This is not the end of our investigation of Chile." Although the White House has barred testimony by government officials on Chile, the committee arranged an open session Thursday to hear testimony from Edward M. Korry, ambassador to Chile from 1967 to 1971, and Ralph Dungan, ambassador from 1969 to 1973. Both have left government service.

Meanwhile, CIA Director William Colby said in a speech to the "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth) foreign policy conference Thursday that under some conditions the CIA is justified in attempting quietly to influence political situations in other countries.

"The capability of intelligence quietly to influence foreign situations can — and has — contributed to peace," Colby said.

He indicated that such actions helped postwar Western Europe resist Communist subversion and assisted Latin America in warding off Cuban-sponsored aggression.

The committee, in "preliminary conclusions," said covert action "has been a key element of U.S. foreign policy toward Chile."

Day Sedatives Worthless Maybe Dangerous—Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientific panel reported to the Food and Drug Administration on Thursday that popular daytime sedatives sold without a prescription probably are worthless and may actually be dangerous because they dull the senses.

Four of the seven members of the advisory committee voted, however, to give the makers of "Compoz," "Miles Nervine," "Quiet World" and other calmatives three more years to try to save their $7 million-a-year market.

The other three members wanted an outright ban because of concern that antihistamines in the sedatives may result in "reduced alertness, reduced ability to concentrate and reduced motor coordination, all without any real anti-anxiety benefit." Dr. Karl Rickels of Philadelphia told a news conference.

Wrapping up its three-year study of nonprescription sedatives, nighttime sleep-aids and stimulants, the panel said it could give a complete bill of health to only one of 23 ingredients in the products.

That ingredient is caffeine, equivalent to about one cup of coffee or two bottles of cola drink, in a single tablet of "No-Doz," "Viviran" and "Enerjets" stimulant.

The other ingredients are unsafe and ineffective, or should be subjected to further study if they are to remain on the market, the panel concluded.

The recommendations, if adopted by the FDA as part of its massive review of 17 categories of nonprescription drugs covering 100,000 to 500,000 different brands, would result in reformulation and relabeling of virtually all sedatives, sleep-aids and stimulants.

The Proprietary Association, a trade organization representing most nonprescription drug manufacturers, accused the panel of exhibiting scientific bias by allegedly ignoring evidence submitted by industry.

"The panel's opinions are those of a small group of scientific experts, opinions with which other medical scientists may and, indeed do, disagree," said association president James D. Cope.

He said sleep-aids account for $34 million in annual sales, stimulants $17 million and daytime sedatives $7 million. "All in all, not exactly huge markets," Cope said.

Additional studies recommended in the 308-page report would cost the industry millions of dollars that would be reflected in higher prices to consumers, he added, and removal of nonprescription drugs from the market would force patients to seek expensive treatment from doctors for minor symptoms.

Rickels, professor of psychiatry and pharmacology at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, said the panel was especially critical of the use of bromides and scopolamine compounds in sedatives and sleep-aids "because they are not effective at currently marketed dosages and are not safe at dosages where they would be effective."

"We were especially distressed to note that bromides are still in use when their toxicity is so well known," he said.

Miles Laboratories' "Miles Nervine" and "Nervine Liquid" contain only bromides as active ingredients and would have to be completely reformulated by 1977 if the FDA accepts the recommendations, Food and Drug Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said.

$13 Million Spent On Covert Chile Actions

Washington (UPI) — The CIA, with the approval of three presidents and their top advisers, spent more than $13 million on a 10-year "extensive and continuous" undercover campaign to manipulate Chile's politics, a special Senate report said Thursday.

A staff member who briefed reporters on the report characterized Henry A. Kissinger in both roles as secretary of state and special White House adviser, as "the central figure ... the architect ... the principal in designing overall policy in Chile" for seven years of the decade of U.S. interference between 1963 and 1973.

"Did the threat to vital U.S. national security interests posed by the presidency of Salvador Allende justify the several major covert attempts to prevent his accession to power?" the report asked, and answered itself:

"Three American presidents and their senior advisers evidently thought so.,'

It said that starting with the administration of John F. Kennedy and running through Lyndon B. Johnson and Nixon, CIA money covertly "financed activities covering a broad spectrum, from simple propaganda manipulation of the press to large-scale support for Chilean political parties, from public opinion polls to direct attempts to foment a military coup."

Half way through the decade of clandestine actions, it said, "The CIA engaged in another special effort, this time at the express request of President Nixon and under the injunction not to inform the Department of State or Defense or the ambassador of the project," the report said.

"The CIA," it said, "attempted directly to foment a military coup in Chile" in 1970 to prevent the election of Allende as South America's first Marxist president. The project failed and Allende was installed as president only to be overthrown and killed in a non-CIA sponsored military coup Sept. 11, 1973.

Committee staff members told reporters, "This is not the end of our investigation of Chile." Although the White House has barred testimony by government officials on Chile, the committee arranged an open session Thursday to hear testimony from Edward M. Korry, ambassador to Chile from 1967 to 1971, and Ralph Dungan, ambassador from 1969 to 1973. Both have left government service.

Meanwhile, CIA Director William Colby said in a speech to the "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth) foreign policy conference Thursday that under some conditions the CIA is justified in attempting quietly to influence political situations in other countries.

"The capability of intelligence quietly to influence foreign situations can — and has — contributed to peace," Colby said.

He indicated that such actions helped postwar Western Europe resist Communist subversion and assisted Latin America in warding off Cuban-sponsored aggression.

The committee, in "preliminary conclusions," said covert action "has been a key element of U.S. foreign policy toward Chile."

Day Sedatives Worthless Maybe Dangerous—Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientific panel reported to the Food and Drug Administration on Thursday that popular daytime sedatives sold without a prescription probably are worthless and may actually be dangerous because they dull the senses.

Four of the seven members of the advisory committee voted, however, to give the makers of "Compoz," "Miles Nervine," "Quiet World" and other calmatives three more years to try to save their $7 million-a-year market.

The other three members wanted an outright ban because of concern that antihistamines in the sedatives may result in "reduced alertness, reduced ability to concentrate and reduced motor coordination, all without any real anti-anxiety benefit," Dr. Karl Rickels of Philadelphia told a news conference.

Wrapping up its three-year study of nonprescription sedatives, nighttime sleep-aids and stimulants, the panel said it could give a complete bill of health to only one of 23 ingredients in the products.

That ingredient is caffeine, equivalent to about one cup of coffee or two bottles of cola drink, in a single tablet of "No-Doz," "Viviran" and "Enerjets" stimulant.

The other ingredients are unsafe and ineffective, or should be subjected to further study if they are to remain on the market, the panel concluded.

The recommendations, if adopted by the FDA as part of its massive review of 17 categories of nonprescription drugs covering 100,000 to 500,000 different brands, would result in reformulation and relabeling of virtually all sedatives, sleep-aids and stimulants.

The Proprietary Association, a trade organization representing most nonprescription drug manufacturers, accused the panel of exhibiting scientific bias by allegedly ignoring evidence submitted by industry.

"The panel's opinions are those of a small group of scientific experts, opinions with which other medical scientists may and, indeed do, disagree," said association president James D. Cope.

He said sleep-aids account for $34 million in annual sales, stimulants $17 million and daytime sedatives $7 million. "All in all, not exactly huge markets," Cope said.

Additional studies recommended in the 308-page report would cost the industry millions of dollars that would be reflected in higher prices to consumers, he added, and removal of nonprescription drugs from the market would force patients to seek expensive treatment from doctors for minor symptoms.

Rickels, professor of psychiatry and pharmacology at the University of Pennsylvania Hospital, said the panel was especially critical of the use of bromides and scopolamine compounds in sedatives and sleep-aids "because they are not effective at currently marketed dosages and are not safe at dosages where they would be effective."

"We were especially distressed to note that bromides are still in use when their toxicity is so well known," he said.

Miles Laboratories' "Miles Nervine" and "Nervine Liquid" contain only bromides as active ingredients and would have to be completely reformulated by 1977 if the FDA accepts the recommendations, Food and Drug Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt said.

Omelet Easy To Make

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

You don't have to be a French gourmet to dazzle your friends with a flaming dessert omelet.

This is the opinion of the world's fastest omelet maker who says that "anyone can make an omelet in a blackout."

Howard Helmer, who is the eastern representative for the American Egg Board, shows his audiences how to make an omelet in 40 seconds and oftentimes lets the members of the audience try their culinary skills by preparing their own omelets at the demonstration.

Helmer, who set a new world's omelet-making record last fall in Chicago when he made 236 two-egg cheese omelets in 60 minutes, was in Lincoln this week for the Nebraska Poultry Industries convention.

Rules For Omelets

An omelet is nothing more than a vehicle for some other food" which may serve as a main course or dessert, the egg expert says.

And when you prepare in seconds a dessert omelet right before the eyes of that "gourmet friend (everyone has one)" the gourmet's mouth will gape in amazement.

"Your friend, the gourmet, will say, 'I didn't know you could do that,' " Helmer says, adding that the response should be:

'Sniffs Mogen-David'

The only difference between you and that gourmet friend is that "she thinks she has a more sensitive palate than you or when she uncaps the Mogen-David wine, she sniffs it," Helmer says.

And a Quiche Lorraine can be made in less time than it takes to look up the word in the dictionary.

Helmer says that if the pieshell is made ahead of time, the quiche can be prepared with "one hand behind your back." You need only a basic recipe of four eggs and one cup of cream; and for a cheese and bacon quiche, one cup of cheese and six slices of bacon may be added.

The basic omelet recipe used by Helmer is two eggs, two tablespoons of water and some seasoning.

The rest is whatever you want that omelet vehicle to contain.

'Makings In Refrigerator'

"You have the makings in the refrigerator," he says, noting that you merely fill it and fold it over and turn it out onto the plate.

The most important rule to follow in making an omelet is to use a curve-sided pan which must be very hot before starting to cook the omelet.

Helmer uses a teflon-coated pan over a butane burner with the comment that the omelet experts or French gourmet may say that a teflon-coated pan shouldn't be used "but the egg doesn't know what kind of pan it's in."

For the dessert omelet, Helmer suggests canned sliced peaches, some maraschino cherries, 70-proof brandy and powdered sugar to form a syrup and the addition of some nuts and sour cream before serving.

"Why serve something humdrum when you can put a little romance into your meals!" he asks as he sets the brandy aflame with a "long-handled match."

Will Start 'Nice Fire'

And unless you have 16-foot celings, Helmer says that 70-proof brandy is sufficient to make "a nice fire."

Pointing out that part of his job is to promote the consumption of eggs, Helmer tells his audiences how the high cost of a woman's facial and shampoo can be eliminated for the price of a single egg.

After separating the egg yolk from the white, he dabs the beaten white on women's faces and notes that the yolk can be poured over the head for a real egg shampoo in the shower.

He also demonstrates how egg yolk can be mixed with water and pigments for making paint.

Think Twice Before Buying 'Educational' Toys

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — If you're playing with the idea of educating your child with a Christmas toy, think twice.

Many toys billed as "educational" are overpriced and filled with empty promises.

"When a child sees a big, colorful toy on television or in a store window, he or she lusts for it, and his or her parents often do, too," said Maria Piers, dean of Erikson Institute for Early Education. "But when the child opens the box, he finds it's filled with broken dreams.

"There is never enough cake mix in the baking kit to bake a real cake, nor enough nails in the carpenter's kit to really build something."

So, if you're interested in stimulating your child's mind, specialists believe you can provide better playthings by using a little imagination of your own.

"How simple it is to put toys together if parents really care," Mrs. Piers continued. "For half the money spent on a sewing kit, you can buy many remnants of colorful felt, a big needle, bright yarn and a small scissors.

"And all children I know love to get a small pot or frying pan with a wooden spoon from the hardware store, and then be told they can cook their own egg. That's much less expensive than a toy set of tiny pots and pans."

And all the toys she mentioned served the most important function of a toy — educational or otherwise: "They stimulate the child to do something.

"A toy is of no value at all if a child can't do something besides look at it," she said. "It should stimulate him to do something intellectually or physically."

Intellectual stimulation is best provided by the few really good, simple, well-made toys that focus on basic learning skills and can be used as a playful way to improve the child's schoolwork.

Dr. P. R. Costa, director of child psychiatry at Michael Reese Hospital, pointed out that children must learn some academic skills to get along in society, and if they are lacking in some of those skills, then they must give up some of their play time and use "educational toys and games" to help them.

"But in general a worthwhile toy should be one that enhances creativity, and it doesn't have to be academic," Dr. Costa stressed. "I believe most so-called 'educational toys' are made for parents. They buy them because they think they will improve their child's IQ. And that's something that interests parents, not children."

(Dr. Costa also said that studies show a young child's IQ can be improved up to 30 points with special toys and training. But, he added, 10 years later the child falls right back into the area he would have been in anyway.)

So Dr. Costa agreed with Mrs. Piers that a toy should be fun, and geared to the child's own natural curiosity and exploration.

"Parents should watch their children play and then pick out toys that encourage their real interests," he said. "If he likes animals, buy a game with animals; if she likes cars, buy those. Often, parents get so concerned about buying toys that the neighbors have, they forget how long it has been since they've really had some fun."

Both specialists suggested that sports equipment, from an inexpensive ball to elaborate ski equipment, is usually well received.

"Toys should sometimes encourage play with a parent when the children are young, and books and records are very good for that," Ms. Piers pointed out. "But parents should be careful to see that the books and records are not always moralistic."

Shaking her head, she said, "I hate the story of 'The Little Engine That Could.' It gives the child the idea that he, like the train, must try to climb to the top of the hill, even if he can't. That's a nice moral for a little train, because a train doesn't grow up and have a coronary. It's not such a nice moral for a little boy or girl."

On the other hand, she approves of "Peter Rabbit," because he was naughty and fun-loving and interesting.

Dr. Costa said he believes that the best toy a child can have is a parent to play with.

"But," Dr. Costa warned, "that's only when the child needs a toy. When he needs a parent, please, behave like a parent!"

Girlfriend Fears Father's Interests

DEAR ABBY: I need advice badly and have no one to talk to.

My girl friend told me that from the age of 10 until she was 15, her father continuously molested her every chance he got when no one was home.

She never told anyone about this because he threatened to kill her if she did.

The problem is that there are still seven younger girls at home, and she is afraid he will do the same to them.

What can be done to make her father seek help without others finding out? Also they don't have much money in case he needs psychiatric treatment.

She doesn't want revenge, and she doesn't want the police to lock him up because her mother needs his paycehck badly.

I told her to threaten to call the police if he molests any of the other girls. Do you think that would work? He is a strict father, and all his children fear him.

HELPING A FRIEND

DEAR HELPING: Tell you friend that she should confide her fears to a clergyman, doctor, teacher, relative or some other responsible adult. Assure her that her father is a very sick man if he doesn't get help immediately, the consequences could be tragic.

And please write again and let me know what has happened. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged, unattached gentleman who enjoys being well-dressed and well-groomed. I am well-educated and have good manners. I am fully employed in a position that pays a modest salary.

For the last year, I have been the constant escort of a well-to-do widow who is somewhat older then I am. She foots the bills for dining out and attending the theater, symphony, concerts and opera, which we both love. (I could never afford it.)

The talk around town — that she is "keeping" me—is totally untrue. She has never given me one penny or paid any of my bills.

Would you call me a "gigolo"? And do you see anything wrong with this arrangement? There is no romantic involvement.

TALKED ABOUT

DEAR TALKED: A "gigolo" is a man who is supported by a woman. You're not. I see nothing wrong with the arrangement. In fact, I think it's a good one for both of you, and as such, I'd tune out the talk.

I have always had a very warm relationship with my daughter-in-law. She is a fine person, and I still love her. Besides, being friendly with her makes it easier for me to see my grandchildren, whom I adore.

My son has told me in no un-

Think Twice Before Buying 'Educational' Toys

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — If you're playing with the idea of educating your child with a Christmas toy, think twice.

Many toys billed as "educational" are overpriced and filled with empty promises.

"When a child sees a big, colorful toy on television or in a store window, he or she lusts for it, and his or her parents often do, too," said Maria Piers, dean of Erikson Institute for Early Education. "But when the child opens the box, he finds it's filled with broken dreams.

"There is never enough cake mix in the baking kit to bake a real cake, nor enough nails in the carpenter's kit to really build something."

So, if you're interested in stimulating your child's mind, specialists believe you can provide better playthings by using a little imagination of your own.

"How simple it is to put toys together if parents really care," Mrs. Piers continued. "For half the money spent on a sewing kit, you can buy many remnants of colorful felt, a big needle, bright yarn and a small scissors.

"And all children I know love to get a small pot or frying pan with a wooden spoon from the hardware store, and then be told they can cook their own egg. That's much less expensive than a toy set of tiny pots and pans."

And all the toys she mentioned served the most important function of a toy — educational or otherwise: "They stimulate the child to do something.

"A toy is of no value at all if a child can't do something besides look at it," she said. "It should stimulate him to do something intellectually or physically."

Intellectual stimulation is best provided by the few really good, simple, well-made toys that focus on basic learning skills and can be used as a playful way to improve the child's schoolwork.

Dr. P. R. Costa, director of child psychiatry at Michael Reese Hospital, pointed out that children must learn some academic skills to get along in society, and if they are lacking in some of those skills, then they must give up some of their play time and use "educational toys and games" to help them.

"But in general a worthwhile toy should be one that enhances creativity, and it doesn't have to be academic," Dr. Costa stressed. "I believe most so-called 'educational toys' are made for parents. They buy them because they think they will improve their child's IQ. And that's something that interests parents, not children."

(Dr. Costa also said that studies show a young child's IQ can be improved up to 30 points with special toys and training. But, he added, 10 years later the child falls right back into the area he would have been in anyway.)

So Dr. Costa agreed with Mrs. Piers that a toy should be fun, and geared to the child's own natural curiosity and exploration.

"Parents should watch their children play and then pick out toys that encourage their real interests," he said. "If he likes animals, buy a game with animals; if she likes cars, buy those. Often, parents get so concerned about buying toys that the neighbors have, they forget how long it has been since they've really had some fun."

Both specialists suggested that sports equipment, from an inexpensive ball to elaborate ski equipment, is usually well received.

"Toys should sometimes encourage play with a parent when the children are young, and books and records are very good for that," Ms. Piers pointed out. "But parents should be careful to see that the books and records are not always moralistic."

Shaking her head, she said, "I hate the story of 'The Little Engine That Could.' It gives the child the idea that he, like the train, must try to climb to the top of the hill, even if he can't. That's a nice moral for a little train, because a train doesn't grow up and have a coronary. It's not such a nice moral for a little boy or girl."

On the other hand, she approves of "Peter Rabbit," because he was naughty and fun-loving and interesting.

Dr. Costa said he believes that the best toy a child can have is a parent to play with.

"But," Dr. Costa warned, "that's only when the child needs a toy. When he needs a parent, please, behave like a parent!"

Girlfriend Fears Father's Interests

DEAR ABBY: I need advice badly and have no one to talk to.

My girl friend told me that from the age of 10 until she was 15, her father continuously molested her every chance he got when no one was home.

She never told anyone about this because he threatened to kill her if she did.

The problem is that there are still seven younger girls at home, and she is afraid he will do the same to them.

What can be done to make her father seek help without others finding out? Also they don't have much money in case he needs psychiatric treatment.

She doesn't want revenge, and she doesn't want the police to lock him up because her mother needs his paycehck badly.

I told her to threaten to call the police if he molests any of the other girls. Do you think that would work? He is a strict father, and all his children fear him.

HELPING A FRIEND

DEAR HELPING: Tell you friend that she should confide her fears to a clergyman, doctor, teacher, relative or some other responsible adult. Assure her that her father is a very sick man if he doesn't get help immediately, the consequences could be tragic.

And please write again and let me know what has happened. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged, unattached gentleman who enjoys being well-dressed and well-groomed. I am well-educated and have good manners. I am fully employed in a position that pays a modest salary.

For the last year, I have been the constant escort of a well-to-do widow who is somewhat older then I am. She foots the bills for dining out and attending the theater, symphony, concerts and opera, which we both love. (I could never afford it.)

The talk around town — that she is "keeping" me—is totally untrue. She has never given me one penny or paid any of my bills.

Would you call me a "gigolo"? And do you see anything wrong with this arrangement? There is no romantic involvement.

TALKED ABOUT

DEAR TALKED: A "gigolo" is a man who is supported by a woman. You're not. I see nothing wrong with the arrangement. In fact, I think it's a good one for both of you, and as such, I'd tune out the talk.

I have always had a very warm relationship with my daughter-in-law. She is a fine person, and I still love her. Besides, being friendly with her makes it easier for me to see my grandchildren, whom I adore.

My son has told me in no un-

Local Grocery Prices Decline 1.9%

After two months of high but relatively stable prices, grocery costs showed a nominal decline this month.

The average total of 17 food items at three chain stores and one locally owned store in Lincoln remained at $14.59 during October and November. But this month's total dropped to $14.32, a decline of 27 cents or nearly 1.9%.

Still, December's total is $1.04 or approximately 7.8% more than last June's price of $13.28 and $1.61 or nearly 12.7% higher than the $12.71 total recorded one year ago.

Meat Prices Fall

Due to an advertised special of $1.69 at one of the surveyed stores, the price of bacon dropped 27 cents this month to an average of $2.01 per pound. However, this price is still 15 cents above the $1.86 price six months ago and 42 cents more than the December, 1974, price of $1.59.

Another pork item, loin pork chops, also showed a slight decline in price this month. Currently, pork chops are costing consumers approximately $2.04 per pound, five cents less than one month ago. But, like the price of bacon, the cost of pork chops is still considerably more than prices recorded six months and one year ago: Loin pork chops cost 25 cents less ($1.69 per pound) last June and 85 cents less ($1.19) last December.

Three of the four surveyed stores featured advertised specials on the price of round steak, causing a 16-cent decline in the current price. Round steak is now selling at approximately $1.71 per pound, 21 cents higher than the $1.50 price six months ago and 15 cents more than the $1.56 price one year ago.

Not Up Much

Although the current price of ground beef (85 cents per pound) is 11 cents more than the price last month, it is only three cents more than the 82-cent price last June and four cents more than last December's 81 cents.

The per-pound price of chicken also sported an increase during the past month. The cost of chicken rose three cents, from 65 cents last month to 68 cents this month. This is an increase of eight cents over the price six months ago and 10 cents above the price one year ago.

Also, the price of eggs is climbing higher. During the past month, Grade A Large eggs increased 10 cents to 77 cents per dozen, 17 cents more than the price six months ago.

The price of one-half gallon of milk dropped three cents during the past month, bringing the average cost to 83 cents. Also, due to an advertised special of 39 cents at one store, the average cost of a 10-ounce package of frozen peas declined five cents. This month peas are costing shoppers approximately 48 cents.

Although not included in the survey total, sugar also showed price fluctuations this month. Beet sugar increased six cents, from $1.18 for a five-pound bag to $1.24, while cane sugar decreased three cents, from $1.23 to $1.20.

A review of survey totals during the past year reveals that the lowest price was recorded in April ($12.91), whereas the highest single average was $14.73 in September.

An average of the 12 monthly survey totals of 1975 stands at $13.77. This is an increase of $1.11 or approximately 8.8% more than the 1974 average of $12.66.

Opening lead - ten of clubs.

There are plays in bridge that are regarded as fancy, but a declarer who wants to win does not shun them if the situation calls for such action.

Consider this deal where West led a club against six diamonds. Declarer won with the ace, played a diamond to the queen and continued with a low diamond back to the nine, East showing out.

Warned by the 4-1 trump division that making the slam was much more difficult than it seemed, South led a heart to the ace, returned the king of diamonds from dummy, overtaking it with the ace, and drew West's last trump with the jack of diamonds— at the same time discarding the queen of hearts from dummy!

Declarer now conceded the jack of hearts to East's king, and easily took the rest. He made six for a score of 1,570 points.

Fancy, perhaps, but anyone who thinks that South's method of play was unnecessarily gaudy has another think coming.

Declarer could not have made the slam had he simply drawn trumps without taking the unusual steps he did to unblock the heart suit. East could refuse to take the queen of hearts whenever it was offered to him and South would find it impossible to recover from this play.

The 4-1 trump division that South ran into was certainly not unusual, but dealing with it correctly was a distinct challenge.

Unblocking the hearts so that the suit could be run after West's trumps were drawn required extremely careful play, but the situation clearly called for the measures South adopted. He wasn't just trying to be fancy; what he did was absolutely essential.

Opening lead - ten of clubs.

There are plays in bridge that are regarded as fancy, but a declarer who wants to win does not shun them if the situation calls for such action.

Consider this deal where West led a club against six diamonds. Declarer won with the ace, played a diamond to the queen and continued with a low diamond back to the nine, East showing out.

Warned by the 4-1 trump division that making the slam was much more difficult than it seemed, South led a heart to the ace, returned the king of diamonds from dummy, overtaking it with the ace, and drew West's last trump with the jack of diamonds— at the same time discarding the queen of hearts from dummy!

Declarer now conceded the jack of hearts to East's king, and easily took the rest. He made six for a score of 1,570 points.

Fancy, perhaps, but anyone who thinks that South's method of play was unnecessarily gaudy has another think coming.

Declarer could not have made the slam had he simply drawn trumps without taking the unusual steps he did to unblock the heart suit. East could refuse to take the queen of hearts whenever it was offered to him and South would find it impossible to recover from this play.

The 4-1 trump division that South ran into was certainly not unusual, but dealing with it correctly was a distinct challenge.

Unblocking the hearts so that the suit could be run after West's trumps were drawn required extremely careful play, but the situation clearly called for the measures South adopted. He wasn't just trying to be fancy; what he did was absolutely essential.

Cousteau Is Optimistic In Search For Atlantis

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In his search for the lost city of Atlantis, Jacques-Yves Cousteau is ever the optimist:

"Of course we will be successful. Even if you don't find what you are looking for, the search is always worth the effort. Nature is so overwhelming that you always find something that is worthwhile."

The Frenchman is a remarkable figure, a philosopher-explorer like the great voyagers of the 15th Century, yet a popularizer who understands the use of media in 1975.

"The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," which begins its final season on ABC-TV on Dec. 8, appears in more than 100 countries of the world. The audience for each of the 36 hours is at least 100 million viewers, says Cousteau, stating he would rather reach that many people than try for the more moneyed medium of movies for theaters.

With the end of the "Undersea World" series, Cousteau will shun TV in 1976 — "because of the Olympics, bicentennial and presidential elections" — and will devote his efforts to a pair of two-hour specials. One will concern the world's hunters of undersea treasure. The other will be a search for Atlantis.

"Of course we don't expect to uncover a complete civilization," he cautions. "But even if we find only one statue, that would be extremely exciting. We know nothing about the people of Atlantis; we don't even know how they built their boats. Anything that we recover would be revealing."

Atlantis has occupied the imagination of the world ever since Plato wrote about the so-called lost civilization. Speculation as to where it was located has ranged as far as to Brazil. Cousteau believes the logical site is near the Greek island of Santorini and that will be the base of his operations with the ship Calypso.

"Plato is really the only source for the Atlantis legend," said Cousteau. "He apparently derived his information from the Greek traveler Solon, who brought some vague reports from Alexandria. From this Plato developed his whole theory about Atlantis.

"Added to this is the evidence that about 1500 B.C. the Egyptians repelled an invasion by boat from a very advanced civilization. This was at the same time as the biblical account of the seven plagues of Egypt and the Exodus. Then there is evidence of a fantastic explosion in the Mediterranean about 1400 B.C., many times the force of Krakatoa."

Cousteau cited the remains of a still smoldering volcano near Santorini as evidence that Atlantis might lie underneath the blue waters.

"Most of it remains under a thick layer of lava," he said. "But on the margin of the lava we might find the evidence we are seeking."

He said that the Greek government had curtailed exploration since World War II, but had granted permission to the Cousteau Society. His only concern is that the Greek sponge fisherman may have gotten there first — "they are very smart, and they can dive that deep."

Cousteau intends to devote a year to the Atlantis search, remaining 20 days a month on the Calypso and its fleet of sophisticated exploration vessels, some developed especially for this venture. The other 10 days will be spent in New York and here, overseeing the Cousteau Society and the television productions.

Although he is 65, he has not retired from exploration of the deep.

"I will be diving and participating 100% in the operation," he said. "I don't feel old at all; ageing is only in the head.

"I expect to go on this way as long as I can. Then, when I am no longer able to participate, I would simply like to be switched off during an operation. None of this business of trying to sustain the life forces, as with Franco.

Ford Railroad Aid Bill Rejected; Veto Possible

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Thursday narrowly rejected efforts to tailor a massive $8.6 billion railroad aid bill to President Ford's liking, despite his promise to veto it and call a special Christmas-vacation session to write another.

Republican-sponsored amendments to whittle nearly $3 billion to make the bill palatable to the administration failed. Backers said a meeting with Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman to compromise resulted only in "conflict and confrontation."

The bill is designed primarily to rescue bankrupt rail systems in the northeast and midwest. It also would revamp antiquated regulatory procedures and provide for high-speed passenger service on the Washington-New York-Boston run.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., tried to trim aid for bankrupt freight lines from $3 billion to the $2.1 billion sought by the administration. He lost, 43 to 42, with Assistant Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd casting the deciding vote.

Then an amendment by Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr., R-Ohio, to reduce expenditures for passenger service in the heavily traveled northeast corridor from $3.2 billion to $1.4 billion was dumped, 52 to 38.

After turning aside a threatened filibuster, sponsors held a hasty meeting with Coleman, seeking a compromise to avoid Ford's veto. But Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., chief sponsor and floor leader of the bill, said there was "no place for any kind of movement."

Ford has said he will veto the measure and call Congress back from its Christmas vacation if necessary to write a bill he can accept.

"What we are seeking is not a confrontation, not a veto, not a defeat for either side," said Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn. "I don't know if we'll be successful, but ever effort will be made."

In a surprise move, the Senate voted 61 to 27 — one more than needed for cloture — to limit debate before it began and the leadership vowed to keep the Senate in session until the bill passed, even if it took all night.

Nebraska Republican Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis voted against limited debate on the railroad bill, but the measure passed.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., complained the bill was "being railroaded through the Senate."

The 238-page bill would allow Conrail, a new quasi-governmental agency, to take over freight operations of the Penn Central and six other bankrupt northeast and midwest railroads Feb. 27, and Amtrak to take over the northeast passenger corridor.

In all, the bill authorizes $8.6 billion, including $7.3 in loan authority.

Of this, $3 billion is for Conrail — $900 million more than the administration wants — and $3.2 billion for improvements of passenger service on the northeast corridor.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A photographic slide of what may be the legendary Loch Ness monster has been shown to the public for the first time. It shows a rust-colored object with what appear to be two front appendages, a long neck and a head.

The existence of the picture, part of a series taken by an American research team headed by Robert Rines, has been known for several weeks. A number of scientists in the United States and Britain have commented favorably on the pictures, but other researchers remain skeptical that they prove the monster's existence.

Rines showed a single slide of what is purported to be the often-discussed "Nessy" on Wednesday night to about 50 law students at Franklin Pierce Law Center here. Rines, a Boston attorney, is dean of the law college.

The slide depicted an object with distinct features, including frontal appendages, a trunk described by Rines as being about 12 feet broad and a neck he said was 8 to 10 feet long. There also was a slight image of a head, but most of that was blocked out by shadows, he said.

Rines said other, much clearer pictures of the object were taken with an underwater camera and strobe system 45 feet beneath the surface of Loch Ness, a 25-mile long lake in the Scottish highlands where repots of an unknown "monster" have circulated for centuries.

Other photographs, Rines said, were shot at a range as close as 4 feet with the monster looking right at us with its mouth open."

Those pictures as well as the one shown Wednesday night were taken last June and were to have been presented at a science symposium in Britain this month.

But sponsors of the symposium announced this week that the meeting had been canceled because of excessive publicity about the photographs in Britain.

Sir Peter Scott, who has seen the Rines photographs, said the cancellation "in no sense" reflects "on the nature of the evidence and the integrity" of the Rines expedition.

Rines said the photographs were taken by the Boston Academy of Applied Science. A spokesman for Rines said members of the Academy are not making a judgment of what the object is, leaving it to the scientific community to interpret the photographs.

Dr. Gosdon Sheals, keeper of zoology at London's Natural History Museum, said in London he had seen the "best" of the Rines photographs, but is still not ready to say categorically a "monster" exists.

Exon Isn't Thrilled By Candidates

By The Associated Press

Just back from the Democratic Governor's Conference, Nebraska Gov. J. James exon said he was not satisfied with any of the 10 official Democratic candidates who met with the governors.

"I have no leanings whatsoever" toward supporting any of them at this time, the governor said.

Exon specified that none of the candidates gave a satisfactory answer to his No. 1 question of what they would do to balance the federal budget.

On another matter, Exon emphasized that profit controls would be possible along with the wage and price controls that could be allowed by the economic recovery plan. Exon was on the committee which drafted that resolution.

He said that the conference resolutions concerning state-federal relationships went right along with his concerns about state's rights.

He pointed to three Nebraska matters — the issue of Army Corps of Engineers control of the Platte River, the question of how many health planning areas Nebraska should have and what he called an unsatisfactory attitude of the U.S. Justice Department concerning the Beatrice State Home settlement.

Closed Door Challenged By Students

Four staff members of the Daily Nebraskan, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln student newspaper, were denied admission Thursday to a weekly staff meeting of a vice chancellor.

Rebecca Brite, editor of the paper, said the staff meetings held each week by Ken Bader fall under the definition of a public body and are therefore subject to Nebraska's open meetings law.

"I feel it really should be up to them to show that they can indeed have these meetings closed to reporters," Miss Brite said. "I don't think they can."

Bader, vice chancellor for student affairs, said he intends to seek a legal opinion to see if the law applies to his staff meetings.

"It's not a governing board — there's no power to enact anything," he said.

Bader added, "If I'm wrong, I stand corrected. But until I get an interpretation otherwise, I consider it to be merely a staff meeting."

Omaha Senior To Head UNL's Campus Paper

Vince Boucher of Omaha has been named editor-in-chief of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln student newspaper, the Daily Nebraskan.

Boucher, a senior journalism and English major, will assume the post for the second semester, succeeding Rebecca Brite, of Lincoln. Boucher has been on the newspaper staff since 1973 and was editor of the 1975 summer Nebraskan.

Tommeraasen May Be Offered N. Illinois U Post

Miles Tommeraasen, University of Nebraska-Lincoln chancellor for business and finance, is said to be one of six persons under consideration for a position at Northern Illinois University.

He said Thursday he has not yet decided to become provost and vice president for student affairs at the Illinois school if the post were offered. The Illinois school has not set a date for final selection.

Tommeraasen has been the director of budgeting and finance at UNL since 1969. He joined the faculty in 1964.

Nebraska Farmers Union Re-Elects Wiebe

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Kearney — The Nebraska Farmers Union Thursday elected Louis Wiebe of Beatrice to his second two-year term as president.

Named to the board of directors with three-year terms were Kenneth Nienhuser of Alliance and Alfred Maronde of Waco. Floyd Herman of Wilber was chosen to represent the Nebraska group in New Orleans at the national NFU convention.

The delegates approved some 25 resolutions ranging from a call for better music at the next convention to a calling for research for ways to solve the declining water table problems of pump irrigators.

The issue of music was resolved with ease but the irrigation resolution got hung up on the issue of trans-basin diversion of water. The final vote showed a 10-vote margin favoring the proposal when it was explained that the issue involved research and not actual movement of water from one river basin to the other.

A delegate from the water-short Waco area said he felt that many of the delegates didn't understand how the trans-basin diversion would work.

One important change in the resolutions suggested that the organization would accept a price ceiling of 110% of parity for grain crops if the government would guarantee a price not below 90% of parity either through a loan program or some other kind of price support activity.

The parity percentage figure is arrived at by a formula that is said to provide an income level identical to that received by non-farm people.

In other resolutions, the delegates called for:

—Denial of the power of eminent domain for the proposed coal slurry pipeline until the effect on local communities and on the environment was determined beyond a reasonable doubt.

—A 10% deposit on all beverage containers to help clean up highways and recreation areas.

—Use of grain alcohol in gasoline for motor fuel.

—Reduction of some government services to reduce taxes.

—State aid to education tied to compulsory reorganization of schools.

—Any legislation that would allow any state body to enforce educational programs on school systems against the wishes of the school patrons.

—Passage of any law by the Legislature without a public hearing.

Cy Carpenter, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, addressed the final session of the convention and called for farmers to keep control of agriculture themselves.

"We have the land and we must keep it by using the tools of our knowledge of farm technology and our cooperatives to keep the power in the hands of farmers," he said.

Carpenter noted that the big cooperatives were under attack as being a monopoly. "The same people never talk about 95% of the grain exported being under the control of just four companies. It seems to me that it would be a lot better to have the entire control of the export market in the hands of thousands of farmers each with a vote in their local cooperative than in just four hands," he said.

Carpenter reminded his listeners that "you face a situation that no other American farmers ever faced. For the first time in our history as a nation all the land available to good farming is in production."

"We can't run a modern food production system on a set of rules that haven't changed in 100 years. We must keep agriculture in the hands of farmers, not giant corporations," he said.

Martell Girl Scores Triple 4-H Victory

Chicago —Laurie Wittstruck of Martell scored a triple victory in the national 4-H standings when she received a national achievement award, a special Presidential Achievement Award, and was named one of eight Reporters to the Nation. The honors came during the National 4-H Club Congress held here this week.

Miss Wittstruck is the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwayne Wittstruck. Besides an $800 scholarship courtesy of the Ford Motor Company Fund, and a gold plaque as winner of the Presidential Achievement Award, Miss Wittstruck will report activities and ideals of 4-H to the President, following a year of public speaking to various groups concerning the future of 4-H.

Miss Wittstruck plans to enter the University of Nebraska next fall to study animal science and agricultural journalism.

Corps Sticks To Strict Interpretation

Within two years a Nebraska farmer who decides to fill in a small pond on his property may need a permit from the federal government, according to Omaha district Corps of Engineers operations chief Ralph Miller.

Miller reviewed some facets of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act at a public meeting Wednesday night for about 40 people.

The act caused some controversy in Nebraska earlier this year when the corps attempted to claim regulatory control over the Platte River by declaring that it was a navigable waterway. Miller said the proposal on the Platte had been forwarded to the Washington office but had not been acted on.

Under the regulations, Miller said, any person discharging dredged or fill materials into navigable waters of the United States must get corps permission.

The rule defines dredged materials to include wood, so anyone who wants to build a dam or a boat dock on his property must have a permit if navigable waters are involved.

Henderson FFA Team Is Winner

Judge Limits Questioning In Bribery Trial

Omaha (AP) — Defense attorneys attempted to extract information from an FBI agent Wednesday about all dealings the FBI may have had with Robert L. Propst, of Ogallala.

Earlier testimony revealed that Propst telephoned FBI agent Edward D. O'Brien on Sept. 10, 1974, and shortly thereafter the FBI launched an investigation leading to charges that four men tried to bribe a juror during a trial.

Clarence Matya, Donald J. Quinn, Dale Murphy and Paul F. Murphy have been on trial on those charges since Monday before a jury in the U.S. District Court of Judge Albert Schatz.

Defense attorneys Wednesday were interested in dealings Propst may have had with the FBI prior to Sept. 10, 1974.

Shortly after the defense team began questioning O'Brien, Judge Schatz sent the jury out, then called government prosecutors and O'Brien into his chamber.

Following that brief discussion, Schatz refused to allow the defense to probe O'Brien about further dealings Propst might have had with the FBI prior to Sept. 10, 1974.

Before Schatz's action, O'Brien testified that he had met with Propst about 20 times from 1971 to 1974. At most of those meetings, O'Brien was working in his official capacity as an FBI agent, he testified.

As a result of the meeting in the judge's chamber, O'Brien was not allowed to answer these questions:

—Did Propst perform any services for the FBI prior to the jury-influencing case?

—Did any agents other than O'Brien work with Propst on any other matters to the jury case?

—Was Propst ever paid for any cooperation he might have given the FBI prior to the jury case?

Judge Schatz limited the queries about Propst's past dealings with the FBI by sustaining governent objections each time defense attorneys posed such questions.

Propst's mother was a member of the jury hearing a 1974 gambling case from Sept. 3 to Sept. 29.

The alleged scheme to influence Margaert Propst was terminated without any contact being made with her, the government contends, and gambling trial was allowed to finish.

Earlier testimony reveals that Propst worked with the FBI from Sept. 13 to Sept. 15 assisting the FBI in making contact with Frank J. Ryan, an alleged participant in the jury scheme.

O'Brien testified the FBI payed Propst $405 for expenses in traveling to Omaha for that period.

Testimony showed that from Sept. 15 throughout the arrests of the four defendants Sept. 19, Ryan also worked with the FBI in the investigation.

Couple Unhappy With Verdict

Omaha (AP) -- A young couple who complained recently to Mayor Edward Zorinsky about the dismissal of a criminal case in which they were the alleged victims had their day in court Wednesday. But they weren't happy with the result.

After a 90-minute trial, Douglas County Court Judge Samuel Cooper dismissed a misdeameanor charge of receiving stolen property filed against David Augustine, 19, of Omaha.

Cooper said the evidence was insufficient to convince him "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Augustine had "possession or control" of the items allegedly stolen from David and April Rinehart, also of Omaha.

The Rineharts were camping on a sandbar in the Platte River last Aug. 9 when four men came by their tent and one threatened to rape Mrs. Rinehart. The couple left in search of a deputy sheriff and when they returned, their camp was in flames, they said.

As a result, original charges of receiving stolen property filed against the three were dismissed when the Rineharts weren't told to be in court and didn't appear.

"I could be out in the middle of the river with a knife in my stomach, or my wife could have been raped by four guys. You tell me what I do next time, go get the sheriff?" Rinehart commented following the innocent verdict.

John Paris Elected To Head County Association

Omaha (UPI) — John Paris, a member of the Dawes County Board of Commissioners, Thursday was elected president of the Nebraska County Commissions and Supervisors Association.

Paris, who was elected during the annual convention of the Nebraska Association of County Officials held in Omaha, will replace Ben Camp, a Hall County supervisor.

Henry Purdie, a Pierce County commissioner, was elected vice president, and Elton Moore, a Red Willow County commissioner, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

8th District Court Upholds Blackwell Retrial Ruling

By The Associated Press

The U.S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis has upheld a decision by U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom, ordering that a man now serving a life term in Nebraska's prison for murder be released from custody or retried.

Urbom ruled in June that Seth Blackwell of Lincoln had not been given a fair or adequate hearing on a question of his mental ability to stand trial for murder.

The appeals court has held that unless the state retries Blackwell within a reasonable period of time to be fixed by Urbom, he will be released.

Blackwell, 40, was convicted of second-degree murder in Lancaster County District Court in connection with the 1967 stabbing death of William E. Payne, 22.

That motion was denied on the basis of a psychiatric report.

Blackwell has been seeking release from prison on grounds that his constitutional rights were violated by having to go to trial in his then mental state.

Hall County Jail Escapee's Bond Set At $25,000

Grand Island (UPI) — A $25,000 bond was set Thursday in Hall County Court for a Colorado man charged with prison escape.

The charge was filed against James Patrick Walsh in connection with an incident Monday in which he walked out of a Grand Island dentist's office while in the custody of a Hall County sheriff's deputy.

Walsh had been arrested Sunday on suspicion of possessing stolen property and marijuana.

Walsh, who originally told authorities he was John Vargas, escaped from the Canyon, Colo., state prison on Oct. 24. He was serving a sentence there of up to five years for burglary and joy riding.

After Walsh got away from Hall County authorities, he was arrested in Omaha Tuesday night after an unidentified informant tipped off police.

City Won't Cut Snow Removal To Save Money

Lincoln will not cut back snow removal programs to save money, according to Mayor Helen Boosalis.

Mrs. Boosalis said the city will not change its program unless it is continually hit by severe storms.

If the winter is unusually severe, the Public Works Department may not remove snow from residential streets.

This year's city budget earmarks $150,000 for snow removal.

Mexican-American Meet To Be Here

By The Associated Press

People involved in Mexican-American agencies in approximately 11 states are to meet here Saturday to discuss mutual problems and examine the need for possible nationwide communication among themselves.

Stan Porras, director of the Nebraska Mexican-American Commission, said Thursday the meeting will "also consider the possible need for a national conference of these agencies and others.

"The Nebraska Commission came up with the idea of this planning session," Porras said. "We could see it was going to be difficult to get a national conference arranged without doing some ground work, and that is what the Saturday session will be all about."

Porras said representatives from organizations and agencies in 11 states have indicated they would attend the meeting. They are from Washington state, California, Ohio, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Texas, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin, Porras said.

"Actually, we only thought we would get a half a dozen people for the planning session, but the response was greater than we hoped," Porras said.

"A national conference in a central location would draw representatives from a tremendous number of states—that is what our feedback indicates," Porras said. "Of course if such a conference is arranged we would like to hold it in Nebraska, but that remains to be seen," Porras said.

"I expect to discuss methods which could be used that would let us keep up on legislation in eachother's states, programs for education andthat sort of thing," Porras said. "That communication could be through a newsletter of some sort, regular mail communication, meetings, or through some offshoot of a national conference."

Porras said if a national conference is decided on "We would hope for some federal input."

If a national conference is attempted, Porras said Fernando DeBaca, special assistant to President Ford, has indicated he would lend whatever assistance he could.

"Getting some of the federal agencies involved would be an important step in national activity," Porras said.

"At the Saturday meeting I hope we could discuss what a potential confernce might include," Porras said. "What kind of workshops would benefit the most areas, what speakers would be of the most interest and so forth."

Mennonite Volunteers At Work

Volunteers from two Mennonite churches in Henderson are working from 7 a.m. to past midnight every day this week to can about 57,000 pounds of beef. The meat is deboned, precooked and packed in tin cans under the eye of federal inspectors and will go "where there's a real need," says Pastor Abe Krause The project costs members of the congregations close to $25,000 to buy the beef, in addition to thousands of hours of volunteer time. Much of the canned meat will probably be shipped to Zaire (formerly the Congo), Haiti, Egypt, Israel, Bangladesh and Brazil. Cutting up meat, from left, are Andy Nachtigal, Virgil Thieszen and Henry Hiebner. (Star Staff Photo.)

Omaha Desegregation Effort Commended

Omaha (UPI) — The Citizens Interracial Committee assisting the Omaha School District in formulating its court-ordered integration plan has emphasized the importance of community wide acceptance and the expressions of positive support in the integration effort.

At its Wednesday night meeting, the court-appointed committee commended the Omaha Chamber of Commerce for is "positive stance" with respect to court ordered integration. The chamber earlier this week issued a position statement pledging its support for the integration plan.

The committed urged other leadership and decision-making bodies to make similar supportive statements so Omaha can become a "model city" with respect to planning and implementing a desegregation program.

The committee received a report on a visit to Dallas, Tex., where six members consulted with Hal Sieber, who has been the principal architect of a communications program in the Greensboro, N.C., desegregation project.

The committee said Sieber urged it to "muster all possible support among key community organizations" such as the chamber of commerce. Sieber also recommended, the committee said, a total information program be mounted to assure public understanding of the court approved desegregation plan

Meanwhile, it appeared the Omaha School District was working toward an integration plan which would combine three skeleton proposals outlined earlier.

Norbert Schuerman, chairman of the district's integration task force, said Wednesday, "We are attempting to come up with a plan that will move less than 9,000 students."

Schuerman said the 9,000 figure has to do with "public acceptance." He said a primary goal was to move as few students as possible to minimize disruption and keep transportation costs at a reasonable level.

The plan is due for school board consideration around Dec. 15 and for submission to U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz in Omaha by Jan. 1.

Omaha (UPI) — The Citizens Interracial Committee assisting the Omaha School District in formulating its court-ordered integration plan has emphasized the importance of community wide acceptance and the expressions of positive support in the integration effort.

At its Wednesday night meeting, the court-appointed committee commended the Omaha Chamber of Commerce for is "positive stance" with respect to court ordered integration. The chamber earlier this week issued a position statement pledging its support for the integration plan.

The committed urged other leadership and decision-making bodies to make similar supportive statements so Omaha can become a "model city" with respect to planning and implementing a desegregation program.

The committee received a report on a visit to Dallas, Tex., where six members consulted with Hal Sieber, who has been the principal architect of a communications program in the Greensboro, N.C., desegregation project.

The committee said Sieber urged it to "muster all possible support among key community organizations" such as the chamber of commerce. Sieber also recommended, the committee said, a total information program be mounted to assure public understanding of the court approved desegregation plan.

Meanwhile, it appeared the Omaha School District was working toward an integration plan which would combine three skeleton proposals outlined earlier.

Norbert Schuerman, chairman of the district's integration task force, said Wednesday, "We are attempting to come up with a plan that will move less than 9,000 students."

Schuerman said the 9,000 figure has to do with "public acceptance." He said a primary goal was to move as few students as possible to minimize disruption and keep transportation costs at a reasonable level.

The plan is due for school board consideration around Dec. 15 and for submission to U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz in Omaha by Jan. 1.

Honors Given 5 Nebraska Scientists

Five Nebraska scientists have been honored for contributions to a nationwide program of environmental control for feedlots. The Livestock Environmental Sciences Committee, composed of Extension personnel and cattlemen from the Grain Plains, has awarded Certificates of Achievement to: Con B. Gilbertson and Norris P. Swanson, USDA Agricultural Research Service engineers at the University of Nebraska; Dr. Thomas M. McCalla, USDA-ARS soil microbiologist at NU; Dr. Otis E. Cross, NU agricultural engineer; and T.E. Bond, former ARS agricultural engineer at the U.S. Meat Animal Research Center, Clay Center, now stationed at Clemson, S.C.

Sewer Proposal Goes On Ballot

Hayes Center — Voters of Hayes Center will go to the polls Dec. 16 to decide on a $165,000 bond issue which would finance construction of a sewage system for the village. Hayes Center is located in southwestern Nebraska.

Six At UNL Receive Scholarships

Three seniors and three juniors at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have been awarded $300 wheat division scholarships for the 1975-76 school year. The students, enrolled in the NU College of Agriculture and Home Economics, will use the stipends to carry out independent projects on wheat production, marketing, nutrition and utilization. The winners are: Dennis Andrews of Holbrook, Julie J. Bergmeier of DeWitt and Gale Lorens of Stratton, all seniors; and John W. Scharf of Curtis, Audry Ann Schropfer of Ohoiwa and William G. Siefert of Bennet, all juniors.

Tower Due At Smith Dinner

Scottsbluff (UPI) — Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., will be the featured speaker Saturday at a dinner honoring Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb. The dinner will be a cooperative venture for the Smith committees of the 11 counties in Nebraska's Third District. Mrs. Smith is serving her first term in the House.

State Wool Contest Set At Columbus

Columbus — Fifth-three girls are expected to register here Friday, Dec. 12, in the Nebraska State Make It Yourself with Wool Competition. The competition is a sewing, hand knitting and crocheting contest, sponsored nationally by the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association and the American Wool Growers. Winner of the Nebraska contest will compete in the national finals in Wichita, Kan., next month.

Train-Pickup Crash Kills 2 At Columbus

COLUMBUS, Neb. (AP) — A train-pickup truck accident at a crossing east of here killed two persons Thursday afternoon, Platte County officials said.

Investigators said Timothy J. Murphy, 18, of Columbus and a companion were killed almost instantly when the southbound truck was struck by a westbound train about 1½ miles east of here.

Keya Paha County officials said Minshall was a passenger in a truck driven by Randy Kruzenberger of Springview. Authorities said Kruzenberger, who escaped serious injury, apparently lost control of the truck, which overturned.

The deaths upped the state's 1975 traffic toll to 348, compared to 362 this date last year. The two Columbus deaths were the 19th and 20th of the year involving trains.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Omaha Police Catch Fugitive

Omaha (AP) — Police apprehended a man Thursday they said walked away from the Nebraska Penal Complex last June.

He was identified as Robert Owens, 25.

He was apprehended at a residence without incident.

Police said they pleaded with Owens for 90 minutes to give himself up before he did. A woman, 20, with Owens was booked on charges of forgery.

Gage County Must Make Second Pick

Beatrice (UPI) — The Gage County Board of Supervisors will select a new county attorney Dec. 9 to replace Lincoln attorney Jack Lindner, who decided against taking the job.

The board considered four persons to replace County Attorney Stephen Brott, who is resigning, and selected Lindner for the job. However, Lindner declined the offer and said Lincoln "is too good a home" to leave at present.

Brott said the board would select another county attorney from the three remaining applicants, who are all from Gage County.

Lindner, 40, a graduate of the University of Tennessee, has lived in Lincoln about 10 years.

He has served as city prosecutor and deputy county attorney, losing the Lancaster County attorney election last year to Ron Lahners.

San Francisco — The Quaker Oats carton was wrapped with hairbreadth copper wire A wire led to the window where it proceeded to the roof top A home made antenna was scanning the air for signals

I had earphones on With the delicate fingers of a safe cracker, I searched the piece of shiny metal clamped in position shown in the diagram

I probed it with a tiny wire The "Cat's whisker" There were "hot spots" on the galena As the cat's whisker moved, the earphones sounded "Hissssss"

Until suddenly we hit a hot spot! Music poured out of the earphones And a man way out there said "You are listening to Des Moines in Iowa The state where the tall corn grows"

Holy mackerel! The boy wizard did it again!

The now generation accepts the singing commercials My children even sing with the commercials Current favorite is from McDonald's, the hamburger king

"At McDonald's we do it all for you-oo"

It's the kind of commercial that runs through your head when you wake up in the night You can't shake it off It repeats like a record with the needle stuck

What have we wrought? The boy wizards who operated the cat's whisker

☆ ☆ ☆

Musical winter days around Snug Harbor We have TV A tape deck A record player and two radios One's a clock radio Turns on with a wakeup call at 6 a m

At times we have both radios going And the TV and the record player We get commercials on top of commercials

A few months ago the government decided there should be more truth in advertising If the man on the tube said he smoked Mockingbird cigarettes, he must blooming well be a true smoker of that brand

The chick who comes on strong with cake mix The football player who demonstrates Stickum denture powder All must be honest and steadfast consumers of such

☆ ☆ ☆

This makes it hard on the commercial singer First the commercial must sing "Sing it, baby! Make them want Goop shampoo"

The commercial must scan in four-beat rhythm

The now generation accepts the singing commercials. My children even sing with the commercials. Current favorite is from McDonald's, the hamburger king.

"At McDonald's we do it all for you-oo."

It's the kind of commercial that runs through your head when you wake up in the night. You can't shake it off. It repeats like a record with the needle stuck.

What have we wrought? The boy wizards who operated the cat's whisker.

Musical winter days around Snug Harbor. We have TV. A tape deck. A record player and two radios. One's a clock radio. Turns on with a wakeup call at 6 a.m.

At times we have both radios going. And the TV and the record player. We get commercials on top of commercials.

A few months ago the government decided there should be more truth in advertising. If the man on the tube said he smoked Mockingbird cigarettes, he must be a true smoker of that brand.

The chick who comes on strong with cake mix. The football player who demonstrates Stickum denture powder. All must be honest and steadfast consumers of such.

This makes it hard on the commercial singer. First the commercial must sing. "Sing it, baby! Make them want Goop shampoo."

The commercial must scan in four-beat rhythm.

Eight U.S. Citizens Are Serving Time As Political Prisoners In Cuba

MIAMI (AP) — Frank Emmick of Toledo, Ohio, was bustling around the American Club in Havana in October 1963 when members of Fidel Castro's G2 security organization burst in and accused him of espionage.

Emmick, a short, red-haired look-alike to actor Mickey Rooney and president of the club, protested his innocence. But he was brusquely bundled into an Army car and driven away.

The G2 agents said they found a small camera in his jacket pocket. It contained a roll of film of military installations and other security material, according to trial testimony. Emmick, then 48, was sentenced to 30 years in prison.

He is still there, along with seven other U.S. citizens convicted of crimes against the state.

Some of them are in bad health, as is Emmick, who has had two heart attacks. Others, younger and stronger, have suffered the years a bit better.

Although there is increased talk of a normalization of relations with the United States, Cuba remains adamant on the question of American political prisoners. Castro has indicated in strong terms that they are not to be freed before they serve their time.

The prime minister has told Swiss diplomats, visiting American lawyers, members of the U S Congress and other visitors that he will not follow suggestions to release them as a gesture of good will on the path to detente.

Miles Alexander of Atlanta, Ga., one of a group of three lawyers and a judge who visited Cuba in July, said he "got the feeling that this question would be one of their negotiating points" with the United States.

From reports of recently returned ex-prisoners, Cubans who knew and served time with them in prisons from the dreaded Isle of Pines to Havana's La Cabana, this sketchy picture has emerged:

EMMICK — Went to Cuba shortly after the Castro triumph in 1959 and was associated with Maj. William Morgan, also from Toledo, who had served with the rebel army during the revolution. Quickly became prominent in high government and diplomatic circles and rose to president of the still-functioning American Club. His luck turned for the worse when Morgan was executed for plotting against the regime.

Emmick suffered a heart attack in 1972 and another last year. He is presently in La Cabana.

LAWRENCE KIRBY LUNT — A former U.S. Air Force captain and long-time Cuban resident sentenced to 30 years on charges of espionage for the CIA. Lunt, who has a Belgian wife and three children, ran a farm in Western Cuba's Pinar del Rio Province until his arrest on allegations of recruiting Cuban counter-revolutionaries and passing economic, political and military information to the United States.

He was listed as being from Santa Fe., N.M., at the time of his arrest in 1965. He is is now in his early 50s and is described as being in "good shape" by former prisoners. Several attempts to include him in a prisoner exchange have failed.

EVERETT D. JACKSON — A Miami student pilot forced down while flying his small plane over Santa Clara Province in 1967. The purpose of his ill-fated trip is unknown, but the plane contained photographic gear and a rifle. Friends believe he was working on his own and wanted to take pictures of Cuban missile sites for sale to American magazines.

He is in his early 30s, said to be in good physical condition and serving 30 years in La Cabana.

JUAN TUR VALDEZ — Born in Tampa, Fla., of Cuban parents who took him to Cuba as a youngster. Serving 20 years in La Cabana for espionage. "A nice guy, very quiet fellow, who is in bad general health," is the way a former prisoner friend describes him.

RAFAEL DEL PINO — Born in Cuba and naturalized as an American citizen. Was a boyhood chum of Fidel Castro and later broke with him. Del Pino was shot down in a light plane near Havana in 1960, apparently while trying to get some friends out of the island. He was badly wounded and has spent much of his time in various prison hospitals.

He is serving 30 years and presently believed to be in La Cabana. He is about 50 years old and described as in "real bad shape."

MARIA DEL CARMEN Y RUIZ — The only woman in the group, she is reported to be from New Jersey. She is divorced from a Cuban still on the island who has custody of their two children. Sentenced to 15 years in the late 1960s for counter-revolutionary activities, she received electric shocks and other treatment for a mental condition while in prison, according to several ex-prisoners.

She is in her late 30s. At last report, she was working at a prison farm called Free America.

CLAUDIO RODRIGUEZ MORALES — Arrested in 1966 when he infiltrated Cuba from Florida in a small boat, apparently to bring out some friends. Sentenced to 20 years for crimes against the state. Born in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. Rodriguez, 45, is believed to be on a prison farm.

ANTONIO GARCIA CRUZ — Sentenced in 1961 for counter-revolutionary activities. His mother is a naturalized American, but Garcia's birthplace is unknown. He was last reported in La Cabana.

LT&T Residential Rate Hike OKd

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Effective Saturday, the monthly charge for residential telephone service in 22 southeast Nebraska counties will jump by an average of one dollar.

The Nebraska Public Service Commission Thursday approved a new schedule of rates for Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. which will raise an added $3.8 million in annual revenue for the firm.

The monthly increases for local service will range from 80 cents to $1.30 for residential service and from $1.50 to $4.35 for business service. The exact amount of increase each subscriber will have to pay varies according to the type of service and the exchange.

In addition, rental charges for optional equipment and service connection charges will increase.

The approval, which came on a 4-1 vote, occurred more than a month after the commission originally sanctioned a $3.8 million increase instead of the $5.5 million requested.

Commission chairman Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont cast the lone dissenting vote to Lincoln Commissioner Robert T. Marland's motion to approve the higher rates.

Rasmussen did not voice any opposition to Marland's motion. However, he earlier filed a written dissent to the methodology used by the commission majority to arrive at the proper rate of return and income needed by LT&T.

Earlier this week concern was expressed that LT&T might not be able to experience the rate of return the commission has authorized due to commission action in an earlier Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. rate request.

The matter involves $690,000 in long distance revenue owed LT&T by Northwestern Bell. The commission allowed Northwestern Bell only a portion of the $16 million rate increase requested. As a result, Northwestern Bell said it cannot pay the full amount owed LT&T for long distance revenue.

Representatives of both firms brought the matter up Monday at a pre-hearing conference with the five commissioners. Northwestern Bell has reapplied for an additional rate increase. A hearing on this latest request will be held Friday.

In other business, Lester Fletcher, rail safety inspector for the commission, said federal figures indicate there have been 739 injuries this year involving employes of the state's five major railroads.

Fletcher called the statistic disturbing despite the fact the data collection system has been changed to record every instance where a rail employe is sent to a doctor.

Doll M.D.'s Waiting Room Overflows

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I'm an M.D. — a mender of dolls," chirps Mariemae Schwarz, whose waiting room overflows with customers waiting to have their eyes put in or their heads put on.

"Everyone wants to get their favorite doll fixed up for putting under the Christmas tree," says Mrs. Schwarz. "I've got to get the talking dolls talking and sneezing and waving again, while the old dolls need to have their elastic restrung, or their eyes have to be replaced or they have to have part of their bodies replaced."

For 30 years, Mrs. Schwarz has been a lifesaver for little girls who bring their favorite doll for her care. She eases their concern for placing their dolls in "my doll hospital" by putting each doll in a little hospital gown when it is "admitted".

"You should see the get-well cards they send for their dolls while they are here," Mrs. Schwarz says. "They really care for their dolls, as much as girls ever did. They stand here with tears rolling down their cheeks when they have to say goodbye. So you have to assure them that you will take good care of their doll."

Although girls are still delighted with a doll that just stands there and looks adorable, Mrs. Schwarz, who also sells dolls, is well acquainted with the recent wave of popular models which have swept the doll market.

Her favorite was the Byelo Baby of 1922, which became known as the "Million Dollar Baby" because of its sales. In the 1960s, Patty Playpal, a 36-inch cutie, was the doll of every girl's dreams, before the Barbie Doll came into the picture. For awhile, the Barbie was all any girl wanted.

"Now Barbie's in the doll hospital along with everyone else," says Mrs. Schwarz who admits she can't keep up with all Barbie's accessories and furniture.

"We've had hundreds of calls for these dolls. We couldn't even keep them in stock," she says.

Many of the first dolls she owned cost as little as $1.98, but now those same dolls, made in Germany, are priced as high as $100 and occupy a valued place in Mrs. Schwarz' antique doll collection which dates to the 19th century.

Doll M.D.'s Waiting Room Overflows

CINCINNATI (AP) — "I'm an M.D. — a mender of dolls," chirps Mariemae Schwarz, whose waiting room overflows with customers waiting to have their eyes put in or their heads put on.

"Everyone wants to get their favorite doll fixed up for putting under the Christmas tree," says Mrs. Schwarz. "I've got to get the talking dolls talking and sneezing and waving again, while the old dolls need to have their elastic restrung, or their eyes have to be replaced or they have to have part of their bodies replaced."

For 30 years, Mrs. Schwarz has been a lifesaver for little girls who bring their favorite doll for her care. She eases their concern for placing their dolls in "my doll hospital" by putting each doll in a little hospital gown when it is "admitted".

"You should see the get-well cards they send for their dolls while they are here," Mrs. Schwarz says. "They really care for their dolls, as much as girls ever did. They stand here with tears rolling down their cheeks when they have to say goodbye. So you have to assure them that you will take good care of their doll."

Although girls are still delighted with a doll that just stands there and looks adorable, Mrs. Schwarz, who also sells dolls, is well acquainted with the recent wave of popular models which have swept the doll market.

Her favorite was the Byelo Baby of 1922, which became known as the "Million Dollar Baby" because of its sales. In the 1960s, Patty Playpal, a 36-inch cutie, was the doll of every girl's dreams, before the Barbie Doll came into the picture. For awhile, the Barbie was all any girl wanted.

"Now Barbie's in the doll hospital along with everyone else," says Mrs. Schwarz who admits she can't keep up with all Barbie's accessories and furniture.

"We've had hundreds of calls for these dolls. We couldn't even keep them in stock," she says.

Many of the first dolls she owned cost as little as $1.98, but now those same dolls, made in Germany, are priced as high as $100 and occupy a valued place in Mrs. Schwarz' antique doll collection which dates to the 19th century.

'Solar Energy Potential High'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The potential use of solar heating and cooling units in the Midwest is excellent, according to a solar energy expert with the Honeywell Corp.

Bob LaChevalier said Thursday the length of this area's heating season, the cost of fuel and the amount of sunlight are economically conducive to widespread future use of solar heating and cooling units.

To prove it, Honeywell and the U.S. Energy Research Development Administration (ERDA) have brought a $600,000 mobile solar energy lab to Lincoln for public inspection and testing.

The lab is located on Centennial Mall on M St. near the State Office Building construction site.

Lab Toured

LaChevalier said the feasibility of solar energy depends in part of what part of the country one is in.

For instance, the Great Lakes region is poor because of the number of cloudy days. Likewise, the Gulf Coast has too short a heating season to make solar heating and cooling economical.

The Seattle region isn't a good candidate for solar energy either because cheap hydroelectric power has reduced electricity costs to 1½ cents per kilowatt hour. That's cheaper than current solar technology can do, he said.

In Boston, LaChevalier said, solar heating and cooling could be practical right now due to high fuel costs, a good amount of sunshine and the long heating season.

LaChevalier said technological progress and increased production by manufacturers should bring down costs of solar heating units to a more competitive level.

"The day is coming when solar energy will be competitive," he said.

"In the last two years there have been more innovative concepts developed (in the field of solar energy) than in the last two hundred years," he said.

Of particular promise is the use of solar energy to dry grains. This has a "big potential," he said.

Figures To Rise

By 1985, 1% of the nation's energy will come from the sun; by 2000, that figure will rise to 7%. In the year 2020, a fourth of the U.S.' energy needs will be generated by the sun.

The initial installation costs of solar heating units are high, he said.

"The pioneers are going to want to try it. On a large scale, people are starting to get interested in it. People should start looking and thinking about it.

He acknowledged there are charlatans trying to cash in on interest in solar energy and added the federal government is investigating such instances.

Omaha, State To Bid Together On Project

Omaha (AP) — The ruffled feathers in the dispute over who in the state should be trying to get a proposed solar energy research institute have apparently been smoothed over.

It has now agreed that Omaha and the state will file a joint application seeking the location of the multi-million dollar project in the state.

The hassle started late last week when Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky announced that the metropolitan areas would apply to get the new facility.

After discussing the subject with Gov. J. J. Exon and Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan, Zorinsky said Thursday that he strongly supports Exon's recommendation for a joint application.

Exon has said that with two competing applications, the state would have stood a slim chance of landing the facility.

About 200 areas are vying for the proposed solar research facility, which would employe about 1,500 workers.

Officials have not yet decided where they would prefer the location of the facility, but Mead has been mentioned prominently by backers of the state's application.

Zorinsky said a 100-member committee which was to have pushed for an Omaha location will now be used to supplement the work of the state committee.

Wednesday, Council Bluffs officials threw their support behind the Omaha bid for a metropolitan location, and the possibility of the Bluffs winning the facility may be a casualty of the Omaha-state agreement.

Law Could Warn Home Buyers

By United Press International

The Director of the Nebraska Real Estate Commission said Thursday state law should contain provisions that would at least warn a homeowner he may be subject to special assessments for improvements.

Director Paul Quinlan said in making that statement he was concerned specifically about special assessments levied by sanitary improvement districts (SID).

As the law stands now, he said, the homeowner has no way of knowing about those special assessments until they are actually levied against his property.

Quinlan said in his opinion, and in the opinion of the full real estate commission, that's way too late and as a result the commission has had complaints filed against realtors because of the situation.

"We've very definitely had complaints on this and we think it's a serious problem," he said, not only for the realtor because he has a complaint filed against him, but for the unsuspecting homeowner as well who is all of a sudden faced with an unexpected debt.

The Unicameral's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee has been addressing the SId problem during the interim and has indicated it would introduce legislation designed to cure some of the problems and complaints surrounding them. If legislation does surface, Quinlan said the commission would present its case on the assessment issue.

Quinlan said the most common complaint comes from the homeowner who tells the commission "This guy sold me a home and he said it was free and clear." Only one day the homeowner gets a notice that says he owes money for improvements made to his property at some point.

"There's by no means anything wrong with improvements and there's nothing wrong with the homeowner paying for them," the commission director said. "But in all fairness, that person should be able to find out whether or not he's going to have to pay assessments."

Under current laws, Quinlan said the homeowner has no way of knowing about the possibility of being subject to a special assessment until that special assessment is actually levied.

As a practical matter, the director said, attorneys who read abstracts may warn a homebuyer to check out the possibility of future assessments, but there is currently no requirement that the possibility of an assessment be a matter of official record. Quinlan said the solution to the problem is simple.

"All that has to be done is make it mandatory that notice be filed in the courthouse (register of deeds) that a special district has been formed," he said.

Eye Bill To Protect Home Owners

By The Associated Press

Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke said Thursday his Judiciary Committee would probably introduce legislation to require that home owners be warned about potential liens against their property.

Luedtke said there is sometimes a problem when a contractor leaves town without paying his subcontractors or the lumber yard.

The subcontractors and the lumber yard can then file a lien against the property and demand payment, even though the home owner has already paid the contractor.

At a hearing Thursday, industry spokesmen did not oppose the notice requirement, but said they did not want the Unicameral to take away their right to file a lien.

Witnesses at the hearing said people who are having homes built or remodeled can protect themselves by writing their checks jointly to the contractor, his subcontractors and the material suppliers.

Blindness Can Help His Work

"I pay more attention to a person's voice, and when they lie, there are small stutters," he says. "It's like looking into their eyes, but more effective."

It was his first case. The attorney, Bruce O. Robinson, says he plans to use Wickersham on other cases. Wickersham also dreams of opening his own detective office.

In the Creech case he found people as interested in Heidi as they were in a sightless investigator.

"The dog really opens up conversations and allows me to draw out people like I couldn't by myself," he said from his home in Nampa, Idaho. "People sometimes ask my wife how a blind man can be an investigator. She replies: 'My husband is blind, he's not retarded.'"

Wickersham was a railroad brakeman when he lost his eyesight to glaucoma in 1967.

Jerry Poth of Seattle, former president of the World Association of Detectives, Inc., says he has never heard of another sightless investigator.

"It's a tough business, and he (Wickersham) deserves a lot of credit," said Poth.

Said Robinson: "It's like John has been training for this all his life."

Wickersham doesn't regard himself as another "Longstreet," the sightless detective of the former television series.

"I'm probably more like a McCloud," he said, joking. Wickersham is usually togged in cowboy boots, pearl-buttoned shirt and western hat.

He is currently working with Robinson on preparation of appeals in the Creech case. Creech was convicted in October by a Wallace, Idaho, jury of two counts of first-degree murder.

He claimed during his trial to have killed 42 persons in a nine-year orgy of satanic worship, drug dealings and revenge slayings. Police agencies have discounted most of Creech's claims, but several bodies were found on his information in Wyoming and Nevada. He faces further charges.

Wickersham was unemployed, a failed cafeteria manager, when he met Robinson last July. The one-armed lawyer struck a friendship with him and asked if he was interested in investigator work.

Wickersham has a 10th-grade education and no training as an investigator, but "I think I've been effective. I don't accept defeat very well. I have a very good memory and just keep digging."

Star Nureyev To Be Valentino

It was his first case. The attorney, Bruce O. Robinson, says he plans to use Wickersham on other cases. Wickersham also dreams of opening his own detective office.

In the Creech case he found people as interested in Heidi as they were in a sightless investigator.

"The dog really opens up conversations and allows me to draw out people like I couldn't by myself," he said from his home in Nampa, Idaho. "People sometimes ask my wife how a blind man can be an investigator. She replies: 'My husband is blind, he's not retarded.' "

Wickersham was a railroad brakeman when he lost his eyesight to glaucoma in 1967.

Jerry Poth of Seattle, former president of the World Association of Detectives, Inc., says he has never heard of another sightless investigator.

"It's a tough business, and he (Wickersham) deserves a lot of credit," said Poth.

Said Robinson: "It's like John has been training for this all his life."

Wickersham doesn't regard himself as another "Longstreet," the sightless detective of the former television series.

"I'm probably more like a McCloud," he said, joking. Wickersham is usually togged in cowboy boots, pearl-buttoned shirt and western hat.

He is currently working with Robinson on preparation of appeals in the Creech case. Creech was convicted in October by a Wallace, Idaho, jury of two counts of first-degree murder.

He claimed during his trial to have killed 42 persons in a nine-year orgy of satanic worship, drug dealings and revenge slayings. Police agencies have discounted most of Creech's claims, but several bodies were found on his information in Wyoming and Nevada. He faces further charges.

Wickersham was unemployed, a failed cafeteria manager, when he met Robinson last July. The one-armed lawyer struck a friendship with him and asked if he was interested in investigator work.

Wickersham has a 10th-grade education and no training as an investigator, but "I think I've been effective. I don't accept defeat very well. I have a very good memory and just keep digging."

Star Nureyev To Be Valentino

LONDON (AP) — Ballet star Rudolph Nureyev has signed a contract to make his film debut as Rudolph Valentino.

A United Artist spokesman said Nureyev, 35, would star in a film biography of Valentino to be directed by Ken Rusell. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Poll Ranks State Coordination High

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Although Ross Rasmussen says a citizen-educator-school board member survey indicates surprising unanimity on what schools and colleges should be doing, the poll also reveals sharp differences among professionals and the lay public.

Rasmussen is executive director of the Nebraska State School Boards Association (NSSBA). He said the survey — which ranks schools' tasks and needs that were brainstormed at the recent NSSBA-sponsored Priority One conference — will "influence legislation."

School administrators and lay public responding to the survey ranked the need for education coordination highest among priorities.

But the idea of creating a "super board" to govern Nebraska education from kindergarten up apparently didn't appeal as the coordination solution. Administrators ranked it 33rd, board members 20th, and the public 39th of 39 categories.

And the need for a single board of Higher Education won only middling interest.

Yet insistence for a statewide education coordination mechanism won the No. 3 spot in balloting from administrators, No. 2 from board members and No. 4 from citizens.

Board members assigned top priority to preparing four-year college and University of Nebraska graduates for an understanding of society and for good citizenship. Lay members labeled it the No. 3 need, but administrators gave it 11th place.

The idea of offering courses to meet business, industry and agriculture needs won top five favor from administrators and board members, but the public respondents put it down in 20th place.

While the public showed top interest in stressing the arts, administrators and board members gave that a disinterested midway ranking.

In the 40 priorities listed for technical community colleges, teaching people good use of leisure time came in dead last among all respondents.

The public segment ranked as No. 1, making sure two-year college students have or get basic reading, arithmetic, spelling and communicating skills. But board members and administrators thought that rated 15th and 11th in importance.

While administrators ranked lifelong educational opportunities as Nebraska's fifth most important priority, board members put that in 19th place and the public in 12th.

In an ironical twist, board members and administrators put No. 4 priority on community involvement, while the lay public respondents rated that No. 13.

Only the public segment placed high priority on preparing students for job expectations before graduation. Administrators, however, put No. 3 value on providing job training, whereas board members and citizens gave that 10th place.

The non-educator respondents thought that using community leaders as consultants and volunteer instructors is the second most important need. It rated sixth among board members and ninth among administrators.

In the 38-category public school needs survey, lifelong learning and basic skills was ranked 2-1-1 by administrators, board members and citizens. But the goal of having every child be able to read at a certain level before approaching more advanced skills ranked 29-24-6.

And the groups rated 1-2-2 their willingness to finance good education, but dismissed 21-25-28 the need to broaden the tax base.

Providing community adult and continuing education in public schools got a low rating, as did promoting belief in the free enterprise system and the work ethic.

Thirty-five administrators and board members polled disagreed that school board members' primary concern should be saving money.

Developing economic literacy among public school students won top seven priority from the public and board members, but 13th from administrators. All groups placed high value on changing laws and regulations to permit student work experience and exploration. But there was 50-50 interest in business and industry opening their doors to students.

While board members thought it important to change student attitudes toward blue-collar jobs, administrators and the public put that two-thirds down the list.

Board members ranked school redistricting No. 6, but administrators rated it No. 16, and the public 27th.

The public and administrators assigned top four priority to community involvement in public schools, but board members ranked it No. 17.

School Survey Highlights

Priority One Conference on Education in Nebraska participants represented kindergarten through 12th grade, two-year post-high school institutions, four-year colleges and the University of Nebraska.

Participants from the lay public represented business, industry, agriculture and labor. Conferees developed a list of top considerations for three categories of education institutions. The group then assigned priority order to each of the lists.

Pius X Girl Receives $1,000 Grant To Finance Her Career

A Pius X High School student has received a $1,000 grant from the "Shaping a Future" competition sponsored by Avon Products to recognize International Women's Year.

Debbie Barry was one of 112 high school senior girls throughout the country awarded grants ranging from $500 to $2,000.

Entrants, who were nominated by Avon Representatives, competed for grants to help finance their future careers. Winners were selected by essays which were judged by a panel of seven career women.

Lincolnites' homes and businesses will remain cozy in the winter and cool in the summer unless some unforseen catastrophe strikes, cutting gas lines and downing power lines.

Officials at Cengas and the Lincoln Electric System doubt if it will ever happen. But, just in case an emergency occurs, they've got their game plans all worked out.

Cengas division manager C. L. Wilcox said should natural gas service be interrupted, Cengas would restore power to residential areas, hospital and public buildings first.

LES spokesman Frank Grant said the utility would restore power to the police and fire departments, water and sewage systems and hospitals first.

Priorities Set

"It's a matter of priorities," both men stated.

Wilcox pointed out that "it's practially impossible" for natural gas to be cut off because the company's supplier, Northern Natural Gas, ships in the fuel to two stations, located at 84th and O and 84th and Old Cheney Rd.

Wilcox could for see, "we'd only lose the town" if a major catastrophe occured, or if contractors cut a series of gas pipelines "at once."

Cengas has 325 customers on interruptible service. Those customers include big gas users such as Goodyear, the University of Nebraska, the State Penitentiary, Yankee Hill Brick, most schools and many churches.

Those users have interruptible service, Wilcox explained, because, "it is more economical for those who use large quantities of gas to pay a lesser rate and have standby fuel."

Rates Date Back

The practice of offering lower rates under those conditions dates back to the early 1930s, Cengas officials said, and are due to the cheaper rates — not to the lack of fuel.

Several firms have had natural gas shutoff already this year, Wilcox said. No homes are on interruptible service.

While Cengas officials might worry more about a shutdown during winter months, it's those hot, arrid summer days that cause LES officials to sweat.

Due to heavy air-conditioning demands, Grant said LES was "very close" to reaching its capacity several times in recent years. If the demand would have exceeded the amount of electricity LES was able to supply, several large electric users would have been notified to shut off the lights.

Large Users Notified

It would be "standing operating procedure" to notify large users to cut down, Grant said, or face a temporary brownout.

Although LES doesn't have a detailed emergency plan, the utility does keep a list of people who have serious medical problems.

In a severe snow storm, for instance, when lines are down, LES crews "first job is to see that those people are taken care of," Grant said.

"Our system is pretty much protected by automatic devices," Grant said, which function similarly to circuit breakers to protect equipment from serious damage.

Both Cengas and LES officials pointed out that the utilities are cooperating more to encourage the wise use of both natural gas and electricity so that shortages due to heavy energy use won't cause the heat and lights to be shut off.

Varner To Address UNL Faculty Senate

University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner will address the Lincoln Campus Faculty Senate Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in Love Library auditorium.

Varner will discuss the NU budget status, the relationship of his office with the chancellor's, and intercampus relationships.

Steven Sample, NU executive vice president for academic affairs, will report on activities of the UNL-Omaha campus Equity Study Committee, which is comparing the two campuses for academic support and faculty salaries.

The senate's scholarship and financial aids committee will seek endorsement of a proposal to establish scholarships for academic excellence.

The new two-year, renewable awards would be for $2,000 plus tuition. Ten recipients the first year would be selected from the top 100 Regents Scholarship competitors on the basis of character, extracurricular activites and professional promise.

'To Bolster Image'

Except athletic scholarships, most current awards are based on financialneed, the committee reported. The new award would be "part of the total university program toward exdellence" and "should help attract academically strong students and bolster the academic image of NU."

Available scholarship and aid funds for fiscal 1976 from all sources, such as the G.I. Bill, Social Security, employment, and grants total approximately $13.5 million, compared to $13 million last year.

The Office of Scholarships and Financial Aids handled about $9 million in serving 7,500 students.

The Senate grading committee, citing some problems concerning use of the W (Withdrawal) grade, will ask for two changes. In one, if a student received a W but didn't file an offical course drop slip, the withdrawal date will be the last day of classes.

The second proposal would require a student who has received a W in a course to reregister, to receive credit and a grade.

Committee Report In

In its semi-annual report, the Senate liaison committee said its major work has concerned budget and finances (including faculty pay), tenure, faculty-government relations, university-wide intercampus relations, a sabbatical leave proposal and academic planning.

The liaison committee will go out of existence next month, to be replaced by the Faculty Senate executive committee, after the body is reorganized into a representative assembly.

The committee on intercollegiate athletics reported that financial projections through 1978 "indicate a deficit even if football ticket prices are increased."

The problem arose due to increases in operating expenses necessary to maintain programs, rapid expansion of the women's athletic program, and financial assistance for non-self-supporting sports.

The intercollegiate panel also cited "concern of some students and faculty regarding the transfer policy of football tickets. It appears that a workable change in policy cannot be developed while the reduced price for faculty and students is in effect."

Lincoln Couple Files Suit Against Police For Arrest

A Lincoln couple arrested for armed robbery and held for 90 minutes before being released have filed a $250,000 suit in U.S. District Court contending that the police actions were illegal.

Police have denied the accusations in documents filed in the suit by Alva and Linda Channel.

The suit contends that police surrounded the Channel's trailer house in northwest Lincoln on Oct. 27, 1974 at about 8:30 p.m., arrested the pair, brought them to police headquarters and questioned them.

Police concede that the arrests were made, but contend without elaborating, that they had sufficient legal reason to make the arrest about one hour after the Husker Popper at 3301 Cornhusker Hwy. was held up by a man and woman.

Police noted that the couple was released about 90 minutes after the arrest when police obtained information the couple "may not have" committed the robbery.

Local Resident Challenges Nebraska Marijuana Laws

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

There was a noise. Robert Kells stirred from slumber on the couch of his two-room apartment. When he opened his eyes he could make out a dim figure in the early morning blackness.

"This dude was trying to rip off my stereo," Kells recalled.

The figure ran out the door Kells, in alarm, called police. "They got there quicker than I expected," Kells said dryly in the hall outside Lancaster County Court.

So it came to pass Thursday that Kells was in Lancaster County Court, conceding that marijuana was found in his apartment, but arguing that the state law making that a crime was wrong.

Giving him hope was a decision by the Alaska Supreme Court a few months ago that citizens' constitutional right to privacy can be construed to mean that the government has no right to stop people from keeping a little grass around the home for private use.

The state has no "legitimate interest" in private matters such as this involving an "essentially innocuos substance" went the arguments presented before Judge Jeffre Cheuvront by Kells' attorneys, Dennis Keefe and Kirk Naylor.

Earlier the attorneys had agreed that as a matter of evidence marijuana was found in Kell's apartment. But they asked Cheuvront to dismiss the charge on the grounds the law was unconstitutional.

Deputy Lancaster County Attorneys Gary Lacey and Bob Gibson fought back. On the question of whether marijuana is harmful, "it comes down to a battle of the experts," prosecutor Lacey argued.

The State Legislature took into consideration the variety of views on the harmfulness of the plant and determined that it "does have an injurious effect," Lacey argued.

If the law should be repealed, he continued, the Legislature should make the change, not the courts.

Kells' attorneys presented one witness, Dr. J. N. Hart, a psycho-pharmacologist from Lawrence, Kan., who testified on the effects of the plant dubbed the "Killer Weed" in the title of a 1947 movie.

Lacy and Gibson objected to Hart's testimony on the grounds that he had not been established as an expert. Cheuvront heard testimony from Hart for most of the day, then asked the lawyers to submit briefs in the case before he makes a decision.

Kells, in conversation with reporters during a break in courtroom proceedings, said that when he found himself in his predicament he decided it was time to "get involved" and challenge the law itself.

Cohen Presents His 'Conspiracy' Theory

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

"John F. Kennedy was killed over Cuba," according to a California man, Jeff Cohen, a representative of the Assassination Information Bureau, speaking in Lincoln Thursday night

Cohen alleged, in his speech titled, 'A Decade of Dirty Tricks," that a definite conspiracy was involved in the JFK assassination and set out to prove, in a slide and film presentation, that the same people were involved in many of the other assassinations of note, namely Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Malcolm X.

The now famous Zapruder film, "suppressed for years following the 1963 shooting in Dallas," Cohen said, was shown both in total and on a frame-by-frame basis. Cohen pointed out some theories that his group is working on in regards to the theory of more than one gun, and assassin, being involved.

He pointed out an umbrella, being held by a man, that appeared in the direct line of the camera as it was photographing the motorcade. The man with the umbrella was also shown in subsequent frames as "still in the area, but not interested in the same thing as the rest of the crowd," Cohen said.

Other pictures showed other alleged conspirators and Cohen's rhetoric not only kept the small crowd spellbound, but it also served to tie all of the pieces that Cohen wanted to bind together, together.

The multi-gun theory in the RFK assassination was covered, in brief, as were the deaths of 18 "key witnesses" in the JFK shooting, and the deaths of 20 Black Panthers.

Cohen dotted his closing rhetoric with swipes at "the establishment press" and spoke in support of the "alternative structure of the news . . . so the people can really be informed."

Nebraskans Vote Against Tax Reform

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said she voted against the tax reform bill passed Thursday by the House of Representatives because the majority of the Congress failed to take seriously the problem of controlling spending.

The House passed the measure on a 257 to 168 roll call vote, with Nebraska Representatives John Y. McCollister and Charles Thone, both also Republicans, voting against it.

"Once again, the Congress has taken the easy way out by voting to continue tax cuts, but failing to take the necessary steps to control spending," she said. "The only possible result of this irresponsible action is to give congressional sanction to unbridled spending."

McCollister said he would remain opposed to the tax reform measure until it contained an offsetting spending ceiling.

Two attempts to attach a spending ceiling to the bill were rejected, the second being turned down Thursday on a straight party line vote.

"When the spending ceiling was rejected," McCollister said, "I did not even have to look at the specifics of the bill to determine my final vote against its passage."

"There is no one in Washington today who believes we will have a deficit this year anywhere as low as the $60 billion President Ford set as a limit earlier this year," Mrs. Smith said.

Skating, Skiing On Recreation Agenda

Skating lessons will be Dec. 29-31, and Jan. 2, 1976, at Pershing Auditorium. The sessions will amount to a total of six hours instruction.

Classes will be from 10-11:30 a.m. A registration fee of $5.00, to be paid the first day of classes, includes skates. People may preregister with the recreation department.

The recreation department and the Lincoln Table Tennis Association will sponsor a citywide table tennis tournament on Dec. 21.

Categories include elementary, junior high, senior high, men's (advanced, intermediate and beginner), women's and doubles (advanced and beginner).

There is no admission fee, but some divisions will be limited in number.

The recreation department will also sponsor a ski trip to the Hidden Valley Ski Area over Christmas vacation. The trip, which will be Dec. 30-Jan. 4, is limited to junior and senior high school students.

Transportation will be by chartered bus. Space is limited.

Calling For Police Still Confusing

Because of confusion on how to telephone the police department under a new switchboard system, Police Chief George Hansen Thursday repeated directions on how to contact police.

To report emergencies and crimes in progress people should dial 477-7111, formerly the general departmental number, or 911, Hansen said.

For non-emergency calls citizens could dial 473-6245, Hansen said. A supplement to the new telephone directory listing a number of offices in the department will be enclosed in December telephone bills.

Ribbon-Cutting Ceremony Set For Parking Lot

This will be the first of three parking lots that the city will build in University Place to alleviate the area's parking problems.

The lots were financed through gas tax funds which were rebated to the city by the state. The cost of the three projects will be about $265,000.

HUGLO FIREPLACE LOGS
FACTORY DIRECT SALE
Big storage advantages. clean — bug vermin and odor free — compact, so you store logs for more fires in much less space.
Compressed (10 to 1 ratio) for a warmer fire than natural logs
Clean burning — so you'll have much less ash and less fireplace cleaning
Easily broken into small pieces. With the firestick included in each package you have a fast, easy fire.
We are conducting a special sale, prompted by two reasons: (1) To obtain public reaction to the product and (2) We need the space presently occupied by 800 pallets of logs in our warehouse. For these reasons we are offering to the public. the chance to buy Huglo logs direct from our factory at $75.00 per pallet, (about 47¢ per package - a savings of over 50% !!!). Only full pallets will be sold. We will load the pallets on the back of your pickup truck at no charge. The pallets have plastic banding to hold the logs in place. Actual pallet size is 42" wide x 48" deep and 36" high. This will allow the pallet to be placed in most 1/2 ton pickup trucks.
The logs will be on sale during our regular plant working hours, except over noon hours, 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. For a while, will also sell logs on Saturdays from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. You must call ahead to allow us to properly schedule your pickup. Phone: 643-2991
If you cannot store a whole pallet load, may we suggest that you share a pallet with some friends.
You may return the empty pallets for a credit of $2.00.

Local Resident Challenges Nebraska Marijuana Laws

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

There was a noise. Robert Kells stirred from slumber on the couch of his two-room apartment. When he opened his eyes he could make out a dim figure in the early morning blackness.

"This dude was trying to rip off my stereo," Kells recalled.

The figure ran out the door. Kells, in alarm, called police. "They got there quicker than I expected," Kells said dryly in the hall outside Lancaster County Court.

So it came to pass Thursday that Kells was in Lancaster County Court, conceding that marijuana was found in his apartment, but arguing that the state law making that a crime was wrong.

Giving him hope was a decision by the Alaska Supreme Court a few months ago that citizens' constitutional right to privacy can be construed to mean that the government has no right to stop people from keeping a little grass around the home for private use.

The state has no "legitimate interest" in private matters such as this involving an "essentially innocuos substance" went the arguments presented before Judge Jeffre Cheuvront by Kells' attorneys, Dennis Keefe and Kirk Naylor.

Earlier the attorneys had agreed that as a matter of evidence marijuana was found in Kell's apartment. But they asked Cheuvront to dismiss the charge on the grounds the law was unconstitutional.

Deputy Lancaster County Attorneys Gary Lacey and Bob Gibson fought back. On the question of whether marijuana is harmful, "it comes down to a battle of the experts," prosecutor Lacey argued.

The State Legislature took into consideration the variety of views on the harmfulness of the plant and determined that it "does have an injurious effect," Lacey argued.

If the law should be repealed, he continued, the Legislature should make the change, not the courts.

Kells' attorneys presented one witness, Dr. J. N. Hart, a psycho-pharmacologist from Lawrence, Kan., who testified on the effects of the plant dubbed the "Killer Weed" in the title of a 1947 movie.

Lacy and Gibson objected to Hart's testimony on the grounds that he had not been established as an expert. Cheuvront heard testimony from Hart for most of the day, then asked the lawyers to submit briefs in the case before he makes a decision.

Kells, in conversation with reporters during a break in courtroom proceedings, said that when he found himself in his predicament he decided it was time to "get involved" and challenge the law itself.

Cohen Presents His 'Conspiracy' Theory

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

"John F. Kennedy was killed over Cuba," according to a California man, Jeff Cohen, a representative of the Assassination Information Bureau, speaking in Lincoln Thursday night.

Cohen alleged, in his speech titled, 'A Decade of Dirty Tricks," that a definite conspiracy was involved in the JFK assassination and set out to prove, in a slide and film presentation, that the same people were involved in many of the other assassinations of note, namely Robert Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Malcolm X.

The now famous Zapruder film, "suppressed for years following the 1963 shooting in Dallas," Cohen said, was shown both in total and on a frame-by-frame basis. Cohen pointed out some theories that his group is working on in regards to the theory of more than one gun, and assassin, being involved.

He pointed out an umbrella, being held by a man, that appeared in the direct line of the camera as it was photographing the motorcade. The man with the umbrella was also shown in subsequent frames as "still in the area, but not interested in the same thing as the rest of the crowd," Cohen said.

Other pictures showed other alleged conspirators and Cohen's rhetoric not only kept the small crowd spellbound, but it also served to tie all of the pieces that Cohen wanted to bind together, together.

The multi-gun theory in the RFK assassination was covered, in brief, as were the deaths of 18 "key witnesses" in the JFK shooting, and the deaths of 20 Black Panthers.

Cohen dotted his closing rhetoric with swipes at "the establishment press" and spoke in support of the "alternative structure of the news . . . so the people can really be informed."

Skating, Skiing On Recreation Agenda

December activities for the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department include ice skating, skiing and table tennis.

Skating lessons will be Dec. 29-31, and Jan. 2, 1976, at Pershing Auditorium. The sessions will amount to a total of six hours instruction.

Classes will be from 10-11:30 a.m. A registration fee of $5.00, to be paid the first day of classes, includes skates. People may preregister with the recreation department.

The recreation department and the Lincoln Table Tennis Association will sponsor a citywide table tennis tournament on Dec. 21.

Categories include elementary, junior high, senior high, men's (advanced, intermediate and beginner), women's and doubles (advanced and beginner).

There is no admission fee, but some divisions will be limited in number.

The recreation department will also sponsor a ski trip to the Hidden Valley Ski Area over Christmas vacation. The trip, which will be Dec. 30-Jan. 4, is limited to junior and senior high school students.

Transportation will be by chartered bus. Space is limited.

Calling For Police Still Confusing

Because of confusion on how to telephone the police department under a new switchboard system, Police Chief George Hansen Thursday repeated directions on how to contact police.

To report emergencies and crimes in progress people should dial 477-7111, formerly the general departmental number, or 911, Hansen said.

For non-emergency calls citizens could dial 473-6245, Hansen said. A supplement to the new telephone directory listing a number of offices in the department will be enclosed in December telephone bills.

Ribbon-Cutting Ceremony Set For Parking Lot

This will be the first of three parking lots that the city will build in University Place to alleviate the area's parking problems.

The lots were financed through gas tax funds which were rebated to the city by the state. The cost of the three projects will be about $265,000.

Nebraskans Vote Against Tax Reform

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Virginia Smith, R-Neb., said she voted against the tax reform bill passed Thursday by the House of Representatives because the majority of the Congress failed to take seriously the problem of controlling spending.

The House passed the measure on a 257 to 168 roll call vote, with Nebraska Representatives John Y. McCollister and Charles Thone, both also Republicans, voting against it.

"Once again, the Congress has taken the easy way out by voting to continue tax cuts, but failing to take the necessary steps to control spending," she said. "The only possible result of this irresponsible action is to give congressional sanction to unbridled spending."

McCollister said he would remain opposed to the tax reform measure until it contained an offsetting spending ceiling.

Two attempts to attach a spending ceiling to the bill were rejected, the second being turned down Thursday on a straight party line vote.

"When the spending ceiling was rejected," McCollister said, "I did not even have to look at the specifics of the bill to determine my final vote against its passage."

"There is no one in Washington today who believes we will have a deficit this year anywhere as low as the $60 billion President Ford set as a limit earlier this year," Mrs. Smith said.

HUGLO FIREPLACE LOGS
FACTORY DIRECT SALE
Big storage advantages: clean — bug vermin and odor free — compact, so you store logs for more fires in much less space.
Clean burning — so you'll have much less ash and less fireplace cleaning.
Easily broken into small pieces. With the firestick included in each package you have a fast, easy fire.
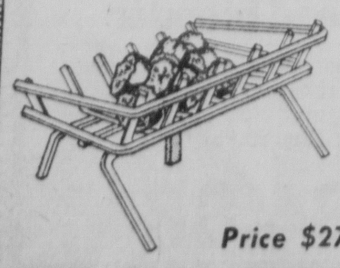
We are conducting a special sale, prompted by two reasons: (1) To obtain public reaction to the product and (2) We need the space presently occupied by 800 pallets of logs in our warehouse. For these reasons we are offering to the public, the chance to buy Huglo logs direct from our factory at $75.00 per pallet, (about 47¢ per package - a savings of over 50% !!!). Only full pallets will be sold. We will load the pallets on the back of your pickup truck at no charge. The pallets have plastic banding to hold the logs in place. Actual pallet size is 42" wide x 48" deep and 36" high. This will allow the pallet to be placed in most 1/2 ton pickup trucks.
The logs will be on sale during our regular plant working hours, except over noon hours, 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. For a while, will also sell logs on Saturdays from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. You must call ahead to allow us to properly schedule your pickup. Phone: 643-2991
If you cannot store a whole pallet load, may we suggest that you share a pallet with some friends.
You may return the empty pallets for a credit of $2.00.


a grate improves any fire
By providing draft from the bottom, a grate makes it easier to start your fire and keep it burning attractively. The grate also contains the logs for greater safety. If you do not already use a grate — consider the one shown at left, especially designed for Huglo logs and fabricated in our plant. Hand welded of ½" steel rods, it weighs approximately 30 pounds and is a heavy-duty, serviceable grate built for years of good service.

High Court Upholds Firing Of Falls City Policeman

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday upheld the firing of a Falls City policeman and also rejected a damage claim filed against a Scottsbluff bank by a woman who fell on some ice in front of the bank.

In each case, the Supreme Court upheld lower court decisions.

John T. Cummings was fired effective Oct. 16, 1974, by the Falls City Civil Service Commission after hearings were held on a complaint filed against him by six fellow officers.

The complaint was drawn up by the six officers during a meeting at the home of the assistant chief of police, Jim Becker. It was turned over to the chief of police, Ivan Bieck, who in turn filed it with the Civil Service ommission.

Cummings filed suit saying the evidence introduced before the Civil Service Commission was insufficient to support the firing.

The charges involved claims of incompetency, insubordination and discourteousness.

The Supreme Court said the testimony offered indicated the man's driving record was "subject to criticism," that he announced at the beginning of a shift he was "going to get" certain individuals before his shift was over, and that he told persons outside the police department of an upcoming raid.

The testimony was sufficient, the court concluded.

In the Scottsbluff case, Mrs. Dorothy Brandt filed suit against the Scottsbluff National Bank and Trust Co. after she fell in front of the bank while making an after hours deposit on Christmas Eve of 1968.

The Scotts Bluff County District Court said the bank was not at fault and the Supreme Court agreed.

The Supreme Court said Mrs. Brandt had been outside several times during the day and knew it was icy. In fact, said the court, Mrs. Brandt was with another woman at one point during the day who fell.

In rejecting the woman's claim for damages, the high court said the general rule is that "there is no liability on the part of an inviter to protect a customer against hazards which are known to the customer and are so apparent that he may reasonably be expected to discover them and be able to protect himself."

In other decisions the Supreme Court:

—Remanded to the Custer County District Court an estate dispute involving Oscar Swick and Gerald Coslor.

—Approved the terms of a divorce decree issued by the Cheyenne County District Court to Daryle and Mary Conger.

—Upheld the decisikon of the Douglas County District Court to sentence Allen James Green to a prison term of one to three years for uttering a forged instrument.

—Affirmed the decision of the Thayer County District Court in an insurance policy dispute filed by Farmers Union Cooperative Insurance Co. against Mark Reinwald.

—Agreed with the decision of the Dodge County District Court to uphold the revocation of a drivers license issued to Delores Barton by the State Motor Vehicles Department for violation of Nebraska's implied consent law.

—Upheld the decision of the Douglas County District Court to dismiss an automobile insurance coverage dispute filed by Sandlord Dyas against Irene Morris.

Commission To Eat Roast For Research

By United Press International

Members of the Old West Regional Commission will do just that next week, but primarily in the name of research.

The commission members will be asked to distinguish between beef fattened on alfalfa and beef fattened on ground up aspen trees.

The South Dakota Department of Game, Fish and Parks received a $20,000 grant from the commission for the project, which seeks to examine marketing possibilities if the aspen is deemed suitable and economical for cattle feed.

The department has been feeding 60 hereford steers on a variety of aspen concentrates so see how well they would fatten in comparison to those fed on alfalfa roughage.

'Pleasantly Surprised'

Dr. L. D. Kampstra, head of the South Dakota State University (SDSU) Animal Sciences Department research team involved in the project, said researchers were "pleasantly surprised" at initial program test results.

"We're taking a second look at our figures to be sure there is no error," Kampstra said. "Early reports indicated aspen-fed cattle were gaining weight approximately twice as rapidly as the alfalfa-fed group."

Initially, 24 steers were slaughtered and butchered, and while aspen-fed beef didn't get into the choice grade, it did exhibit light to moderate marbling, enough to qualify as good grade beef and better than alfalfa-fed steers.

Four Rib Roasts

In order to obtain the official imprimatur of the regional commission on the taste, Kampstra said he plans to send four standing rib roasts to Bismarck where they will be flagged and served at a Dec. 11 luncheon.

Commission members will be asked to identify the beef and then will receive detailed results from the earlier SDSU test panel.

A commission spokesman said the project stemmed from the relative abundance of aspen trees in the five-state region of Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas.

No Commercial Purpose

Aspens are especially thick in the Black Hills and areas of Wyoming and have no present commercial purpose other than for occasional use as firewood. Aspens are subject to excessive rot in maturity and thus become virtually useless as a source of food and cover for wildlife.

In addition, the spokesman said, there has long been a recognized need to harvest aspens to improve wildlife habitats for ruffled grouse, deer, elk and other wildlife.

For purposes of the test, the entire tree was ground into a variety of feed concentrates. The steers were given a 48% aspen concentrate with sodium hydroxide added to increase its appeal.

The spokesman said grazing cattle have exhibited a long-standing preference for bark from aspen trees.

Ruling May Lead To Sale Of Grand Island Mall

By United Press International

U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom has issued a ruling which may result in a U.S. Marshal's sale of the Grand Island shopping mall to satisfy creditors.

Urbom Thursday held that United Jersey Mortgage Co., Hackensack, N.J., is the legal owner of the property and holder of a mortgage.

He said that $3,726,435 is now due that firm, plus interest at the rate of 10.75% from the date of his judgement, from S & H Shopping Centers Inc., also of Hackensack.

Urbom said if the money isn't paid in 60 days, the property is to be sold with proceeds going to satisfy creditors, including John E. and Mary E. English of Lincoln.

English owns 45 acres of ground on which the mall sits, according to one of the attorneys in the suit. He said about 80,000 square feet is occupied.

English obtained the land as part of a transaction in which they traded some 260 acres for the proposed Highland Development in northwest Lincoln for land in Grand Island and Bellevue.

This is the second mall in Grand Island to face financial difficulty. The other one is known as the Conestoga Mall. In that case, being handled in the state court system, a nine-month stay of sale was granted in October.

Prior to that, Hall County District Judge Donald Weaver ordered the mall sold within 20 days to pay over $3 million in debts to Union American Trust and Mortgage.

That stay gives developers a chance to try and find a way of paying their debts without a court sale.

UP Installs New System For Drafting

Omaha (UPI) — The Union Pacific Railroad said Thursday it has installed the railroad industry's first computerized drafting system at its Omaha headquarters.

Emil Krause, UP's general signal engineer, said the system will be used for producing, storing and retrieving engineering signal drawings.

Using the system, Krause said a draftsman can produce schematic drawings for a signal system in a matter of hours that previously required several days to complete. Krause said the system is expected to triple production of UP's signal drafting section when it becomes fully operational.

Instead of a pencil and paper, the system utilizes television screens and a mini computer. A library of drawings of frequently used signal devices and designs is stored in the computer's memory system.

A draftsman can create a new schematic drawing by calling up the required designs or devices from the computer library and placing them in the proper location on his screens.

Once the drawing is completed on the screens, instructions are fed into the computer and the finished drawing is printed out on paper by an electrostatic plotter connected to the system.

Sylbert Named Production Head

Omaha Police OK Contract

Omaha (AP) — Police officers, after three votes in the last month, have accepted the city of Omaha's two-year contract.

Union President Wally Jernigan said the vote was 252 yes and 156 no. There was one abstention.

The contract was accepted earlier, but a new vote was asked when some police officers said there was confusion about vacation policy. The policemen then voted on whether to take a new vote and that passed.

The pact calls for a 5.2% raise next year and a 10% hike in 1977.

Slide Ends With Mixed Showing

NEW YORK (AP) — A favorable turn in the trend of wholesale prices helped the stock market brake a three-session slide with a mixed showing in moderate trading Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 35.18 points from the start of the week through Wednesday's close, rebounded 3.62 to 829.11.

Big Board volume tapered off to 16.38 million shares from 21.32 million Wednesday.

The figure was in marked contrast to the rise at a 21.6 per cent annual rate recorded the month before.

Although the improvement stemmed largely from a drop in the volatile food component of the index, the data also showed industrial-goods prices rising at only half their October rate.

With all that, however, analysts said the market continued to display signs of edginess over the course of the economic recovery that began to show up during the summer.

Brokers also noted uncertainty over the outlook for intrest rates.

Short term money rates showed mixed changes in the Federal Reserve's latest week report, issued just after the close.

G.D. Searle was the day's most active issue, off ¾ at 14½ on turnover of 225,800 shares. The Food and Drug Administration suspended its authorization for Searle to market a new low-calorie sweetening product.

Grain Futures Gain Trimmed

Chicago (AP) — Grain futures prices soared on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday after Russia had announced a lower grain production figure than had been expected, but the advance in futures was sharply trimmed before the close.

Russia announced late Wednesday small grain production this year would total an estimated 137 million metric tons, compared to the previous estimate of 160 million metric tons. The latter figure had been sharply reduced from the original of over 200 million metric tons.

With the Russian announcement, the trade envisioned expanded sales again of grain to the Communist country and bid futures sharply higher. Soybeans rose 15½ cents a bushel, wheat 12½, corn 9 and oats 5. Strong moves also were posted in soy meal and oil and iced broilers.

Domestic gold futures gained about $1 an ounce but trade was slow.

Hog Prices Turn Higher At Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hogs turned higher on the Omaha livestock market Thursdayning, while the fresh slaughter supply wasn't really big enough to test the cattle trade.

This morning's hog run was estimated at about 5,500 head. The trade on barrows and gilts weighing in from 190-to-240-pounds was fairly active. The trend was 25-to-75-cents higher, with many sales 50-to-70-cents on the upside.

Trade on heavier-weighted butchers was moderately active, and the trend was steady to 50-cents higher.

There were only about 1,200 cattle and calves on offer this morning, with sales on a few loads steers called mostly 50-cents higher.

However, there wasn't enough action to provide a good slaughter market test.

As is normal on Thursdays and Fridays, sheep were nominal.

Commission To Eat Roast For Research

By United Press International

Members of the Old West Regional Commission will do just that next week, but primarily in the name of research.

The commission members will be asked to distinguish between beef fattened on alfalfa and beef fattened on ground up aspen trees.

The South Dakota Department of Game, Fish and Parks received a $20,000 grant from the commission for the project, which seeks to examine marketing possibilities if the aspen is deemed suitable and economical for cattle feed.

The department has been feeding 60 hereford steers on a variety of aspen concentrates so see how well they would fatten in comparison to those fed on alfalfa roughage.

'Pleasantly Surprised'

Dr. L. D. Kampstra, head of the South Dakota State University (SDSU) Animal Sciences Department research team involved in the project, said researchers were "pleasantly surprised" at initial program test results.

"We're taking a second look at our figures to be sure there is no error," Kampstra said. "Early reports indicated aspen-fed cattle were gaining weight approximately twice as rapidly as the alfalfa-fed group."

Initially, 24 steers were slaughtered and butchered, and while aspen-fed beef didn't get into the choice grade, it did exhibit light to moderate marbling, enough to qualify as good grade beef and better than alfalfa-fed steers.

Four Rib Roasts

In order to obtain the official imprimatur of the regional commission on the taste, Kampstra said he plans to send four standing rib roasts to Bismarck where they will be flagged and served at a Dec. 11 luncheon.

Commission members will be asked to identify the beef and then will receive detailed results from the earlier SDSU test panel.

A commission spokesman said the project stemmed from the relative abundance of aspen trees in the five-state region of Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas.

No Commercial Purpose

Aspens are especially thick in the Black Hills and areas of Wyoming and have no present commercial purpose other than for occasional use as firewood. Aspens are subject to excessive rot in maturity and thus become virtually useless as a source of food and cover for wildlife.

In addition, the spokesman said, there has long been a recognized need to harvest aspens to improve wildlife habitats for ruffled grouse, deer, elk and other wildlife.

For purposes of the test, the entire tree was ground into a variety of feed concentrates. The steers were given a 48% aspen concentrate with sodium hydroxide added to increase its appeal.

The spokesman said grazing cattle have exhibited a long-standing preference for bark from aspen trees.

Ruling May Lead To Sale Of Grand Island Mall

By United Press International

U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom has issued a ruling which may result in a U.S. Marshal's sale of the Grand Island shopping mall to satisfy creditors.

Urbom Thursday held that United Jersey Mortgage Co., Hackensack, N.J., is the legal owner of the property and holder of a mortgage.

He said that $3,726,435 is now due that firm, plus interest at the rate of 10.75% from the date of his judgement, from S & H Shopping Centers Inc., also of Hackensack.

Urbom said if the money isn't paid in 60 days, the property is to be sold with proceeds going to satisfy creditors, including John E. and Mary E. English of Lincoln.

English owns 45 acres of ground on which the mall sits, according to one of the attorneys in the suit. He said about 80,000 square feet is occupied.

English obtained the land as part of a transaction in which they traded some 260 acres for the proposed Highland Development in northwest Lincoln for land in Grand Island and Bellevue.

This is the second mall in Grand Island to face financial difficulty. The other one is known as the Conestoga Mall. In that case, being handled in the state court system, a nine-month stay of sale was granted in October.

Prior to that, Hall County District Judge Donald Weaver ordered the mall sold within 20 days to pay over $3 million in debts to Union American Trust and Mortgage.

That stay gives developers a chance to try and find a way of paying their debts without a court sale.

UP Installs New System For Drafting

Omaha (UPI) — The Union Pacific Railroad said Thursday it has installed the railroad industry's first computerized drafting system at its Omaha headquarters.

Emil Krause, UP's general signal engineer, said the system will be used for producing, storing and retrieving engineering signal drawings.

Using the system, Krause said a draftsman can produce schematic drawings for a signal system in a matter of hours that previously required several days to complete. Krause said the system is expected to triple production of UP's signal drafting section when it becomes fully operational.

Instead of a pencil and paper, the system utilizes television screens and a mini computer. A library of drawings of frequently used signal devices and designs is stored in the computer's memory system.

A draftsman can create a new schematic drawing by calling up the required designs or devices from the computer library and placing them in the proper location on his screens.

Once the drawing is completed on the screens, instructions are fed into the computer and the finished drawing is printed out on paper by an electrostatic plotter connected to the system.

Sylbert Named Production Head

Omaha Police OK Contract

Omaha (AP) — Police officers, after three votes in the last month, have accepted the city of Omaha's two-year contract.

Union President Wally Jernigan said the vote was 252 yes and 156 no. There was one abstention.

The contract was accepted earlier, but a new vote was asked when some police officers said there was confusion about vacation policy. The policemen then voted on whether to take a new vote and that passed.

The pact calls for a 5.2% raise next year and a 10% hike in 1977.

Slide Ends With Mixed Showing

NEW YORK (AP) — A favorable turn in the trend of wholesale prices helped the stock market brake a three-session slide with a mixed showing in moderate trading Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 35.18 points from the start of the week through Wednesday's close, rebounded 3.62 to 829.11.

Big Board volume tapered off to 16.38 million shares from 21.32 million Wednesday.

The figure was in marked contrast to the rise at a 21.6 per cent annual rate recorded the month before.

Although the improvement stemmed largely from a drop in the volatile food component of the index, the data also showed industrial-goods prices rising at only half their October rate.

With all that, however, analysts said the market continued to display signs of edginess over the course of the economic recovery that began to show up during the summer.

Brokers also noted uncertainty over the outlook for intrest rates.

Short term money rates showed mixed changes in the Federal Reserve's latest week report, issued just after the close.

G.D. Searle was the day's most active issue, off ¾ at 14½ on turnover of 225,800 shares. The Food and Drug Administration suspended its authorization for Searle to market a new low-calorie sweetening product.

Grain Futures Gain Trimmed

Chicago (AP) — Grain futures prices soared on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday after Russia had announced a lower grain production figure than had been expected, but the advance in futures was sharply trimmed before the close.

Russia announced late Wednesday small grain production this year would total an estimated 137 million metric tons, compared to the previous estimate of 160 million metric tons. The latter figure had been sharply reduced from the original of over 200 million metric tons.

With the Russian announcement, the trade envisioned expanded sales again of grain to the Communist country and bid futures sharply higher. Soybeans rose 15½ cents a bushel, wheat 12½, corn 9 and oats 5. Strong moves also were posted in soy meal and oil and iced broilers.

Domestic gold futures gained about $1 an ounce but trade was slow.

Hog Prices Turn Higher At Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hogs turned higher on the Omaha livestock market Thursdayning, while the fresh slaughter supply wasn't really big enough to test the cattle trade.

This morning's hog run was estimated at about 5,500 head. The trade on barrows and gilts weighing in from 190-to-240-pounds was fairly active. The trend was 25-to-75-cents higher, with many sales 50-to-70-cents on the upside.

Trade on heavier-weighted butchers was moderately active, and the trend was steady to 50-cents higher.

There were only about 1,200 cattle and calves on offer this morning, with sales on a few loads steers called mostly 50-cents higher.

However, there wasn't enough action to provide a good slaughter market test.

As is normal on Thursdays and Fridays, sheep were nominal.

Direct Cattle Sales

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)(USDA)— Direct cattle trade Thursday:

Volume 3,500; outlet not very wide, but some plants needing next week's starter supplies furnishing reasonably good demand. Sellers bullish, most of supply held in strong hands; with mud and warm temperatures worsening feedlot conditions, more buyers bidding solely in beef.

Live basis: Offerings with 3 per cent pencil shrink made up 50 per cent of supply; steady in slow trade; steers good to mostly choice 1,000-1,150 lb 46.50-47.50; few 1,100-1,275 lb 47.50-48.00; good and low choice 44.00-45.50; heifers good to mostly choice 850-1,000 lb 44.00-45.50; few loads relatively clean 900-975 lb 45.50-46.00; same grade but muddy 44.00-44.75.

Dressed basis: generally steady; weight only steers high good to choice 500-800 lb 75.00-76.00; heifers high good to choice 400-700 lb 72.00-73.50.

Setbacks Plague Powerful Rocket Wrestlers

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Lincoln Northeast coach John McIntyre has been winding up for wrestling season since last February, but unwound a bit a couple weeks ago.

The Rockets' projected powerhouse is operating a few pistons short in season-opening competition at the Omaha North Invitational this weekend.

Rene Longoria, the Capital City's best returning state meet place finisher (second), is unable to compete in the North tournament.

He suffered a knee injury in a physical education class and McIntyre decided to withhold him from competition.

"He hasn't got full motion of his knee yet," the 12-year Northeast mat coach noted. "If this were the state tournament, he'd be in there. But I don't think it's worth the risk this early."

More Setbacks

Two other lettermen were expected back, but one failed to pass his physical and the other elected not to try out.

Add to that the loss of Rich Peterson, who moved to Pennsylvania after winning the state Class A 132-pound championship as a junior, and McIntyre has cause to feel snake-bitten.

He is not, however, conceding anything. The Rockets are still the favorite to win their third straight city championship and could figure prominently in the state competition.

McIntyre has four solid threats besides Rene — 105-pound Dick Longoria, Rene's younger brother, 132-pound Lanny Lawrence, 145-pound Ken Singleton and heavyweight Kirby Monahan.

East coach Jim Holechek is among those putting Northeast in the favorite's role, but he believes his Spartans could challenge "after an abyssmally bad season last year."

Holechek says "we put a team on the varsity mat that should have been on the reserve mat. Things look better this season. I don't think we have any real giveaway weights."

Strasheim Returns

That hope centers around junior Steve Reinsch and seniors Dan Vavrina and Tom Tracy, all of whom qualified for state last season.

Lincoln High coach Mel Simpson, starting his 14th season, could manufacture some surprises within the city. He has eight returning lettermen.

Simpson admits though it could be a misleading fact. "We won only one dual and got blasted in every tournament," he recalls. "I'm hoping for a much better showing."

Southeast coach Gail Baum returns five lettermen. But only one, 126-pound senior Ken Jensen, had a winning record last season (12-8).

"We're no contender to start with," says Baum. "But if we keep improving, we could develop and challenge some people. At least I'm hoping that's the case."

Preps Eyeing Road Games

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Lincoln Southeast-Beatrice is "the only game in town" Friday night. But season-opening basketball interest is equally high with Lincoln Northeast's trip to McCook and Lincoln High's journey to Hastings Friday night.

Northeast will be battling a familiar coach, Jerry Schmutte. He coached Northeast's sophomore team last season before moving to McCook.

Schmutte, who accepted the McCook post over a similar head coaching offer from Scottsbluff, coached eight years at Lincoln's Culler Junior High School and one as a Northeast assistant.

'Great Man'

"I was grateful for the chance. Ed was a great man to work for," he adds. "I guess I should know what Northeast plays. Being honest, I think we've got a chance to win. We're really looking forward to it."

Beatrice is no exception to the unusually high pre-season optimism among outstate Class A schools.

Neil Nannen finds it difficult to conceal. "Right now," he says, "this year's team is ahead of our state tournament teams of 1973 and 1974. We're just going to have to improve like those other two."

Friday's big challenge against Southeast is scheduled for East High's gym at 8 p.m.

Three Saturday

It's the only prep game in Lincoln Friday night, although three games are set in the Capital City Saturday night — Bellevue at East, Omaha Westside at Lincoln High and Raymond Central and Pius X.

"I'm expecting a good matchup," offered Nannen. "I know they'll be heavily favored because they're in the top five ranked teams in the pre-season.

"But we have some people who can play, too," noted Nannen, who could have potentially his best team in eight years as Beatrice's head coach.

The root of Beatrice's optimism is the return of two front-line starters — 6-4 Lynn Schlake, who averaged 15 points a game last season and 6-3 John Mack, who averaged 12 points a game.

Strong Rebounding

Put 6-5 senior center Wayne Meyer into that same front line and Beatrice believes it can rebound with most anyone.

Nannen has another front-liner who could work his way into the starting lineup before Christmas Bruce Hofeling, a 6-5 sophomore who high jumped 6-4 to qualify for the state track meet as a freshman, broke all frosh rebound records last season.

"He'll play a lot for us," promised Nannen. "We hope that front line can work together as a unit."

The accent may be on the front line, but Nannen has equal confidence in his backcourt, manned by senior 6-0 letterman Jerry Philippi and 6-1 senior Allen Buss. He played reserve ball last season.

"I saw a lot of Dave Griffin in basketball school," Nannen said of Southeast's standout 6-7 pivot. "I think he's one of the best players in the state. He doesn't miss from 10 to 15 feet and he's going to be a lot more aggressive.

"The rest of Southeast's lineup looks pretty impressive, too," according to Nannen. "Bill Moody will really help them and Andy Zobs has played now for two years. We're anxious to see how we stack up in the front line with them. Their guards look just as solid."

Praises Coaches

Nannen considers McNaught "one of the best coaches in the state and Denny Puelz always does a great job with their reserve teams. I don't think the transition for their reserve players will be all that tough this season."

Southeast is the only team on the road Saturday night. The Knights journey to North Platte for a Trans-Nebraska test. Saturday night home games for East and Pius X are season-openers for both clubs.

Game on TV

Friday's season-opening basketball game between Lincoln Southeast and Beatrice will be cablecast on channel 6.

Illinois Cagers Still Unbeaten

From News Wires

Illinois, paced by Rich Adams' 20 points, had four men in double figures Thursday night as the Illini stopped Missouri-Rolla, 67-65.

Elsewhere in collegiate basketball Thursday night, fourth-ranked North Carolina downed Seton Hall, 75-63, in the first game of a college doubleheader at Madison Square Garden and Drake routed Mankato State, 99-78.

At Champaign, Adams also grabbed 10 rebounds as Nate Williams scored 19 points, Mike Washington had 13 and Audie Matthews hit 12.

Meanwhile Phil Ford scored 27 points, 19 in the second half, helping the Atlantic Coast power Tar Heels pull away in the second half. Ford handed out 10 assists, but was almost upstaged by Greg Tynes, who tallied 23 points for Seton Hall.

Raymond Watson added 18 points, reserve Gregory Johns 16 and Paul Mellen, Wayne Kreklow and Rod Littlepage 10 for Drake.

Elisha McSweeney led Mankato State, 1-1, with 26 points, and Gil Williams chipped in with 12.

Drake hit 42 of 90 from the field for 47 per cent, compared to 42 per cent for Mankato State.

In the second game at the Garden, Phil Sellers scored 33 points, but unheralded guard Ed Jordan's 10-point scoring outburst carried 18th-ranked Rutgers to an 81-73 victory over Purdue.

The game was tied 56-56 midway through the second half when Jordan scored five straight baskets and then stole the ball to Steve Hesele for a sixth to put the Scarlet Knights, 68-62. Jordan, usually outshadowed by his backcourt mate Mike Dabney, finished with 17 points as Rutgers improved to 2-0.

Guard Bruce Parkinson was high scorer for Purdue with 17 points, Eugene Parker had 14 and forward Walter Jordan had 13.

Purdue took a 44-43 halftime lead, with Bruce Parkinson scoring 13 points and the Boilermakers hitting 64 per cent of their shots. Rugers shot 50 per cent and were led by Sellers' 17 points.

In the second half, the Knights went ahead for good when Ed Jordan hit a driving scoop shot. It broke the third tie of the half with 10 minutes left as Rutgers led 62-60.

A last-second shot that sunk Nebraska Wesleyan in its home opener last Saturday won't make Plainsmen coach Irv Peterson do anything drastic as NWU prepares for a doubleheader at Taylor Gym Friday and Saturday nights.

NWU faces undefeated Simpson College (Iowa) Friday at 8:15 p.m. following a Midland-Jamestown (N.D.) game at 6:30 p.m. The Plainsmen square-off against Jamestown, 2-0, Saturday at 6:30 and Midland clashes with Simpson at 8:15.

"We don't plan any changes in our lineup from last weekend, but I'm sure we'll be seeing a lot more action from our freshmen and reserves," Peterson said.

Mark Simmerman, 6-8, Phil Jefferson, 6-4 and Dick Huebner, 6-4 are the freshmen that will see considerable play according to Peterson.

"We really don't need to change much, except how many turnovers we have," said Peterson. "Against Bellevue, we actually outplayed them in every other department."

Simpson scored an 88-82 decision over Northwestern, (Ia.) in its opener and then won an overtime game with Dordt, (Ia.).

"We led at the half in each game," said Simpson coach Dick Starr. "But then we'd drop back in the second half, and have to come from behind to win."

"We're inexperienced this year with only two returning starters — Bruce Wilson, 6-4, last year's second leading scorer, and Jim Greeley, 6-7, last year's leading rebounder after transferring from Iowa State as a sophomore," Starr said.

Peterson noted that 6-5 freshman guard Dave Keller was one of the best high school players in Iowa last year. "He's supposed to be one of the up-and-coming guards in the country," Peterson said.

Other starters for Simpson include Monte Hough, 6-4, and Tracey Culbertson, 6-0. The series between the two schools dates back to 1919 with Simpson leading 6-4.

Jamestown appears to be the toughest foe of the weekend for NWU, having notched decisive wins over Yankton and Mary College, while averaging 98.5 points a game and holding the opponents to 79.0.

Connors, Evert Arrive In Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A tardy Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert arrived here Thursday for their $150,000 mixed doubles challenge match Saturday against Billy Jean King and Marty Riessen, who are already in their third day of practice.

Anxious promoters had been trying to contact Connors and Miss Evert since Monday to find out when they planned to arrive here for the nationally televised contest.

The two arrived after a news conference that had been called for the four participants. Connors and Miss Evert immediately practiced late Thursday afternoon.

Riessen celebrated his 34th birthday Thursday on the indoor court at Caesar's Palace practicing with his partner, Ms. King, both of whom have been idle from competition since September.

"In practice I'll try to keep hustling and moving," said Ms. King, fighting off the remnants of a cold she said had nagged her for several days. "The thing that might turn this match around is to hustle and run after a ball.

"We both play better when we're aggressive," she said. "We've got to get our first serves in and move in."

Ms. King and Riessen said they can remember playing together in doubles competition only once, about seven years ago. But both said they felt comfortable playing together.

The new surface at the 4,000-seat tennis pavilion was giving both players trouble in early practice sessions as it was bunching up at the seams. Sponsors promised the surface would be fixed in time for the start of the match at noon, PST.

Riessen and Ms. King were rated as favorites for the match. Connors and Miss Evert have concentrated on singles play while Ms. King and Riessen have enjoyed considerable success in doubles play.

The winning team of the best three-out-of-five-sets gets $100,000. The losing team splits $50,000.

ASU Most Improved Team

The NCAA Statistics Service each year compares the season records of teams with performances of a year ago and come up with the nation's most improved major team. And in 1975 that tag goes to Arizona State's Sun Devils, Nebraska's Fiesta Bowl opponent.

The Sun Devils finished with a perfect 11-0 slate compared with last season's 7-5 record. Using the NCAA formula, that's an improvement of 4½ games.

Syracuse just missed taking the "most improved" title when it was upset by Rutgers in the final game last Saturday. The Orangemen ended 6-5 compared with a 2-9 mark a year ago under new coach Frank Maloney.

Colorado's 9-2 record was a four-game improvement (the Buffaloes were 5-6 in Bill Mallory's first season). Other teams with four-game improvement were West Virginia, Virginia Tech and Southwestern Louisiana.

Quite a few teams showed three-game improvement. Among them were Navy, Georgia, Kansas, South Carolina, and Mississippi. Texas A&M also can have the same improvement by beating Arkansas Saturday in the Southwest Conference showdown.

I'll take the Aggies 17-10 in the nationally televised contest.

Craig Was Kayoed

Buck Turnbull, writing in the Des Moines Register Wednesday morning, reported what happened to Nebraska wingback Curtis Craig in the Oklahoma game two weeks ago.

You'll recall, Craig had to be carried from the field on a stretcher and didn't regain consciousness for almost 10 minutes after being involved in a pass play which the Sooners intercepted.

Here's Turnbull's report:

"Since he was standing at the time the pass was intercepted, it was a mystery as to how he was leveled with such knockout force. Craig couldn't explain it afterwards — but the movies did.

"Oklahoma cornerback Jerry Anderson cracked him on the jaw with an illegal blow that escaped detection of the officials."

Catching Up On Sports

KOLN-KGIN-TV (Channels 10 and 11) revealed Thursday it plans to present a special Tom Osborne Fiesta Preview Show Christmas night at 9 p.m. That's the eve of the game.

The station also will carry the Fiesta Bowl parade starting at 10 a.m. the following morning and then the game itself at 2 p.m.

The stations also will televise the Kansas-Pittsburgh game starting at 11 a.m. Dec. 26. Highlights of the Fiesta Bowl will be shown on the Tom Osborne Show Dec 28 at 10:30 p.m.

The matching of Arizona State (11-0) and Nebraska (10-1) is as close as you can get to pairing undefeated and untied teams in a bowl. There have been only nine matchups in bowl history of two perfect record teams, three each by the Rose, Sugar and Orange Bowls.

There have been 17 bowl games pairing teams with just one loss and no ties for the two teams combined.

The Big Eight Conference, incidentally, is 20-17 in competition in the four major bowls while it is 32-28-1 in all bowl games. The Western Athletic Conference is 17-12-1.

Bruce Skinner, Fiesta spokesman, said 22,000 requests for tickets had to be turned down. Nebraska and Arizona State each was allotted 8,204 tickets.

NIT Loses TV Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Invitation Tournament, the nation's oldest major colege basketball tourney, has lost its national television contract, and its 16-team field has been reduced, possibly to eight teams.

The NIT, established as a six-team festival in 1938 and which flourished in the boom years of college basketball, has dropped in popularity in recent years, battling the tag of a loser's tournament.

Each year, the blue chip teams in the country are ticketed for the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament, leaving the NIT to pick its field from most of the remaining teams.

Last year, the NCAA raised its field from 25 to 32 and is reportedly considering a further expansion to 40 teams.

Then there is the two-year-old Commissioner's Tournament for runnersup, which takes the second team from each conference away from the NIT.

The NIT's ratings have dropped and CBS decided to unload the tournament, choosing not to renew its contract to televise the annual March event.

"With the NCAA expanding its field and the Commissioner's Tournament in the picture, we're were suddenly down to a poor field," a spokesman for CBS said Thursday. "Our ratings were down, we were bucking better games and we just couldn't sell it."

CBS, which had been televising the NIT since 1966, said its ratings for the 1975 festival, won by Princeton and which included teams with 13-11 and 15-11 records, were almost half what they were in 1974.

In its printed schedules, Madison Square Garden, landlord for the NIT, has allotted the 1976 tournament four dates in March. With the customary doubleheader cards, that would allow for two dates for the quarter-finals, one for the semi-finals and one for the finals.

The New York Post reported in its Thursday editions that the NIT has been pared to an eight-team format.

But the president of the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Association, the sponsors of the NIT, said Thursday that the possibility of a 10 or 12-team tournament has not been ruled out.

"Madison Square Garden has not closed the door on a fifth date," Pete Carlesimo, Fordham's athletic director, said.

Huskers Ready To Face 'Two Threats'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's basketball team actually faces "two threats" from the University of Washington.

"With their bench strength, they are really two teams. I guess you could say they're two dimensional," said NU assistant basketball coach Lonnie Porter, who scouted the Huskies in a 76-50 romp over Santa Clara last Friday in Seattle.

"Their first team is big, physical and powerful, but the subs are very quick and aggressive. They are a very good basketball team," he said. "They'll be as good or better than any team we'll play this year."

'Road Games'

"It's not going to help them playing two road games back-to-back," Porter said. "I wouldn't say that it's going to help us, but it certainly can't help them."

Porter was quick to praise three Huskies — James Edwards, Kim Stewart and Chester Dorsey.

Edwards, a 6-11 junior center from Seattle, was Washington's leading rebounder last year (7.5) and third leading scorer (12.3). Porter said he "shoots awfully well."

Lonnie Porter

"He's quick and plays aggressive defense similar to Ronnie Daniels (of Oklahoma State)," Porter said.

Despite a fifth-place finish last season in the Pacific Eight, the Huskies finished 16-10. But their biggest and most inspired effort, obviously, was a 103-81 trouncing of eventual 1975 NCAA champion UCLA.

After tripping UNLC, however, Washington dropped its last three games to Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State.

Better Efforts

That up-and-down effort probably will not occur this year, according to Porter.

"They're very similar to last year's Kansas team (the Big Eight champions), but they're bigger," Porter said. "We can win this game, but our kids will have to play better than they've played so far."

Nebraska assistant coach Moe Iba, cognizant of Washington's frontline measuring 6-11, 6-11, 6-9 said he plans no special defensive alignment for the westerners.

"We won't have any drastic defensive changes," Iba said. "We'll just try to do a better job than we have been doing."

WASHINGTON NOTES — Nebraska head basketball coach Joe Cipriano was graduated from Washington in 1953. Nebraska has not beaten Washington in five previous games. . . The Huskies stopped the Australian Nationals, 82-61, in an exhibition contest on Nove. 18 at Seattle . . . The Huskies will be the tallest team Nebraska will face this season . . . The 5:15 p.m. preliminary game sends the Nebraska women's basketball team against Tarkio (Mo.) College . . . According to the Washington press guide, Harshman "feels that there is no big man in the Pacific Eight as quick as 6-10 senior forward Larry Jackson, including UCLA's Richard Washington."

Regardless of the validity of that comment, Jackson is a strong, excellent forward who was WU's second leading scorer (12.8) last season.

Setbacks Plague Powerful Rocket Wrestlers

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Lincoln Northeast coach John McIntyre has been winding up for wrestling season since last February, but unwound a bit a couple weeks ago.

The Rockets' projected powerhouse is operating a few pistons short in season-opening competition at the Omaha North Invitational this weekend.

Rene Longoria, the Capital City's best returning state meet place finisher (second), is unable to compete in the North tournament.

He suffered a knee injury in a physical education class and McIntyre decided to withhold him from competition.

"He hasn't got full motion of his knee yet," the 12-year Northeast mat coach noted. "If this were the state tournament, he'd be in there. But I don't think it's worth the risk this early."

More Setbacks

Two other lettermen were expected back, but one failed to pass his physical and the other elected not to try out.

Add to that the loss of Rich Peterson, who moved to Pennsylvania after winning the state Class A 132-pound championship as a junior, and McIntyre has cause to feel snake-bitten.

He is not, however, conceding anything. The Rockets are still the favorite to win their third straight city championship and could figure prominently in the state competition.

McIntyre has four solid threats besides Rene — 105-pound Dick Longoria, Rene's younger brother, 132-pound Lanny Lawrence, 145-pound Ken Singleton and heavyweight Kirby Monahan.

East coach Jim Holechek is among those putting Northeast in the favorite's role, but he believes his Spartans could challenge "after an abyssmally bad season last year."

Holechek says "we put a team on the varsity mat that should have been on the reserve mat. Things look better this season. I don't think we have any real giveaway weights."

Strasheim Returns

That hope centers around junior Steve Reinsch and seniors Dan Vavrina and Tom Tracy, all of whom qualified for state last season.

Lincoln High coach Mel Simpson, starting his 14th season, could manufacture some surprises within the city. He has eight returning lettermen.

Simpson admits though it could be a misleading fact. "We won only one dual and got blasted in every tournament," he recalls. "I'm hoping for a much better showing."

Southeast coach Gail Baum returns five lettermen. But only one, 126-pound senior Ken Jensen, had a winning record last season (12-8).

"We're no contender to start with," says Baum. "But if we keep improving, we could develop and challenge some people. At least I'm hoping that's the case."

Preps Eyeing Road Games

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Lincoln Southeast-Beatrice is "the only game in town" Friday night. But season-opening basketball interest is equally high with Lincoln Northeast's trip to McCook and Lincoln High's journey to Hastings Friday night.

Northeast will be battling a familiar coach, Jerry Schmutte. He coached Northeast's sophomore team last season before moving to McCook.

Schmutte, who accepted the McCook post over a similar head coaching offer from Scottsbluff, coached eight years at Lincoln's Culler Junior High School and one as a Northeast assistant.

'Great Man'

"I was grateful for the chance. Ed was a great man to work for," he adds. "I guess I should know what Northeast plays. Being honest, I think we've got a chance to win. We're really looking forward to it."

Beatrice is no exception to the unusually high pre-season optimism among outstate Class A schools.

Neil Nannen finds it difficult to conceal. "Right now," he says, "this year's team is ahead of our state tournament teams of 1973 and 1974. We're just going to have to improve like those other two."

Friday's big challenge against Southeast is scheduled for East High's gym at 8 p.m.

Three Saturday

It's the only prep game in Lincoln Friday night, although three games are set in the Capital City Saturday night — Bellevue at East, Omaha Westside at Lincoln High and Raymond Central and Pius X.

"I'm expecting a good matchup," offered Nannen. "I know they'll be heavily favored because they're in the top five ranked teams in the pre-season.

"But we have some people who can play, too," noted Nannen, who could have potentially his best team in eight years as Beatrice's head coach.

The root of Beatrice's optimism is the return of two front-line starters — 6-4 Lynn Schlake, who averaged 15 points a game last season and 6-3 John Mack, who averaged 12 points a game.

Strong Rebounding

Put 6-5 senior center Wayne Meyer into that same front line and Beatrice believes it can rebound with most anyone.

Nannen has another front-liner who could work his way into the starting lineup before Christmas. Bruce Hofeling, a 6-5 sophomore who high jumped 6-4 to qualify for the state track meet as a freshman, broke all frosh rebound records last season.

"He'll play a lot for us," promised Nannen. "We hope that front line can work together as a unit."

The accent may be on the front line, but Nannen has equal confidence in his backcourt, manned by senior 6-0 letterman Jerry Philippi and 6-1 senior Allen Buss. He played reserve ball last season.

"I saw a lot of Dave Griffin in basketball school," Nannen said of Southeast's standout 6-7 pivot. "I think he's one of the best players in the state. He doesn't miss from 10 to 15 feet and he's going to be a lot more aggressive.

"The rest of Southeast's lineup looks pretty impressive, too," according to Nannen. "Bill Moody will really help them and Andy Zobs has played now for two years. We're anxious to see how we stack up in the front line with them. Their guards look just as solid."

"We led at the half in each game," said Simpson coach Dick Starr. "But then we'd drop back in the second half, and have to come from behind to win."

"We're inexperienced this year with only two returning starters — Bruce Wilson, 6-4, last year's second leading scorer, and Jim Greeley, 6-7, last year's leading rebounder after transferring from Iowa State as a sophomore," Starr said.

Peterson noted that 6-5 freshman guard Dave Keller was one of the best high school players in Iowa last year. "He's supposed to be one of the up-and-coming guards in the country," Peterson said.

Other starters for Simpson include Monte Hough, 6-4, and Tracey Culbertson, 6-0. The series between the two schools dates back to 1919 with Simpson leading 6-4.

Jamestown appears to be the toughest foe of the weekend for NWU, having notched decisive wins over Yankton and Mary College, while averaging 98.5 points a game and holding the opponents to 79.0.

NIT Loses TV Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Invitation Tournament, the nation's oldest major college basketball tourney, has lost its national television contract, and its 16-team field has been reduced, possibly to eight teams.

The NIT, established as a six-team festival in 1938 and which flourished in the boom years of college basketball, has dropped in popularity in recent years, battling the tag of a loser's tournament.

Each year, the blue chip teams in the country are ticketed for the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament, leaving the NIT to pick its field from most of the remaining teams.

Last year, the NCAA raised its field from 25 to 32 and is reportedly considering a further expansion to 40 teams.

Then there is the two-year-old Commissioner's Tournament for runnersup, which takes the second team from each conference away from the NIT.

The NIT's ratings have dropped and CBS decided to unload the tournament, choosing not to renew its contract to televise the annual March event.

"With the NCAA expanding its field and the Commissioner's Tournament in the picture, we're were suddenly down to a poor field," a spokesman for CBS said Thursday. "Our ratings were down, we were bucking better games and we just couldn't sell it."

CBS, which had been televising the NIT since 1966, said its ratings for the 1975 festival, won by Princeton and which included teams with 13-11 and 15-11 records, were almost half what they were in 1974.

In its printed schedules, Madison Square Garden, landlord for the NIT, has allotted the 1976 tournament four dates in March. With the customary doubleheader cards, that would allow for two dates for the quarter-finals, one for the semi-finals and one for the finals.

The New York Post reported in its Thursday editions that the NIT has been pared to an eight-team format.

But the president of the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Association, the sponsors of the NIT, said Thursday that the possibility of a 10 or 12-team tournament has not been ruled out.

"Madison Square Garden has not closed the door on a fifth date," Pete Carlesimo, Fordham's athletic director, said.

ASU Most Improved Team

The NCAA Statistics Service each year compares the season records of teams with performances of a year ago and come up with the nation's most improved major team. And in 1975 that tag goes to Arizona State's Sun Devils, Nebraska's Fiesta Bowl opponent.

The Sun Devils finished with a perfect 11-0 slate compared with last season's 7-5 record. Using the NCAA formula, that's an improvement of 4½ games.

Syracuse just missed taking the "most improved" title when it was upset by Rutgers in the final game last Saturday. The Orangemen ended 6-5 compared with a 2-9 mark a year ago under new coach Frank Maloney.

Colorado's 9-2 record was a four-game improvement (the Buffaloes were 5-6 in Bill Mallory's first season). Other teams with four-game improvement were West Virginia, Virginia Tech and Southwestern Louisiana.

Quite a few teams showed three-game improvement. Among them were Navy, Georgia, Kansas, South Carolina, and Mississippi. Texas A&M also can have the same improvement by beating Arkansas Saturday in the Southwest Conference showdown.

I'll take the Aggies 17-10 in the nationally televised contest.

Craig Was Kayoed

Buck Turnbull, writing in the Des Moines Register Wednesday morning, reported what happened to Nebraska wingback Curtis Craig in the Oklahoma game two weeks ago.

You'll recall, Craig had to be carried from the field on a stretcher and didn't regain consciousness for almost 10 minutes after being involved in a pass play which the Sooners intercepted.

Here's Turnbull's report:

"Since he was standing at the time the pass was intercepted, it was a mystery as to how he was leveled with such knockout force. Craig couldn't explain it afterwards — but the movies did.

"Oklahoma cornerback Jerry Anderson cracked him on the jaw with an illegal blow that escaped detection of the officials."

Turnbull quoted OU coach Barry Switzer on the incident: "We don't play that kind of football and it detracts from our performance."

Catching Up On Sports

KOLN-KGIN-TV (Channels 10 and 11) revealed Thursday it plans to present a special Tom Osborne Fiesta Preview Show Christmas night at 9 p.m. That's the eve of the game.

The station also will carry the Fiesta Bowl parade starting at 10 a.m. the following morning and then ghe game itself at 2 p.m.

The stations also will televise the Kansas-Pittsburgh game starting at 11 a.m. Dec. 26. Highlights of the Fiesta Bowl will be shown on the Tom Osborne Show Dec. 28 at 10:30 p.m.

The matching of Arizona State (11-0) and Nebraska (10-1) is as close as you can get to pairing undefeated and untied teams in a bowl. There have been only nine matchups in bowl history of two perfect record teams, three each by the Rose, Sugar and Orange Bowls.

There have been 17 bowl games pairing teams with just one loss and no ties for the two teams combined.

The Big Eight Conference, incidentally, is 20-17 in competition in the four major bowls while it is 32-28-1 in all bowl games. The Western Athletic Confernce is 17-12-1.

Bruce Skinner, Fiesta spokesman, said 22,000 requests for tickets had to be turned down. Nebraska and Arizona State each was allotted 8,204 tickets.

Huskers Ready To Face 'Two Threats'

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's basketball team actually faces "two threats" from the University of Washington.

"With their bench strength, they are really two teams, I guess you could say they're two dimensional," said NU assistant basketball coach Lonnie Porter, who scouted the Huskies in a 76-50 romp over Santa Clara last Friday in Seattle.

"Their first team is big, physical and powerful, but the subs are very quick and aggressive. They are a very good basketball team," he said. "They'll be as good or better than any team we'll play this year."

'Road Games'

"It's not going to help them playing two road games back-to-back," Porter said. "I wouldn't say that it's going to help us, but it certainly can't help them."

Porter was quick to praise three Huskies — James Edwards, Kim Stewart and Chester Dorsey.

Edwards, a 6-11 junior center from Seattle, was Washington's leading rebounder last year (7.5) and third leading scorer (12.3). Porter said he "shoots awfully well."

Lonnie Porter

"He's quick and plays aggressive defense similar to Ronnie Daniels (of Oklahoma State)," Porter said.

Despite a fifth-place finish last season in the Pacific Eight, the Huskies finished 16-10. But their biggest and most inspired effort, obviously, was a 103-81 trouncing of eventual 1975 NCAA champion UCLA.

After tripping UNLC, however, Washington dropped its last three games to Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State.

Better Efforts

That up-and-down effort probably will not occur this year, according to Porter.

"They're very similar to last year's Kansas team (the Big Eight champions), but they're bigger," Porter said. "We can win this game, but our kids will have to play better than they've played so far."

Nebraska assistant coach Moe Iba, cognizant of Washington's frontline measuring 6-11, 6-11, 6-9 said he plans no special defensive alignment for the westerners.

"We won't have any drastic defensive changes," Iba said. "We'll just try to do a better job than we have been doing."

WASHINGTON NOTES — Nebraska head basketball coach Joe Cipriano was graduated from Washington in 1953. Nebraska has not beaten Washington in five previous games. . . The Huskies stopped the Australian Nationals, 82-61, in an exhibition contest on Nove. 18 at Seattle . . . The Huskies will be the tallest team Nebraska will face this season . . . The 5:15 p.m. preliminary game sends the Nebraska women's basketball team against Tarkio (Mo.) College . . . According to the Washington press guide, Harshman "feels that there is no big man in the Pacific Eight as quick as 6-10 senior forward Larry Jackson, including UCLA's Richard Washington."

Regardless of the validity of that comment, Jackson is a strong, excellent forward who was WU's second leading scorer (12.8) last season.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

The University of California at Riverside announced it is giving up intercollegiate football competition because of financial losses. Attendance figures of 15,475 for four games were cited.

Pitt's Tony Dorsett says if he had voted in the Heisman Trophy balloting, he would have voted for Tony Dorsett. "Personally, I feel I have the credentials," he said. "I know I'm worthy of the award. After this voting, I'm beginning to wonder what it takes to win the Heisman. I don't know what I have to do for an encore. I don't know if the Heisman is meant for me."

Eight Big Ten football players were added to the East's squad for the 51st Shrine East-West game.

UCLA quarterback John Sciarra and noseguard Cliff Frazier were named co-recipients of the 1975 Henry R. "Red Sanders" Award, symbol of the school's most valuable football player.

Defensive back Chet Moeller, at catalyst in Navy's first winning season in the last 12, was named Division I Player of the Year by the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

The NCAA has issued its decision and proposed penalties in a case involving alleged Michigan State University football recruiting violations but has ordered the school not to reveal either the findings or the proposed penalties.

Neil Wheelwright was named head football coach of Holy Cross College, resigning as head coach of Colgate to lead a team he said had "no way to go but up."

Lineman Pat Donohoe of Wayne State was named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Division II first-team all-star defense. Also named to the second team offense was guard Dave Meyer of Midland.

The St. Louis Cardinals have sent a $300 check to the Jefferson City High School band for instruments damaged by unruly fans during a halftime performance Thanksgiving Day. Four band members were injured and two sousaphones were shattered when hit by snow, ice and rocks by fans.

The New England Patriots waived second-year safety Dick Conn and replaced him with fourth-year defensive tackle Jerry Patten, who signed as a free agent.

It will be Steve Spurrier at the controls when the San Francisco 49ers host the Houston Oilers Sunday.

Safety Ralph McGill, the San Francisco 49ers' leading punt returner, came home from a Chicago hospital to await word on the results of tests taken there to determine what caused him to faint on an airliner last weekend.

OTHER SPORTS

Arthur Ashe, bidding for his third major tournament this year, defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes to set up a semifinal match against Bjorn Borg in the $130,000 Masters Tennis Tournament. Also in the semis are Guillermo Vilas, the defending champion, and Ilie Nastase.

With Johnny Miller posting a six under par 66, the United States established itself as a strong contender to win the 23rd World Cup Tournament by taking a four stroke lead over 46 nations in the first round. The other U.S. golfer is Lou Graham.

The NCAA is winding up a preliminary investigation to determine whether the University of Nevada-Las Vegas is guilty of any recruiting violations.

The NBA will hold a special draft Tuesday for the negotiating rights to five players currently playing with the ABA. None of the five have been eligible for an NBA draft because their class has not yet graduated and they have not filed for hardship. They are Moses Malone, Mark Olberding, Skip Wise, Mel Bennett and Charlie Jordan.

Wichita State University has ended two years on probation with the Missouri Valley conference. They were charged with illegal recruiting practices and improper inducements.

A $4 million lawsuit has been filed against the Chicago Black Hawks hockey team and owner Arthur Wirtz by Thomas Scallen, who is seeking to regain control of Medical Investment Corp.

Tulane track coach John Oelkers is the 1975 recipient of the J. B. "Cap" Haralson award for outstanding service to track and field.

Peter Daland, who coached Southern California's swimming team to the NCAA indoor championships this year, has received the Amateur Athletic Union's 1975 Swimming Award.

Trainer Dick Dutrow set the American record for most racing victories in a year at Laurel Race Course when Tor's Baby won the eighth race. The race was Dutrow's 330th victory of the year, breaking the old mark set last year by Jack Van Berg of Columbus.

New York thoroughbred racing has been hit by a virus epidemic but as of Thursday a full slate of nine races was being run at Aqueduct.

The St. Louis Cardinals have named Bob Starr as their play-by-play broadcaster for the upcoming National League baseball season.

Charging the city has neglected the needs of amateur athletes while lavishing huge sums on the Yankee Stadium renovation project, a group threatened to disrupt next April's opening day for the New York Yankees. New York has abandoned plans to spend $2 million upgrading the neighborhood and the nearby Macombs Dam Field for amateurs, and instead was going to give the Yankees $300,000 for equipment, including private toilets and catering facilities for VIP boxes.

Guts Ishimatsu's "Pahntom punch" clubbed Alvaro Rojas to the canvas in teh 14th round as the World Boxing council lightweight champion successfully defended his crown for the fifth straight time.

A special investigator said he believes former boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter and codefendent John Artis are entitled to a new trial on their triple murder convictions.

Doug Barkley was fired as coach of the Detroit Red Wings. Team officials said Alex Delvecchio, general manager, would assume both jobs for the time being.

Threat Made At Chambers

By ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

Omaha State Sen. Ernest Chambers has received an anonymous letter threatening his life after he called the Nebraska football team "jet propelled crayfish."

Chambers made the remark after the Huskers changed their minds and voted to go to the Fiesta Bowl after missing an Orange Bowl bid by losing to Oklahoma.

Chambers said he did not take the threat seriously. "I plan on going to Hastings," he said.

"It shows how crazy these people are that go for Big Red football," Chambers said. "Some of them might even be dangerous, needing psychiatric help."

The letter said, "I hope to God you never come around our territory...you wouldn't live long—that's all I can tell you!!!"

The letter also called Chambers a "niger" and suggested he "drop dead or go to Africa."

The Hastings Post Office said the postage meter number Chambers found on the envelope was assigned to Garmo, Inc.

Robert W. Garey, president of the firm, said he was not familiar with the letter. He said in addition to his five employes, the letter could have come from someone outside the firm who paid a dime to have the letter run through the meter.

"I'll have to do some checking," he said.

Broyles, Ballard Eye 'Big Game'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — For Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles, it ranks among the biggest games in his 18 years at the school in the Ozarks. To Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard, it's the biggest game of his career.

"The 1969 'Game of the Century' against Texas and our 1971 nationally televised victory over the Longhorns are probably the biggest games in my career at Arkansas and this one certainly ranks up there with them," said Broyles.

"The win over Texas was better than any high point I've had in my career . . . and now I guess you've got to say this game means just as much or more," said Bellard, who has been the A&M Coach only four seasons.

The second-ranked Texas Aggies and the 18th-ranked Razorbacks play for high stakes Saturday in the nationally televised (3:05 p.m., CST) game, with a Cotton Bowl berth and the Southwest Conference title at stake. A&M is a one-touchdown favorite.

The unbeaten Aggies already own at least a co-championship by virtue of last Friday's 20-10 victory over Texas. Arkansas, which lost earlier in the year to Texas, can earn a co-championship and the host spot opposite Georgia with victory over the Aggies.

Arkansas last went to the Cotton Bowl in 1966 while the most recent appearance by Texas A&M was 1968 and Texas 1974.

"The players we had on the field last week against Texas and will have on the field against Arkansas are the result of our big recruiting year when we came to A&M four years ago," said Bellard. "I'm proud of these guys.

"A lot of players come into successful programs and don't think a thing about it. This bunch didn't have a damn thing when they came here other than losing as a prerequisite. They fought and scratched to build their own image and tradition."

The Aggies' "image" is that of a brawling defense which plays like there is a cliff at their backs. Five Aggies were recently named to the Associated Press' first and second All-America teams.

A&M is the top total defensive team in the country and No. 1 against the rush, allowing only 1.8 yards per run against the likes of tackle Edgar Fields, end Blake Schwarz, linebackers Ed Simonini and Garth Ten Napel and backs Lester Hayes and Jackie Williams.

Arkansas' "image" is that of a strong rushing team which has used the Veer-T to carve out 335 yards per game. Rolland Fuchs, a backup to Ike Forte and Jerry Eckwood, has been averaging five yards per try in their absence. Forte was expected to play while Eckwood was extremely doubtful, due to injuries.

Millard Wins LHS Relays

Millard won the ninth annual Lincoln High School Invitational relay meet at Lincoln High Thursday with seven wins out of 10 events.

Team Scoring

Weather Slows Outdoorsmen

Sunny, warm weather is hurting waterfowl movement, and many rural roads are either still clogged with snow or too muddy to be of use to pheasant hunters. The warm weather is also retarding the formation of ice that winter fishermen are awaiting.

According to reports of Game and Parks Commission men in the field, outdoor activity includes:

Southwest
Hunters have been having good success on Canada geese in the area above Lake McConaughy. Many southeast Nebraska reservoirs have some ducks and geese, but a lack of open water has limited their numbers. A good number of ducks and geese are also on the Platte River between Ogallala and Sutherland.

Sand Hills
Some ducks and geese are on the Missouri River in Boyd County, but hunting pressure is light. Throughout much of the rest of the area, roads are still in bad shape from the last blizzard, although some coyote hunters are out.

Northeast
At Gavins Point Dam Tailwater, snaggers are taking occasional limits of paddlefish to 50 pounds. Some 8,000 ducks are on Lewis and Clark Lake, and 15,000 are on the Dodge-Saunders County Refuge. Hunters have been taking a few ducks in Boone County and near Ericson.

Southeast
Activity has been light, with only a few pheasant and quail hunters out. Some ducks and geese have been along the Missouri River in the extreme southeast. Ice on Salt Valley lakes is still much too weak for fishermen.

Chiefs Acquire Punter McCann

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Punter Jim McCann, who was with the Los Angeles Rams earlier this season, was acquired by the Kansas City Chiefs Thursday to replace veteran Jerrel Wilson, who has a pulled calf muscle and probably will be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

McCann, a former punter with the San Francisco 49ers, battled Wilson for the punting job at the Chiefs training camp this summer. He was traded at the end of the preseason to the Rams, who later released him.

Ralston 43, Fremont 41

The University of California at Riverside announced it is giving up intercollegiate football competition because of financial losses. Attendance figures of 15,475 for four games were cited.

Pitt's Tony Dorsett says if he had voted in the Heisman Trophy balloting, he would have voted for Tony Dorsett. "Personally, I feel I have the credentials," he said. "I know I'm worthy of the award. After this voting, I'm beginning to wonder what it takes to win the Heisman. I don't know what I have to do for an encore. I don't know if the Heisman is meant for me."

Eight Big Ten football players were added to the East's squad for the 51st Shrine East-West game.

UCLA quarterback John Sciarra and noseguard Cliff Frazier were named co-recipients of the 1975 Henry R. "Red Sanders" Award, symbol of the school's most valuable football player.

Defensive back Chet Moeller, at catalyst in Navy's first winning season in the last 12, was named Division I Player of the Year by the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

The NCAA has issued its decision and proposed penalties in a case involving alleged Michigan State University football recruiting violations but has ordered the school not to reveal either the findings or the proposed penalties.

Neil Wheelwright was named head football coach of Holy Cross College, resigning as head coach of Colgate to lead a team he said had "no way to go but up."

Lineman Pat Donohoe of Wayne State was named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) Division II first-team all-star defense. Also named to the second team offense was guard Dave Meyer of Midland.

The St. Louis Cardinals have sent a $300 check to the Jefferson City High School band for instruments damaged by unruly fans during a halftime performance Thanksgiving Day. Four band members were injured and two sousaphones were shattered when hit by snow, ice and rocks by fans.

The New England Patriots waived second-year safety Dick Conn and replaced him with fourth-year defensive tackle Jerry Patten, who signed as a free agent.

It will be Steve Spurrier at the controls when the San Francisco 49ers host the Houston Oilers Sunday.

Safety Ralph McGill, the San Francisco 49ers' leading punt returner, came home from a Chicago hospital to await word on the results of tests taken there to determine what caused him to faint on an airliner last weekend.

OTHER SPORTS

Arthur Ashe, bidding for his third major tournament this year, defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes to set up a semifinal match against Bjorn Borg in the $130,000 Masters Tennis Tournament. Also in the semis are Guillermo Vilas, the defending champion, and Ilie Nastase.

With Johnny Miller posting a six under par 66, the United States established itself as a strong contender to win the 23rd World Cup Tournament by taking a four stroke lead over 46 nations in the first round. The other U.S. golfer is Lou Graham.

The NCAA is winding up a preliminary investigation to determine whether the University of Nevada-Las Vegas is guilty of any recruiting violations.

The NBA will hold a special draft Tuesday for the negotiating rights to five players currently playing with the ABA. None of the five have been eligible for an NBA draft because their class has not yet graduated and they have not filed for hardship. They are Moses Malone, Mark Olberding, Skip Wise, Mel Bennett and Charlie Jordan.

Wichita State University has ended two years on probation with the Missouri Valley conference. They were charged with illegal recruiting practices and improper inducements.

Threat Made At Chambers

By ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

Omaha State Sen. Ernest Chambers has received an anonymous letter threatening his life after he called the Nebraska football team "jet propelled crayfish."

Chambers made the remark after the Huskers changed their minds and voted to go to the Fiesta Bowl after missing an Orange Bowl bid by losing to Oklahoma.

Chambers said he did not take the threat seriously. "I plan on going to Hastings," he said.

"It shows how crazy these people are that go for Big Red football," Chambers said. "Some of them might even be dangerous, needing psychiatric help."

The letter said, "I hope to God you never come around our territory...you wouldn't live long—that's all I can tell you!!!"

The letter also called Chambers a "niger" and suggested he "drop dead or go to Africa."

The Hastings Post Office said the postage meter number Chambers found on the envelope was assigned to Garmo, Inc.

Robert W. Garey, president of the firm, said he was not familiar with the letter. He said in addition to his five employes, the letter could have come from someone outside the firm who paid a dime to have the letter run through the meter.

"I'll have to do some checking," he said.

NU Women To Relay Meet

The Nebraska women's swimming team will open its season with the Big Eight Relays at the University of Kansas in Lawrence this Saturday.

Teams competing in the meet other than the Huskers and the host team will be Oklahoma State, Oklahoma and Kansas State.

Swimmers for the meet will be:

Broyles, Ballard Eye 'Big Game'

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — For Arkansas Coach Frank Broyles, it ranks among the biggest games in his 18 years at the school in the Ozarks. To Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard, it's the biggest game of his career.

"The 1969 'Game of the Century' against Texas and our 1971 nationally televised victory over the Longhorns are probably the biggest games in my career at Arkansas and this one certainly ranks up there with them," said Broyles.

"The win over Texas was better than any high point I've had in my career . . . and now I guess you've got to say this game means just as much or more," said Bellard, who has been the A&M Coach only four seasons.

The second-ranked Texas Aggies and the 18th-ranked Razorbacks play for high stakes Saturday in the nationally televised (3:05 p.m., CST) game, with a Cotton Bowl berth and the Southwest Conference title at stake. A&M is a one-touchdown favorite.

The unbeaten Aggies already own at least a co-championship by virtue of last Friday's 20-10 victory over Texas. Arkansas, which lost earlier in the year to Texas, can earn a co-championship and the host spot opposite Georgia with victory over the Aggies.

Arkansas last went to the Cotton Bowl in 1966 while the most recent appearance by Texas A&M was 1968 and Texas 1974.

"The players we had on the field last week against Texas and will have on the field against Arkansas are the result of our big recruiting year when we came to A&M four years ago," said Bellard. "I'm proud of these guys.

"A lot of players come into successful programs and don't think a thing about it. This bunch didn't have a damn thing when they came here other than losing as a prerequisite. They fought and scratched to build their own image and tradition."

The Aggies' "image" is that of a brawling defense which plays like there is a cliff at their backs. Five Aggies were recently named to the Associated Press' first and second All-America teams.

A&M is the top total defensive team in the country and No. 1 against the rush, allowing only 1.8 yards per run against the likes of tackle Edgar Fields, end Blake Schwarz, linebackers Ed Simonini and Garth Ten Napel and backs Lester Hayes and Jackie Williams.

Arkansas' "image" is that of a strong rushing team which has used the Veer-T to carve out 335 yards per game. Rolland Fuchs, a backup to Ike Forte and Jerry Eckwood, has been averaging five yards per try in their absence. Forte was expected to play while Eckwood was extremely doubtful, due to injuries.

A&M must play without starting quarterback Mike Jay, who injured his back in the victory over Texas.

Millard Wins LHS Relays

Millard won the ninth annual Lincoln High School Invitational relay meet at Lincoln High Thursday with seven wins out of 10 events.

The only events Millard didn't win, Lincoln High did, and finished second to Millard in team scoring.

Team Scoring

Millard	63	McCook	25

Weather Slows Outdoorsmen

Weather conditions seem to be against outdoorsmen.

Sunny, warm weather is hurting waterfowl movement, and many rural roads are either still clogged with snow or too muddy to be of use to pheasant hunters. The warm weather is also retarding the formation of ice that winter fishermen are awaiting.

According to reports of Game and Parks Commission men in the field, outdoor activity includes:

Southwest
Hunters have been having good success on Canada geese in the area above Lake McConaughy. Many southeast Nebraska reservoirs have some ducks and geese, but a lack of open water has limited their numbers. A good number of ducks and geese are also on the Platte River between Ogallala and Sutherland.

Sand Hills
Some ducks and geese are on the Missouri River in Boyd County, but hunting pressure is light. Throughout much of the rest of the area, roads are still in bad shape from the last blizzard, although some coyote hunters are out.

Northeast
At Gavins Point Dam Tailwater, snaggers are taking occasional limits of paddlefish to 50 pounds. Some 8,000 ducks are on Lewis and Clark Lake, and 15,000 are on the Dodge-Saunders County Refuge. Hunters have been taking a few ducks in Boone County and near Ericson.

Southeast
Activity has been light, with only a few pheasant and quail hunters out. Some ducks and geese have been along the Missouri River in the extreme southeast. Ice on Salt Valley lakes is still much too weak for fishermen.

Chiefs Acquire Punter McCann

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Punter Jim McCann, who was with the Los Angeles Rams earlier this season, was acquired by the Kansas City Chiefs Thursday to replace veteran Jerrel Wilson, who has a pulled calf muscle and probably will be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

McCann, a former punter with the San Francisco 49ers, battled Wilson for the punting job at the Chiefs training camp this summer. He was traded at the end of the preseason to the Rams, who later released him.

Wilson suffered the leg injury in Kansas City's loss to the Baltimore Colts last weekend.

Ralston 43, Fremont 41

Fremont — Bill Huff scored 12 points to pace Ralston to a 43-41 victory over Fremont, here Thursday night in the first basketball game for each team.

Jeff Raffety added 17 points for the Tigers.

Ralston	7	9	12	15—43

Handicapped Ohio Cager 'Just Wants To Play'

Athens, Ohio (AP) — "All my life I've been encouraged because I only had one eye. Now some one is holding it against me," says 18-year old Mike Borden, a 6-8 Ohio University freshman who was cut from the school's junior varsity basketball squad when his disability was discovered.

Borden announced Wednesday that he has decided to launch legal action "because I want to play basketball."

His decision came after university officials refused to change their position on the issue. "I was even willing to sign a waiver releasing Ohio University from all responsibility, but they wouldn't listen to it," said Borden, an honor student from Fairborn, Ohio.

John Burns, OU's legal director of affairs, said the school will abide by an American Medical Association recommendation that discourages one-eyed persons from participating in contact sports.

Borden said he plans to give the American Civil Liberties Union the go-ahead today to seek an injunction which could reinstate him to the basketball team.

He said he will also take his case to the school's athletic grievance committee.

The issue has stirred community and campus support, with both local newspapers editorially calling for the school to reinstate Borden.

Named Most Valuable Player of his Fairborn Park Hills basketball team, Borden and his 6-foot-3 twin brother Fred tried out for the V team Oct. 14 as walk-ons. Both made the squad, but two days later Borden was notified that he couldn't play because of his eyesight.

"I was shocked," said Borden. "The team physician told me he would have a guilty conscience if I was blinded. I told them I would sign a waiver. I can't believe in this day and age when man is going to the moon that somebody can't come up with a paper allowing me to play basketball," said Borden, who lost sight in his right eye at the age of 3 in a childhood accident.

"I'm going to fight this thing. I'm not handicapped. I don't know what it is like to have two eyes — that would be a dream — but I know I can compete with anyone," said Borden.

Bill Rohr, athletic director at Ohio University, said he does not see any change in the school's policy.

"What we're doing is protecting the boy. I have great sympathy for him. Everyone should have his determination, but I would have great pangs if we went ahead and let him play.

"During my 35 years in athletics I've been indoctrinated that the team physician has the final say. An example of that occurred just last week when the team doctor of the Cincinnati Bengals told Paul Brown that Ken Anderson would be better off not playing.

"I have no choice but to abide by the doctor's decision," Rohr said.

Jack Mollenkopf

Mollenkopf Dead At 70

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Jack Mollenkopf, who tutored such stars as Lenny Dawson and Bob Griese during his 14-year stint as Purdue football coach, died Thursday at the age of 70.

Mollenkopf, who retired after the 1969 campaign, died in a Rochester, Minn., hospital. The veteran coach, who had just one losing season at the helm of the Boilermakers, died at the Mayo Clinic, where he was admitted in October for treatment of stomach cancer.

Mollenkopf took over the Purdue coaching job in 1955 at the age of 50, a time when most coaches think about retiring. He succeeded Stu Holcomb after serving as an assistant under Holcomb since 1947.

"Jack the Ripper", whose real first name was Kenneth, molded Purdue's football team into a consistent winner and compiled a record of 84-39-9 over-all and 58-32-5 in the Big Ten.

Perhaps the highlight of his Purdue coaching career came in the Boilers' 14-13 win over Southern California in the 1967 Rose Bowl —Purdue's only appearance in the New Year's Day classic.

Mollenkopf, a barrel-chested, two-fisted perfectionist, was at his best when the chips were down He wrecked long winning streaks for Michigan State and Iowa and, with All-America Mike Phipps as quarterback.

ARK. 77 - Tulane 65—Greenies have outstanding player on court, P. Hicks, but Sutton has better balance & Mad Hatters going at Fayetteville.
ILLINOIS 64 - N Mexico U. 63—Henson & Ellenberger meet again in different surroundings Tuff game off early successes by each
N. DAME 86 - Tex Tech 70—Phelps finds way to deny Bullock domination Visitors will be out-quicked by Dantley & Co
N WEST'N 79 - Ohio U. 70—OU couldn't win year ago with Luckett's 27 points In 3rd year at Evanston, Winter should have improved quintet
Providence 87 - Alabama 76 (Mad. Sq. Garden)—Gavitt outcoaches Newton . . . sets picket around Douglas & Bama has trouble hitting outside Familiarity with court & enthusiastic Friar support won't hurt, either
WASH. ST 78 - Jacksonville 72—JV skyscrapers will be tested here by intact Cougar lineup, aided by hotshooting newcomer Rhodes
WIS 88 - Loyola-Chi 83—Look like imitation of each other . . couple of decent players, but lack overall skills

Night Games

Boston Col 78 - HARVARD 70—If BC learns to play together, there is talent to defeat far stronger than Crimson
COLO ST 76 - Denver 64—Larrew injury will hurt CSU vs good opposition But Denver doesn't fall into that category.
Colo. 65 - A. FORCE 63—Hot shooting frosh G Lewis adds punch to CU attack Need it on difficult Falcon court.
CONNECTICUT 87 - Yale 71—UConns won by 15 '74, & despite early injuries should breeze vs. Ivy cellar-dweller
DRAKE 75 - Iowa St 73—Both got drubbed in openers, & jury is out at this writing
Florida St. 88 - EAST. KY. 77—Both virtually intact But FSU won 107-75 year ago Eastern fighting off nine-game losing streak
GEO WASH. 83 - W. Forest 79—Talent-Brown duel . . . clubs similar in that all positions except pivot are well staffed
KANSAS 81 - St Louis 69—KU could dominate Billikens inside, like the Russians did
LVL. 95 - Murray 73—First meeting since 60 Racers return most from '74-75 squad, may be their problem Cards impress at Memphis State.
Maryland 92 - RICHMOND 78—Driesell floors another powerhouse Despite good showing at Wake, Spiders no match in speed quickness ability.
Mississippi 84 - TEXAS 79—Rebels could be sleeper with outstanding newcomers Texas ordinary again
Niagara 83 - CANISIUS 72—Tradition notwithstanding, there is substantial talent gap between Little 3 rivals this season.
N CAR 84 - Va Tech 73—Kupchak ruined Gobblers year ago, but Tech has bolstered pivot since Tars can't afford to peek ahead to Kentucky because visitors are solid, deep, and improved defensively
OKLA ST 77 - Oral Roberts 74—Oral better pointmakers, but Pokes have been together for 3 years, & are better than Tulsa opener indicated
PENN 76 - Navy 62—With Quaker star Engles sidelined early, margin may be respectable. Mids outshot Penn by one goal yr ago, lost at line
Purdue 82 - W VIRGINIA 80—Schaus returns for Alumni Day with big, fast quintet Surprisingly, home floor didn't help Mounties last season, 1-8 vs pointspread.
RUTGERS 90 - Seton Hall 72—Even if Mosley were eligible (which he isn't) there's no way Pirates figure to contest area's finest team Sellers & Dabney win easier than year ago
ST JOE'S 72 - B Green 68—BeeGee club that walloped Hawks year ago is gone But Hawks no bargain, either, in recent seasons
ST JOHN'S 85 - Davidson 71—Lapchick champs blew 6-point lead year ago at Davidson Tuneup for Tennessee next
S. CAR 80 - Oklahoma 64—OU shot 59% year ago, SC complained about officiating at Norman Both lost big men to pros, & ex-Indiana assistant Bliss has already shown he will help Sooners But Carolina returns more proven talent, & is toughest kind of homer
TENN 85 - Michigan 72—King got 34 in '74, & Grunfeld didn't play in 4-pt loss at Michigan Big-10 team good, but Vols are something else!
UTAH 83 - Utah St 75—Both lost key players from year ago when Utes swept However, home team looked sharp in opener
*Utep 65 - N MEX ST 59—Check Tues for clue in quick rematch. Miners, less than 50 miles away, utilize super deny-type defense to win
YMI 75 - E Carolina 72—Keydets may own best backcourt in Southern Conf., & that should get them by a talented but un-jelled Carolina, which is dropping in class after bouts with Maryland & NC State
Virginia 74 - DUKE 72—Va swept pair year ago, & is better team now, Duke is worse off. Fear Devil court, but respect Holland's personnel even more, especially if Fulton comes through in pivot
Washington 74 - NEBRASKA 69—Cipriano finds Alma Mater too physical inside Doesn't match up well on front line
WM & MARY 79 - Citadel 61—W&M swept pair year ago including 20-pt win at home Satterthwaite has more help than McKeever.

NCAA May Counter Knight Like Bryant

Bloomington, Ind. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association hasn't said how it will counter Indiana University Coach Bobby Knight's court suit to eliminate the present 10-man basketball traveling squad restriction.

But football coach Bear Bryant of Alabama lost a similar football case to the association, which might counter-attack Knight virtually from the same position.

The situation arose shortly after Aug. 15, when the NCAA adopted a rule limiting road teams to 48 players in football and 10 in basketball.

About a week later, Bryant filed a class action suit against the NCAA and received a favorable verdict. A temporary injunction against the rule lasted just one game, however, before being suspended by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals which refused to treat the case as "one of high importance."

This had the effect of denying a quick hearing and placing the case well back on the docket where presumably it still exists.

Knight's suit is scheduled for a preliminary hearing at 8 a.m., CST, Saturday in Monroe Circuit Court here. It asks for a permanent injunction against the 10-man traveling squad rule.

"Essentially it is an action I brought," says the coach of the top-ranked Hoosiers. "I chose to do it on my own without involving the university."

He also feels there is little in common with the Bryant suit because "basketball is an entirely different entity." Reconsideration of limitations is expected during the NCAA convention next month.

Bobby Knight

"At the coaches' meeting in September everybody seemed to be in favor" of taking action against the rule, Knight said. Again, at the annual Big Ten basketball news conference recently, everybody spoke out against the rule.

At that time, Knight said, "The coaches didn't have anything to do with it . . . it's nickel and dime stuff for saving money. Each school will save maybe $800 and waste thousands on other things."

The coaches are concerned with "morale" and "unity." They also feel it will hurt recruiting.

And a player injury on the road could present another real problem. Several Saturday-Monday Big Ten games are scheduled, and if a player is hurt on Saturday he cannot be replaced for the Monday game.

Games Slated For NU Women

The NU team travels to Omaha Friday for a 7:30 p.m. tip off at Creighton and then Saturday night, the team will play the preliminary contest before the men's game when they host Tarkio at 5:15 p.m.

Midland Guard All-American

New York (AP) — Midland Warrior offensive guard Dave Meyer, a 6-3, 235-pound senior, was named to the Associated Press College All-American second team Tuesday.

Meyer was recently selected to the Sunday Journal and Star All-State College Football team.

Two Kearney Gridders Named

Two Kearney State football players were named to the Great Plains Athletic Conference all-star football team.

Kearney State didn't play for the conference title as this is the initial year for the Antelopes in the GPAC. They will be active in the conference in winter sports and next fall.

Crete Girls Win Opener

David City ..... 6 4 4 1—15
Crete ..... 16 18 12 4—50

David City — Porchaska 1, Schroeder 6, Kasper 4 Zellinger 4
Crete — Bals 14, Bauer 4, Quick 4, Dudley 8 Laurenroth 4, Renken 6, Schnell 4 Coulter 6.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6

Texas A&M 23 - ARKANSAS 10—Super important game Victory for Aggies earns them undisputed SWC title & Cotton Bowl. Should Arkansas win, league crown ends up in 3-way tie, with Arkansas going to Cotton Bowl and A&M to Liberty Bowl. Vaunted Aggie defense has overpowered 10 opponents, and is now 2nd only to Alabama in fewest pts allowed per game, 7.3 ppg. It is big, fast & very physical. Wishbone offense has been sporadic at times However, in such a crucial game, we would expect A&M offense to be disciplined, motivated & bearing down hard all the way. Senior QB Jay, who suffered minor muscle spasm injury vs. Texas, is OK; he is steadier leader than Shipman. Huge, blockbusting frosh FB Woodard forces Arkansas to protect inside, while speedster RBs Been & Walker attack the flanks. Condition of Arkansas' ailing RBs Eckwood & Forte ?. Even if they are able to play, how effective they would be is another matter. QB Bull performing well as stand-in for Kirkland He and TE Yoder good tandem. But fact is, Arkansas does not have the physical strength to go jaw-to-jaw with more muscular Aggies, & smallish Razorback defense could be overmatched by massive Aggie interior blockers Having finally overcome 'Texas hex', there can be no excuse for Aggies not overpowering a lesser foe who was manhandled by Texas easier than 24-18 score indicates. Rich in experience (nine 4-yr. vets) & lethal, aggressive defense should cap a perfect season for the long-frustrated Aggies. at Little Rock, Ark NATIONAL TV.

Handicapped Ohio Cager 'Just Wants To Play'

Athens, Ohio (AP) — "All my life I've been encouraged because I only had one eye. Now some one is holding it against me," says 18-year old Mike Borden, a 6-8 Ohio University freshman who was cut from the school's junior varsity basketball squad when his disability was discovered.

Borden announced Wednesday that he has decided to launch legal action "because I want to play basketball."

His decision came after university officials refused to change their position on the issue. "I was even willing to sign a waiver releasing Ohio University from all responsibility, but they wouldn't listen to it," said Borden, an honor student from Fairborn, Ohio.

John Burns, OU's legal director of affairs, said the school will abide by an American Medical Association recommendation that discourages one-eyed persons from participating in contact sports.

"We've never been challenged like this before," said Burns.

Borden said he plans to give the American Civil Liberties Union the go-ahead today to seek an injunction which could reinstate him to the basketball team.

He said he will also take his case to the school's athletic grievance committee.

The issue has stirred community and campus support, with both local newspapers editorially calling for the school to reinstate Borden.

Named Most Valuable Player of his Fairborn Park Hills basketball team, Borden and his 6-foot-3 twin brother Fred tried out for the V team Oct. 14 as walk-ons. Both made the squad, but two days later Borden was notified that he couldn't play because of his eyesight.

"I was shocked," said Borden. "The team physician told me he would have a guilty conscience if I was blinded. I told them I would sign a waiver. I can't believe in this day and age when man is going to the moon that somebody can't come up with a paper allowing me to play basketball," said Borden, who lost sight in his right eye at the age of 3 in a childhood accident.

"I'm going to fight this thing. I'm not handicapped. I don't know what it is like to have two eyes — that would be a dream — but I know I can compete with anyone," said Borden.

Bill Rohr, athletic director at Ohio University, said he does not see any change in the school's policy.

"What we're doing is protecting the boy. I have great sympathy for him. Everyone should have his determination, but I would have great pangs if we went ahead and let him play.

"During my 35 years in athletics I've been indoctrinated that the team physician has the final say. An example of that occurred just last week when the team doctor of the Cincinnati Bengals told Paul Brown that Ken Anderson would be better off not playing.

"I have no choice but to abide by the doctor's decision," Rohr said.

Jack Mollenkopf

Mollenkopf Dead At 70

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Jack Mollenkopf, who tutored such stars as Lenny Dawson and Bob Griese during his 14-year stint as Purdue football coach, died Thursday at the age of 70.

Mollenkopf, who retired after the 1969 campaign, died in a Rochester, Minn., hospital. The veteran coach, who had just one losing season at the helm of the Boilermakers, died at the Mayo Clinic, where he was admitted in October for treatment of stomach cancer.

It was his second bout with cancer. He had surgery several years ago.

Mollenkopf took over the Purdue coaching job in 1955 at the age of 50, a time when most coaches think about retiring. He succeeded Stu Holcomb after serving as an assistant under Holcomb since 1947.

"Jack the Ripper", whose real first name was Kenneth, molded Purdue's football team into a consistent winner and compiled a record of 84-39-9 over-all and 58-32-5 in the Big Ten.

Perhaps the highlight of his Purdue coaching career came in the Boilers' 14-13 win over Southern California in the 1967 Rose Bowl —Purdue's only appearance in the New Year's Day classic.

Mollenkopf, a barrel-chested, two-fisted perfectionist, was at his best when the chips were down. He wrecked long winning streaks for Michigan State and Iowa and, with All-America Mike Phipps as quarterback.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6
Day Games

ARK. 77 - Tulane 65—Greenies have outstanding player on court, P. Hicks, but Sutton has better balance & Mad Hatters going at Fayetteville.
ILLINOIS 64 - N. Mexico U. 63—Henson & Ellenberger meet again in different surroundings. Tuff game off early successes by each.
N. DAME 86 - Tex. Tech 70—Phelps finds way to deny Bullock domination. Visitors will be out-quicked by Dantley & Co.
N.WEST'N 79 - Ohio U. 70—OU couldn't win year ago with Luckett's 27 points. In 3rd year at Evanston, Winter should have improved quintet.
Providence 87 - Alabama 76 (Mad. Sq. Garden)—Gavitt outcoaches Newton . . . sets picket around Douglas & Bama has trouble hitting outside. Familiarity with court & enthusiastic Friar support won't hurt, either.
WASH. ST. 78 - Jacksonville 72—JV skyscrapers will be tested here by intact Cougar lineup, aided by hotshooting newcomer Rhodes.
WIS. 88 - Loyola-Chi. 83—Look like imitation of each other . . . couple of decent players, but lack overall skills.

Night Games

Boston Col. 78 - HARVARD 70—If BC learns to play together, there is talent to defeat far stronger than Crimson.
COLO. ST. 76 - Denver 64—Larrew injury will hurt CSU vs. good opposition. But Denver doesn't fall into that category.
Colo. 65 - A. FORCE 63—Hot shooting frosh G Lewis adds punch to CU attack. Need it on difficult Falcon court.
CONNECTICUT 87 - Yale 71—UConns won by 15 '74, & despite early injuries, should breeze vs. Ivy cellar-dweller.
DRAKE 75 - Iowa St. 73—Both got drubbed in openers, & jury is out at this writing.
Florida St. 88 - EAST. KY. 77—Both virtually intact. But FSU won 107-75 year ago. Eastern fighting off nine-game losing streak.
Georgetown 77 - ST. BONA 75—GT won by 20 in '74, but this one is in Olean. However, Hoyas own plenty of depth, & should pick up where they left off year ago.
GEO. WASH. 83 - W. Forest 79—Tallent-Brown duel . . . clubs similar in that all positions except pivot are well staffed.
KANSAS 81 - St. Louis 69—KU could dominate Billikens inside, like the Russians did.
LVL. 95 - Murray 73—First meeting since '60. Racers return most from '74-75 squad; may be their problem. Cards impress at Memphis State.
Maryland 92 - RICHMOND 78—Driesell floors another powerhouse. Despite good showing at Wake, Spiders no match in speed, quickness, ability.
Niagara 83 - CANISIUS 72—Tradition notwithstanding, there is substantial talent gap between Little 3 rivals this season.
N. CAR. 84 - Va. Tech 73—Kupchak ruined Gobblers year ago, but Tech has bolstered pivot since. Tars can't afford to peek ahead to Kentucky because visitors are solid, deep, and improved defensively.
OKLA. ST. 77 - Oral Roberts 74—Oral better pointmakers, but Pokes have been together for 3 years, & are better than Tulsa opener indicated.
Purdue 82 - W. VIRGINIA 80—Schaus returns for Alumni Day with big, fast quintet. Surprisingly, home floor didn't help Mounties last season; 1-8 vs. pointspread.
RUTGERS 90 - Seton Hall 72—Even if Mosley were eligible (which he isn't) there's no way Pirates figure to contest area's finest team. Sellers & Dabney win easier than year ago.
ST. JOE'S 72 - B. Green 68—BeeGee club that walloped Hawks year ago is gone. But Hawks no bargain, either, in recent seasons.
ST. JOHN'S 85 - Davidson 71—Lapchick champs blew 6-point lead year ago at Davidson. Tuneup for Tennessee next.
S. CAR. 80 - Oklahoma 64—OU shot 59% year ago; SC complained about officiating at Norman. Both lost big men to pros, & ex-Indiana assistant Bliss has already shown he will help Sooners. But Carolina returns more proven talent, & is toughest kind of homer.
TENN. 85 - Michigan 72—King got 34 in '74, & Grunfeld didn't play in 4-pt. loss at Michigan. Big-10 team good, but Vols are something else!
UTAH 83 - Utah St. 75—Both lost key players from year ago when Utes swept. However, home team looked sharp in opener.
*Utep 65 - N. MEX. ST. 59—Check Tues. for clue in quick rematch. Miners, less than 50 miles away, utilize super deny-type defense to win.
VMI 75 - E. Carolina 72—Keydets may own best backcourt in Southern Conf., & that should get them by a talented but un-jelled Carolina, which is dropping in class after bouts with Maryland & NC State.
Virginia 74 - DUKE 72—Va. swept pair year ago, & is better team now; Duke is worse off. Fear Devil court, but respect Holland's personnel even more, especially if Fulton comes through in pivot.
WM. & MARY 79 - Citadel 61—W&M swept pair year ago, including 20-pt. win at home. Satterthwaite has more help than McKeever.

NCAA May Counter Knight Like Bryant

Bloomington, Ind. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association hasn't said how it will counter Indiana University Coach Bobby Knight's court suit to eliminate the present 10-man basketball traveling squad restriction.

But football coach Bear Bryant of Alabama lost a similar football case to the association, which might counter-attack Knight virtually from the same position.

The situation arose shortly after Aug. 15, when the NCAA adopted a rule limiting road teams to 48 players in football and 10 in basketball.

About a week later, Bryant filed a class action suit against the NCAA and received a favorable verdict. A temporary injunction against the rule lasted just one game, however, before being suspended by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals which refused to treat the case as "one of high importance."

This had the effect of denying a quick hearing and placing the case well back on the docket where presumably it still exists.

Knight's suit is scheduled for a preliminary hearing at 8 a.m., CST, Saturday in Monroe Circuit Court here. It asks for a permanent injunction against the 10-man traveling squad rule.

"Essentially it is an action I brought," says the coach of the top-ranked Hoosiers. "I chose to do it on my own without involving the university."

He also feels there is little in common with the Bryant suit because "basketball is an entirely different entity." Reconsideration of limitations is expected during the NCAA convention next month.

Bobby Knight

"At the coaches' meeting in September everybody seemed to be in favor" of taking action against the rule, Knight said. Again, at the annual Big Ten basketball news conference recently, everybody spoke out against the rule.

At that time, Knight said, "The coaches didn't have anything to do with it . . . it's nickel and dime stuff for saving money. Each school will save maybe $800 and waste thousands on other things."

The coaches are concerned with "morale" and "unity." They also feel it will hurt recruiting.

And a player injury on the road could present another real problem. Several Saturday-Monday Big Ten games are scheduled, and if a player is hurt on Saturday he cannot be replaced for the Monday game.

Games Slated For NU Women

The NU team travels to Omaha Friday for a 7:30 p.m. tip off at Creighton and then Saturday night, the team will play the preliminary contest before the men's game when they host Tarkio at 5:15 p.m.

Midland Guard All-American

New York (AP) — Midland Warrior offensive guard Dave Meyer, a 6-3, 235-pound senior, was named to the Associated Press College All-American second team Tuesday.

Meyer was recently selected to the Sunday Journal and Star All-State College Football team.

Two Kearney Gridders Named

Two Kearney State football players were named to the Great Plains Athletic Conference all-star football team.

Kearney State didn't play for the conference title as this is the initial year for the Antelopes in the GPAC. They will be active in the conference in winter sports and next fall.

Crete Girls Win Opener

David City ..... 6 4 4 1—15
Crete ..... 16 18 12 4—50
David City — Porchaska 1, Schroeder 6, Kasper 4, Zellinger 4.
Crete — Bals 14, Bauer 4, Quick 4, Dudley 8, Laurenroth 4, Renken 6, Schnell 4, Coulter 6.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6

Texas A&M 23 - ARKANSAS 10—Super important game. Victory for Aggies earns them undisputed SWC title & Cotton Bowl. Should Arkansas win, league crown ends up in 3-way tie, with Arkansas going to Cotton Bowl and A&M to Liberty Bowl. Vaunted Aggie defense has overpowered 10 opponents, and is now 2nd only to Alabama in fewest pts. allowed per game, 7.3 ppg. It is big, fast & very physical. Wishbone offense has been sporadic at times. However, in such a crucial game, we would expect A&M offense to be disciplined, motivated & bearing down hard all the way. Senior QB Jay, who suffered minor muscle spasm injury vs. Texas, is OK; he is steadier leader than Shipman. Huge, blockbusting frosh FB Woodard forces Arkansas to protect inside, while speedster RBs Bean & Walker attack the flanks. Condition of Arkansas' ailing RBs Eckwood & Forte ?. Even if they are able to play, how effective they would be is another matter. QB Bull performing well as stand-in for Kirkland. He and TE Yoder good tandem. But fact is, Arkansas does not have the physical strength to go jaw-to-jaw with more muscular Aggies, & smallish Razorback defense could be overmatched by massive Aggie interior blockers. Having finally overcome 'Texas hex', there can be no excuse for Aggies not overpowering a lesser foe who was manhandled by Texas easier than 24-18 score indicates. Rich in experience (nine 4-yr. vets) & lethal, aggressive defense should cap a perfect season for the long-frustrated Aggies. at Little Rock, Ark. NATIONAL TV.

Scottsbluff's High Sets New Record

The previous Scottsbluff high mark for Dec. 4 was 65 reached in 1965 and 1974. Thursday's reading is only two degrees under the all-time record high of 73 for the month of December in Scottsbluff recorded Dec. 6, 1939

Other warm readings Thursday included Chadron's 69 degrees, 66 at Alliance and Sidney, and 60 at Beatrice. Lincoln's high for the day was 59 after a low of 26.

Some snowpack was still in evidence Thursday on roads in northeast Nebraska from last week's snowstorms. Nebraska 12 in the Niobrara-Crofton-Obert area continued to have one-way traffic in spots, the State Roads Department reported.

In the McCook area, some secondary roads were blocked Thursday, not by snow but by mud, a Roads Department spokesman said.

Much colder weather is forecast for Friday in the north and west portions of the state with highs only expected to reach the upper 40s. Continued mild temperatures in the mid 50s are due in the southeast.

Colder temperatures are expected to spread over the entire state by Saturday with highs generally in the 30s, according to the National Weather Service.

The extended forecast for Saturday through Monday calls for a change of snow in the state Saturday with a gradual warming trend Sunday and Monday.

Man Wanted In 3 Stabbings Sent To Omaha

Omaha (AP) — A man who has been sought since 1973 in connection with three stabbings has been returned to Omaha after his arrest at Ogallala, police said.

Officers said Michael J. Olsen, 27, of Omaha was charged in a warrant with three counts of stabbing with intent to kill, wound or maim.

He was arrested in Ogallala on another charge and officials there found out about the stabbing warrant through the National Crime Information Center, police said.

The stabbings of the three men occurred April 5, 1973.

Youth's Death Ruled Suicide

The death of Robert Craig Keller, 19, of 3310 Woodshire Parkway early Thursday morning has been ruled a suicide.

The Lancaster County Sheriff's Office said Keller shot himself in the stomach with a 12 gauge shotgun at his home.

Margaret Thatcher Re-Elected With Ease

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Thatcher on Thursday was re-elected leader of Britain's Conservative party in a formality that lasted less than a minute.

Scottsbluff's High Sets New Record

Balmy weather in Nebraska Thursday was topped by 71 degrees at Scottsbluff, setting a new record high for that western city.

The previous Scottsbluff high mark for Dec. 4 was 65 reached in 1965 and 1974. Thursday's reading is only two degrees under the all-time record high of 73 for the month of December in Scottsbluff recorded Dec. 6, 1939.

Other warm readings Thursday included Chadron's 69 degrees, 66 at Alliance and Sidney, and 60 at Beatrice. Lincoln's high for the day was 59 after a low of 26.

Some snowpack was still in evidence Thursday on roads in northeast Nebraska from last week's snowstorms. Nebraska 12 in the Niobrara-Crofton-Obert area continued to have one-way traffic in spots, the State Roads Department reported.

In the McCook area, some secondary roads were blocked Thursday, not by snow but by mud, a Roads Department spokesman said.

Much colder weather is forecast for Friday in the north and west portions of the state with highs only expected to reach the upper 40s. Continued mild temperatures in the mid 50s are due in the southeast.

Colder temperatures are expected to spread over the entire state by Saturday with highs generally in the 30s, according to the National Weather Service.

The extended forecast for Saturday through Monday calls for a change of snow in the state Saturday with a gradual warming trend Sunday and Monday.

Man Wanted In 3 Stabbings Sent To Omaha

Omaha (AP) — A man who has been sought since 1973 in connection with three stabbings has been returned to Omaha after his arrest at Ogallala, police said.

Officers said Michael J. Olsen, 27, of Omaha was charged in a warrant with three counts of stabbing with intent to kill, wound or maim.

He was arrested in Ogallala on another charge and officials there found out about the stabbing warrant through the National Crime Information Center, police said.

The stabbings of the three men occurred April 5, 1973.

Youth's Death Ruled Suicide

The death of Robert Craig Keller, 19, of 3310 Woodshire Parkway early Thursday morning has been ruled a suicide.

The Lancaster County Sheriff's Office said Keller shot himself in the stomach with a 12 gauge shotgun at his home.

Margaret Thatcher Re-Elected With Ease

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Margaret Thatcher on Thursday was re-elected leader of Britain's Conservative party in a formality that lasted less than a minute.

Fund Drive Launched For Marching Band

A campaign drive for funds to enable the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cornhusker Marching Band to attend the Fiesta Bowl was launched Thursday afternoon.

According to NU Interim Chancellor Adam Breckenridge, the University of Nebraska Foundation has been asked to establish a fund and accept donations that would pay expenses for the band's appearance at the bowl on Dec 26

Plans for the drive were initiated after Dr. Breckenridge's announcement Wednesday that the band would not be able to appear at the bowl — without outside help — because such a trip would push the University s budget $42,000 over its limit

Breckenridge said he hopes to determine whether support for the trip is available by Monday

If enough funds are raised, Breckenridge said, "The band will probably leave Lincoln Dec 22 and return following the game on Dec 26."

Before agreeing to establish the fund, Harry R Haynie, president of the University of Nebraska Foundation, said he received "vocal encouragement from many of our friends that sufficient funds could be raised

Whether we do or not depends on the many friends of the marching band — those people who have been stirred by the efforts of the band at athletic events, and by the citizens of the state who are interested in having Nebraska make a credible showing at the Fiesta Bowl," Haynie added

Persons wishing to contribute to the fund should make checks payable to The University of Nebraska Foundation — Band Fund, University of Nebraska Foundation, Lincoln, Nebraska, 68503

Fund Drive Launched For Marching Band

A campaign drive for funds to enable the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cornhusker Marching Band to attend the Fiesta Bowl was launched Thursday afternoon.

According to NU Interim Chancellor Adam Breckenridge, the University of Nebraska Foundation has been asked to establish a fund and accept donations that would pay expenses for the band's appearance at the bowl on Dec. 26.

Plans for the drive were initiated after Dr. Breckenridge's announcement Wednesday that the band would not be able to appear at the bowl — without outside help — because such a trip would push the University's budget $42,000 over its limit.

Breckenridge said he hopes to determine whether support for the trip is available by Monday.

If enough funds are raised, Breckenridge said, "The band will probably leave Lincoln Dec. 22 and return following the game on Dec. 26."

Before agreeing to establish the fund, Harry R. Haynie, president of the University of Nebraska Foundation, said he received "vocal encouragement from many of our friends that sufficient funds could be raised.

"Whether we do or not depends on the many friends of the marching band — those people who have been stirred by the efforts of the band at athletic events, and by the citizens of the state who are interested in having Nebraska make a credible showing at the Fiesta Bowl," Haynie added.

Persons wishing to contribute to the fund should make checks payable to: The University of Nebraska Foundation — Band Fund, University of Nebraska Foundation, Lincoln, Nebraska, 68503.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Friday, December 5, 1975

Gemini persons, although restless, flirtatious, dual in nature, continue to impress me as being purposeful. These natives want to communicate, to express, to obtain answers, to dig beneath surface, to record through notes and photographs. Here are the lively people, willing to take a chance, to be versatile, daring — and to ask embarrassing questions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sharp angles are featured. Means there are cutting edges — and you must protect, prepare and be ready to commit to a definite program. Wishy-washy procedures will not suffice. Be specific — check fine lines, details. You may be involved in program of reconstruction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Change, analysis, travel and variety are featured. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Accent is on revisions where longrange plans are concerned. A publishing date is announced.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic adjustment indicated. Luxury item is spotlighted. Costs, budget spotlighted. One close to you may act — and speak — on impulse. Don't compound error. Be reasonable, patient and mature. If diplomatic, you'll be loved!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): One who pulls strings may be "out-of-sorts." You do best now by listening, observing, letting others show their hands. You gain by being thoroughly familiar with legal ramifications. See clearly — avoid self-deception.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practical matters dominate. Studay Cancer message for valid hint. Creative endeavors offer challenge, stimulation. Member of opposite sex lends moral support. You have more allies than might be apparent on surface. Offer to organize assets deserves serious consideration.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish rather than begin — be ready to assert self, to demonstrate sincerity of beliefs. Aries, Libra could be very much in picture. Protect valuables. Don't tempt fate by being careless — or a target.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plans could be turned over — you may be reviewing, revising, preparing for a new mode of approach, procedure. Leo, Aquarius persons are likely to be involved. Stress directness, originality, sense of adventure that comes through pioneering project, effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You find that your shoulder is being used as a crying towel. Mistakes catch up with friend. Be sympathetic, attentive without becoming inextricably involved. You will have much which aids one you care for — key is to be confident that inner voice speaks truth.

SAGITTARIUS (nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be willing to experiment, to listen, to exchange and to expand. Key is activity. Know that status quo offers no solutions. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Money question is not answered, but this should not be cause of major concern.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar cycle and aspects point to personal challenges. You get chance to state case in definite manner. You learn who is for and against you. There is chance to correct past mistakes, to get proverbial "second chance." Aquarian is in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): One who is in position of authority offers counsel. Be receptive without deserting principles. Written words influence, sway and mold final decisions. Know it and be alert to messages, reading material. Puzzle unravels!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Friend with money problem may ask the "impossible." Be diplomatic without being foolish. Costs, comparison shopping and home improvements are featured. One very close wants an accounting, backing, encouragement, endorsement. Catch emotional breath before making decision.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, a natural writer, a philosopher, a person who loves travel, challenge, unique people and places. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You are frank, direct, a fighter for truth, somewhat cocksure, temperatmental and sensitive. You are also a human lie detector. Conditions settle — you'll do the work you like and April will be your most significant month of 1976.
